

TRAP-SHOOTING SEASON NEARS END; KEENE PICKS ALL AMERICAN SHOTS

BY JACK KEENE

When the trapshooting season comes to a close there will be several trapshooters who will stand out above all the others. These shooters are the ones who have followed the sport closely this season, shooting in the main tournaments. They are Frank Troeh of Vancouver, Wash.; E. F. Woodward of Houston, Texas; Paul Earle of Starr, S. C.; Nick Boylston of Leesburg, Fla.; and Fred Harlow of Newark, O.

During certain seasons of the year these shooters made a practice of attending the state championship tournaments in certain sections and in nearly every case they topped the other shooters.

Troeh began his campaign early in the year and was the high gun in the Washington, California, Arizona and Missouri titles and tied for high in the Texas state shoot. Then he crossed the ocean and won the English trapshooting championship, since that time he has won the high average in the Canadian international tournament and had a run of 239. Troeh also won the live bird championship of the United States and England and about a dozen other championships.

E. F. Woodward has shown himself to be one of the best trapshooters in the United States by his record this year. Not only did he win the Texas state championship, but he tied Troeh for the high average in that tournament. He was high average man in the Georgia, Kentucky, Alabama and Arkansas state shoots and in the ones he has not been high in he has been so close as to cause the winner a lot of worry.

Paul Earle was the high gun in the North and South Carolina and New Hampshire state shoots, besides winning the South Carolina state championship for the second year in succession. He was also high gun at Maplewood.

Fred Harlow did not do much shooting this year, but what shooting he did was exceptionally good. He was high gun in Ohio besides winning the state title and was high average man in the Indiana and Michigan state shoots.

Nick Boylston won high in Florida besides winning the championship. Then he came north and was high in the Massachusetts state shoot and tied for high in the Connecticut title tournament.

Jose R. Capablanca, now chess champion of the world by virtue of the resignation of Dr. Emanuel Lasker and in accordance with the conditions of their first contract, but with whom nevertheless he will play a match for the title in Havana, is back from England. Capablanca was interviewed as to what he thinks of Samuel Reschanski, the world wonder who made so sensational a debut at West Point recently. In the champion's opinion, the little fellow is in a class a shade below that of the international masters. He thinks that there are probably not more than six players in this country who could defeat the child in a serious match.

Cleveland's club has had, perhaps, more nicknames than any other team in either big league. Back in the '70s they were called the Forest Citys and later the Spiders. In the American league they were dubbed the Blues because of the color of their traveling suits. Later they were named the Naps in honor of Napoleon Lajoie, their manager. Today they are the Indians. Deacon McGuire was once a pilot of the Ohio team and the 1920 world's champions were then nicknamed the Mollie McGuire's.

QUAKERS LOCK HORNS WITH ANCIENT RIVAL, FRANKLIN, SATURDAY

Winding up their season on Reid field with a whirlwind practice the Quaker football squad quit the home gridiron with a determination to put up a scrap unequalled this season when they lock horns with Franklin college on the Franklin field next Saturday afternoon.

Coach Mowe has been bothered by the mid-semester exams and there is strong likelihood that four of the regulars will not be allowed to appear against Franklin because of too little attention to studies. The list includes three backfield men who stand a chance of removing inelegibility by the exams.

The strongest lineup possible will be used against the Baptists. Virtually no changes have been made in the lineup since the Kalamazoo game. Bookout and Nicholson will hold down the end jobs; Hall and Pennington, tackles; Johnson and Chambers, guards; Gordon, center; Carter, quarterback; Ivey, Beck, Wenban, Snyder and Emslie, halfbacks; and Gorton fullback.

Have Long Rest.

The Quakers have had two weeks' rest to prepare for the downstate team. Only a few days have been spent in practice because of the mid-semester exams and bad conditions of the field. The locals will no doubt have their offense built to stop the meteoric Kingsolver who is the star of the Baptists' team. This will be his last game for Franklin and he will no doubt try to establish a record. Several of the Earlham veterans are playing their last game. Nicholson, Hall, Pennington, Johnson, Chambers, Gordon and Snyder will make their last appearance in Quaker moleskins Saturday.

INDIANA, PURDUE FRAY OCCUPIES LIMELIGHT IN GAMES SATURDAY

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 19.—Indiana vs. Purdue at Lafayette and Wabash vs. DePauw at Indianapolis—these are the stellar attractions for tomorrow, the last Saturday of the 1920 football season in Indiana. The two games will bring the traditional of Hoosier football history into conflict on the same day and the results will bring more joy to the victors and more grief to the losers than the scores of any previous games of the season.

