The Election of Senator Harding

The voice of the American people spoke in no uncertain manner yesterday when they selected Senator Harding to be their president for the next four years. The plurality which he received was so overwhelmingly large that even the most ardent Democrat cannot escape the conclusion that the American people prefer a Republican president and congress.

The league of nations was the great issue of the campaign. The Republican victory is the answer of the American people to the proposed pact and their repudiation of the Wilson program. They still believe that America should refrain from entangling alliances with European countries and should keep herself aloof from leagues that might involve us in foreign embroglios. Both Republican and Democratic leaders wanted this question settled by the people. They showed their stand by their votes yesterday.

Democratic inefficiency in governmental affairs, which has been dwelt on by Republican critics of the administration, was another cause of the disastrous defeat of yesterday. The people believe that a Republican congress and president will bring more statesmanship to bear on important financial and business questions that demand attention than the Democrats have done in the eight years in which they were in power.

It seems, if the results of the election are a criterion, that the American people want a thorough housecleaning at Washington. They have despaired of seeing the Democrats curtail public expenditures and reduce the national debt, so they used their privilege of putting into office and power a party that has pledged itself to this program.

High taxes and general dissatisfaction with the excess profits tax law also were contributing factors. The wage earner believes that the excess profits tax only adds to his burden, for the increased taxation is to be found in the increased price which he pays for commodities.

By their victory of yesterday the Republicans not only elected a chief executive, but also strengthened their membership in both the house and senate. The additional members will enable the party to push legislation rapidly through congress to the president.

President-elect Harding has promised to surround himself with able thinkers to assist him in working out problems of national moment. The "one man" has been eliminated from American politics for the next four years at least. Senator Harding's expressed desire to co-operate with congress should make itself felt for the good of the whole country, for no man, no matter how great his natural endowments or how profound his reasoning ability, has a monopoly on wisdom.

Americans have a natural antipathy against the "one-man" idea. But they do approve of a man who welcomes suggestions and seeks the counsel of others.

A change in Washington will be a national blessing. Senator Harding will enter the office with the best wishes of the millions who elected him to office and increased the power of his party in congress. The legislative and executive branches of the government, co-operating in their work in the next four years, should be able to enact legislation that will redound to the welfare of the men and women who elevated them to office.

PARACHUTE JUMPING IS DANGEROUS TASK

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The mechanism for parachute jumping from airplanes, described in a statement of the Army Air Service, discloses the hazards of the jumper and wherein his feat has a "sporting chance" of ending in death.

"The parachute used by aviators," says the Service's statement, "is folded snugly inside a pack carried on his back. The operator steps off the plane, allows himself a couple of seconds to fall clear of his machine, then pulls a wire depending over his shoulder. The wire opens the spring doors of the pack and releases a small pilot chute some couple of feet in diameter. This pilot spring opens automatically and catching the rush of air, draws the main chute from the pack."

"In the top of the main chute is an automatic vent which, opening to a width of five feet when the big parasol first unfolds, gives the air compressed within a chance to escape and lessens the danger of blowing the chute apart. When the fall has been checked, rubber springs or shock-absorbers in the vent close it in until but a small hole remains."

"At the atmospheric pressure where, in most parachute drops from ordinary altitudes are made the speed attained by the operator in his couple of seconds fall is sufficient to create enough pressure under the pilot chute to cause it when released to yank the big one at once from its pack. Usually the operator is descending at normal speed after falling less than 200 feet. However, at high altitudes the atmosphere has not sufficient effect on the pilot chute until the operator has fallen a great distance and attained a terrific speed. The shock when the parachute does open is accordingly severe and there is quite a sporting chance of the silk flying into ribbons."

FRANCE TO TAKE HAND IF GREEK EX-KING RETURNS

PARIS, Nov. 3.—The French Foreign Office informed the Associated Press today that France would not interfere in the Greek situation unless ex-King Constantine attempts to return to Greece. In such case, it was added, "France will take such measures as are deemed necessary."

GENEVA, Nov. 3.—Constantine and Sophie, the ex-King and Queen of Greece, still are keeping to their rooms in the Hotel National at Lucerne, although Prince Paul is seen in the streets.

Constantine is greatly depressed by the report that Great Britain and France, which guaranteed the kingdom of Greece, would refuse, even if the elections were favorable to him, to allow his return to the Greek throne.

PAPER CLOTHING ADVISED

The Japanese have had paper clothing for many years, and some of the most attractive kimonos in the far east are tailored of wood pulp. An expert of Japan insists that the layman will find it hard to distinguish these kimonos from the expensive silk wrappers.

"Everybody in Japan wears kimono," he remarks, "and the paper garments are popular and inexpensive. For about $1.50 you can buy a kimono that looks like a $50 outfit—and feels like it, too. The paper is soft and pliable and it can be draped gracefully about the figure. If Americans, men and women alike, could be converted to the kimono as an everyday dress paper clothing might become the only wear."

PUBLIC IS INVITED TO PARTICIPATE IN TOUR OF HIGHWAYS

Letters have been sent out by the county highway officials inviting the general public to participate in the celebration of Tuesday, Nov. 9, as Good Roads Booster Day. The Young Men's Business club has taken up the idea and is making every effort to encourage a large attendance on the tour of the county that is to be made that day starting at 8 a. m. from the courthouse and covering the entire county.

