

TRANSPORT WORKERS OF ENGLAND MAY JOIN ONE BIG UNION

LONDON, Nov. 11.—A ballot will be taken within the next few weeks to decide whether all the workers who are now affiliated with the Transport Workers' Federation, except the seamen, shall be drawn together in one big union.

The three unions of seamen are taking a ballot for or against a separate amalgamation. Leaders of the federation have told the Daily Mail that the scheme for a single union will be adopted sooner or later.

When this comes about the new Transport Workers' Union will take rank with the National Union of Railwaymen and for the first time the Triple Alliance (miners, railway men and transport workers) will consist of three solidly organized bodies, each with a central executive possessing full authority, subject to the decisions of the national delegate conference, to act on behalf of the whole organization.

The newspaper points out that it does not follow that the suggested consolidation of power would increase the danger of a combined strike which would hold up all the vital services of the country. If a great industrial crisis affecting the whole alliance did reach a final stage of deadlock, a joint stoppage would undoubtedly be facilitated. On the other hand, experience of the working of the alliance in the few years of its existence has shown that the greater the power wielded the greater the sense of responsibility created on both sides engaged in a dispute, says the paper.

The single Transport Workers' Union would include dockers, canal workers, dock warehousemen, motor drivers, bus and tramway employees, carters and so on.

WHO STOLE DINOSAUR? Who stole the great Patagonian dinosaur? This is a question the newspapers are asking and it is also a question which Dr. Carlos Ameghino, director of the Buenos Aires Museum of Natural History, would like to have answered. The dinosaur, or rather its skeleton, was not stolen from the museum, it should be explained, but from the soil of Patagonia, near Neuquen, where, in a remarkable state of preservation, it was discovered by some English engineers a year ago, during the excavation of an irrigation ditch. They notified Arthur Smith Woodward, naturalist of the British museum, of the find, who, in turn, communicated with Dr. Ameghino.

From the description of the engineers, it appeared the dinosaur was a monster, even for a dinosaur, and of a new species. The museum lacking funds, Dr. Ameghino at his own expense sent an expedition in charge of a young naturalist, Augusto Tapia, to bring the skeleton to Buenos Aires. "The English engineers," says Dr. Ameghino, "informed Tapia on his arrival that while they were away on a trip of exploration an unknown person had come to the place, collected all the fossils that had been unearthed, taken away those which interested him, including the dinosaur, and left the rest. Tapia found only a simple pile of bones belonging to animals of various known species. The great skeleton of a new species was not there."

Nervous Breakdown

"I am so nervous it seems as though I should fly"—"My nerves are all on edge"—"I wish I were dead." How often have we heard these expressions or others quite as extravagant from some loved one who has been brought to this state by some female trouble which has slowly developed until the nerves can no longer stand up under it. No woman should allow herself to drift into this condition without giving that good old-fashioned root and herb remedy Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

Read the Letters of These Two Women.

North East, Md.—"I was in ill health four or five years and doctored with one doctor after another but none helped me. I was irregular and had such terrible pain in my back, lower part of my body and down each side that I had to go to bed three or four days every month. I was very nervous, tired, could not sleep and could not eat without getting sick. A friend asked me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am sorry I did not take it sooner for it has helped me wonderfully. I don't have to go to bed with the pain, can eat without being sick and have more strength. I recommend your medicine and you are at liberty to publish my testimonial."—ELIZABETH WEAVER, R. R. 2, North East, Md.

Nervous, Ailing Women Should Rely Upon

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was run down and nervous, could not rest at night and was more tired in the morning than when I went to bed. I have two children, the youngest three months old and it was drudgery to care for them as I felt so irritable and generally worn out. From lack of rest and appetite my baby did not get enough nourishment from my milk so I started to give him two bottle feedings a day. After taking three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman, full of life and energy. It is a pleasure to care for my children, and I am very happy with them and feel fine. I nurse my baby exclusively again, and can't say too much for your medicine."—Mrs. A. L. MILLER, 2633 E. 24th St., Minneapolis, Minn.