There will be other teams in action throughout the state tomorrow. The schedule of Hoosier teams follows: Indiana and Purdue at Lafayette. DePauw and Wabash at Indianapolis. Notre Dame and Northwestern at Evanston.

Chicago Y. M. C. A. College and Butler at Indianapolis.

Earlham and Franklin at Franklin.

The clash at Lafayette will be the first between the eleven of the two state universities since 1917. The renewal of the annual contest finds Purdue in the position of the under dog, the Old Gold and Black team having been through a hard and not altogether successful season. Indiana, on the other hand, will start tomorrow's contest full of confidence as the result of a remarkable game against Notre Dame here last week and victories over two of its three opponents in the Western Conference.

Purdue Determined.

Indiana's apparent advantage has brought out a spirit of determination in the Butler Maker's camp, however. The Crimson, according to the Purdue followers, will be compelled to battle for every point.

Athletic contests over a long period of years have brought about a traditional rivalry between Wabash and DePauw. Followers of the season's contests declare that these teams are more evenly matched than the eleven of the state universities and are predicting that the Washington Park clash will be one of the gridiron features of the present season.

Notre Dame's third contest with a Western Conference team will be staged at Evanston with Northwestern as the opposition. The Catholics, with victories over Purdue and Indiana and with a clean slate so far this season, expect to trim the Purple.

Somewhat chastened by the close contest with Indiana last week, the Notre Dame eleven will undoubtedly give the Northwestern team serious consideration and will be ready for stiff opposition. An injury in the Indiana game, it is reported, may prevent George Gipp, Notre Dame's star fullback, from participating in the Northwestern game and it will be necessary to fill his place with one of the second string men.

Butler Closes Season.

Butler will close its best season in years with a contest with the Chicago Y. M. C. A. College here. The Butler students are enthusiastic over the record of this season which has brought the I. C. A. L. championship to the Irvington institution.

The Earlham and Franklin teams will close the season with their game at Franklin. Both eleven were put out of the I. C. A. L. race by Butler but as in the other games arranged for tomorrow there will be considerable rivalry on account of the contests between the schools in previous years.

Tomorrow will be an open date for Rose Polytechnic, Valparaiso and State Normal. Hanover finished its schedule last Saturday.

Rose Poly and State Normal will close the season at Terre Haute Thanksgiving day. Valparaiso will close with the University of Buffalo at Valpo field on the same day and Wabash will appear again in Indianapolis with Marquette University as its opponents.

The games tomorrow will be the last of the season for Indiana, Purdue, DePauw, Butler, Earlham and Franklin.

KANSAS UNIVERSITY SEEKS PLACE ON CENTRE CARD
(By Associated Press)

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 19.—Negotiations for a football game next year between Centre college of Kentucky and the University of Arkansas, have been opened by the manager of the Centre team and if a date mutually agreeable can be decided upon, the game will be on the schedules of the two institutions, university authorities here said today. If arranged, the game will be played at Memphis, Tenn., probably early in the season.

High games came topping one after the other at the Twigg alleys Thursday night when the City leagues swung into action. It was the close of the second round and all the men seemed bent on increasing their handicap so fast and furious did the maples fly.

Todd went wild in his last game and toppled the pins for 259, but he was closely followed by several others who romped over the 200 mark with ease. Bennett struck for 242, LaHrman hung up 232 and Epping rolled a 216. Bennett was the most consistent chalking up another 225. Todd was able to carry off high average with 206, but was pushed by Bennett with 204. Epping was not clear of the dust with his 198.

No changes were made in the final standing of the league. The Maher Meats were able to win the majority of the games which put them farther out in the lead for league honors. Feltman Tramps were their victims, even though they rolled high game of the evening with 1,089.

The Tramps and Hill Laddies still remain in a tie for the second rung. Lee Tires took two out of three from the aspiring Laddies.

The Wilson Cleaners and I. H. C. crews fought a strenuous battle all their own each game being decided by a few pins. The Cleaners emerged victorious with two games on their belt. The scores:

REGULAR ELEVEN TO OPPOSE GREENFIELD

Determined to put up the best exhibition of football played by them this season the high school grid men turned out in the snow Thursday for practice at the playgrounds in preparation for their game with Greenfield high school at Reid Field Saturday afternoon.