All sides of the highway problem will be touched on freely and discussed, as one feature of the drive. The invitation is general to all those interested in good roads in the county. It is requested that those planning to make the trip phone Roland Nustbaum, phone 1631, or Howard Horton, county surveyor.

Guests For Dinner

Those making the trip will be the guests of W. O. Jones, road superintendent, and H. H. Horton, surveyor, at a dinner in Hagerstown served by the Ladies' Aid society. During the dinner hour talks will be given by L. H. Wright, state highway commissioner; Denver Harlan, W. W. Reller, W. O. Jones, C. D. Franks and W. F. Connell of Indianapolis; Oliver Lafuse and J. Knapp, of Knightstown.

The trip as planned will start at 8 a. m., and take in the following towns in order: Boston, Abington, Centerville, Pershing, Cambridge City, Hagerstown, Greensfork, Williamsburg, Fountain City, Bethel, Whitewater, Middleboro and Richmond.

The American Legion band will accompany the boosters and will play in all the towns visited.

ON IMAGINATION

What our imagination—one is. Your character is a thought-out affair, as well as a worked-out reality. Nothing stimulates, nothing drives, nothing builds—like the imagination. It takes hold. It leads. It is the supreme boss of all that a man is or may become.

Success is almost wholly a matter of the proper use of one's imagination. The acquired power to keep going ahead, in spite of great difficulties, the ability to meet all things and to conquer, are direct descendants of the imagination.

To get things done, you must see them done. The painter puts the canvas what he already has imagined upon his heart.

A large part of the sickness and failure and unhappiness of the world is just pure imagination played with in the wrong way.

We must travel in the direction of the thing we so much desire—and we must expect it to come to pass. We must know in our hearts that it was meant for us to expand and grow greater and better. We must use to the full this God-given power—and be very glad that we have it—if we would secure the things for which we strive.

On the throne of our magnificent imagination do we mount—and then, as do the eagles, soar to the things of our heart's desire!

Coach Thistlethwaite of the Earlham college football team extended a general invitation to the members of the Young Men's Business club to attend the game between Earlham and Wilmington college on Reid field. The invitation was prompted in appreciation of the friendly spirit the club had shown toward the college.

A "get acquainted" meeting of the merchants' section of the Commercial club was planned for Nov. 15. W. B. Waddell, chief attorney for the Indiana Business Men's club, and secretary A. Bogue, of the club, were to be secured for speakers.

Dinner Stories

A certain pastor makes it a point to welcome any strangers cordially, and one evening after the completion of the service he hurried down the aisle to station himself at the door.

A Swedish girl was one of the strangers in the congregation. She is employed as a domestic in one of the fashionable homes, and the minister, noting that she was a stranger, stretched out his hand. He welcomed her to the church and expressed the hope that she would be a regular attendant. Finally he said that if she would be at home some evening during the week he would call.

"Thank you," she murmured bashfully, "but my have a fella."

There's a good reason. Doctors realize the danger and upon appearance of the first symptoms of cold begin taking medicine to check its progress.

Follow the doctors' example and you too will escape the serious consequences of neglect. Take Lightning Laxative Quinine Tablets as soon as you feel a cold coming on. They stop a cold right off; ward off fever, cleanse intestines; never gripe or sicken. Druggists guarantee them—only 25c a box.

LACK OF WORRY

There's nothing I can worry o'er, In all my daily round, and so my heart is sad and sore, and briny tears abound. The larder's stocked with luscious pies, the cellar's full of spuds, and every morning, when I rise, I have a change of dudds. The diamonds on my harness clank, I have silk shirts galore, and I have money in the bank, and credit at the store. No man can say I am in debt, for this or that or those, and so I've no excuse to fret or nurse a string of woes. And, having no excuse to brood, I brood and fret and cuss, and in a fierce and bitter mood I make a ghastly fuss. For worry is a state of mind that every man enjoys, and he grows weary of his grind if not a thing annoys. With-out a grievance man is lost, his mental innards ache; he'll find a woe at any cost, even though it be a fake. And so I grumble when it rains and file a savage roar, and when the sunshine glids the plains, I grumble all the more. Man wasn't born to go his way without a cross or care; some ill should prod him every day, or he is in despair. A sugar diet fattens men but undermines the spine; a dash of bitters now and then, or vinegar, is fine.

The chief gasoline expert of the bureau of mines is of the opinion that before long every automobile will be provided with two tanks—a small one, to contain high-grade gas for starting the engine, and a good sized one for fluid volatile enough to keep the machine going.

The Wise Choice of An Automobile Today Depends a Great Deal Upon What the Car Costs to Own and Run

The records of people who drive Franklins under difficult as well as favorable conditions, and who make their comparisons with similar records of other cars they have owned, are interesting.

They show that, all items of expense considered, the Franklin stands less depreciation through wear and tear, costs less to maintain mechanically, and has lower gasoline and tire bills.

When a car qualifies in this manner as a sound investment in motoring service, it is plain how even more than normal satisfaction is derived from its comfort and safety, the ease with which it handles, and the freedom from trouble which results from Franklin Air Cooling.

The advantage to the purchaser of a Franklin Car is not only measured favorably by its first cost, but also by its performance as typified by—

20 miles to the gallon of gasoline
12,500 miles to the set of tires
50% lower yearly depreciation
