

NEW YORK USES "L" AND SUBWAY; CHICAGO STICKS TO SURFACE

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, N. Y., Dec. 2.—More than half New York City's "six million" travel on subways and elevated lines, but Chicago still sticks largely to surface cars, while London passengers divide their patronage almost equally between busses, trolleys and rapid transit system.

Figures revealing these statistics of travel in three of the world's largest cities were presented by experts at a gathering here of transportation authorities who are meeting monthly to discuss New York's great transportation problems.

It was shown that 6,750,000 persons live in the metropolitan district within a twenty mile radius of Fifth Avenue at Thirty-fourth street.

Only Third on Surface.

About 2,300,000 of them live on Manhattan Island and another 2,000,000 flock into Lower Manhattan every week day. Fifty-four per cent of these ride subways and elevated lines, 25 per cent utilize surface cars, ferries haul 5 per cent, commutation steam trains four per cent, and 2 per cent travel in busses.

In Chicago surface cars carry 73 per cent of the city's passenger traffic, rapid transit lines get 21 per cent and the other 6 per cent travel in suburban steam trains. In London the ratios are 33 per cent in busses, 27 per cent in surface cars and 40 per cent in rapid transit trains.