A slippery, waterlogged field made the traveling bad but the men went to work with alacrity. A heavy scrimmage was dispensed with because Coach Null deemed it would be dangerous to his proteges. A light workout will probably be held Friday evening which will be the last practice of the football season.

Coach Null will start the same eleven that has appeared in the past few games. Several substitutions are looked for in the contest because of this being the closing game of the season. Brown, star halfback who was injured in one of the early practices of the season, will probably get into the game for a few minutes. He is expected to live up to the reputation established in practice, although he has not had the seasoning of the other backmen.

A volunteer squad of snow shovelers and straw spreaders will be sent out to Reid field Saturday morning to get the grounds in shape for the game.

Crawfordsville Wonder Five Comes to Play Hagerstown

HAGERSTOWN, Ind., Nov. 19.—Hagerstown high school will meet the super-team of the Crawfordsville high school in the biggest game of the season on the local floor, Saturday night, Nov. 20.

The ability of the Crawfordsville five does not need to be emphasized to those familiar with high school teams. Disqualified last year from the I. H. S. A. A. for using ineligible players they won an enviable name for themselves by winning the tri-state tourney at Cincinnati, and runners up in the national tourney held at Chicago. They were nosed out by the narrow margin of one point by Wingate. Their team of this year still holds quite a few of last year's regulars, so their ability cannot be underestimated.

The exact lineup is not known, but Hagerstown will probably use the same gang of regulars: Wichterman and Leavell, forwards; Root, center; Murray and Teeter (capt.), guards. Hagerstown will have two big advantages in playing on their own floor and a two weeks' rest, while Crawfordsville must make the trip on Friday night before coming to Hagerstown. The Hagerstown five is in the best of condition and a hard fought game is to be expected.

The local five was to have played Kennard on Friday night, Nov. 19, but the gym in which Kennard plays was destroyed by fire a few days ago, leaving them without a place to play or to practice.

Quarter Million Game Fish Reared in State Hatcheries

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 19.—More than three-quarters of a million baby game fish were reared this year at Indiana's four fish hatcheries, the largest number ever raised since the state began fish culture in 1911, says the report of George Berg, superintendent of hatcheries, submitted to the State Department of Conservation.

Plans for next year include three additional ponds at Bass Lake, which is to be devoted exclusively to propagating small-mouth bass in an effort to meet the greater demand for this fish by sportsmen of the state.

Superintendent Mannfield, of the fish and game division, also anticipates increasing work at the state game experiment station near Crawfordsville, but definite announcement of details is withheld pending their final adoption. The station comprises a 500 acre preserve where experiments are made in raising wild game, birds, and small fur-bearing animals in captivity, the results being given to persons desiring to raise these animals for trade.

Supposed Major Leaguer Sentenced For Bigamy

(By Associated Press)

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 19.—Robert Roy Evans, who says he was a major league baseball player a few years ago, today was under sentence to two years prison term having been convicted in the federal court here of bigamy. He admitted having married three women. Evans declared his career embraced more than ten years service as a baseball pitcher.

He named the Washington and Detroit American league clubs and the Brooklyn National league clubs as the major league teams he played with. He asserted he was "the pitching mainstay of Brooklyn" in 1903 and 1904, and says he retired after managing the St. Paul American Association club during the season of 1909. Evans says he is 48 years old and his home is in Emporia, Kas.

Maroons Earn Title Of Hard Luck Champions In Western Conference

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—The western conference title of hard luck champions, seemed earned by Chicago university when it appeared evident today that not only was this season's football team, a mere skeleton of its early season luster, but that next year's team would be minus seven leading players of this year's varsity roster through graduation.

Those who will end their college football careers tomorrow in the game with Wisconsin are Captain Colville Jackson, tackle; Coleman Clarke, end; Paul Hinkle, end; Roland Barker, end; James Reber, center; Buell Hutchinson, halfback, and Harold Hanson, fullback.

Coach Staag tomorrow will be minus four important players: Captain Jackson has a badly infected arm, but pleaded that he be allowed to start in the game. Hanson has a compound fracture of his right arm but asked that the plaster cast be removed so he could play with a brace on his wrist. Crisler's injuries in the Michigan game cost the maroons their best end, and Bobby Cole, quarterback and directing genius of the team received injuries in the Illinois game which probably will keep him off the gridiron for the rest of his college career.
