

PARTIAL PROGRAM ANNOUNCED TODAY FOR AUTO EXHIBIT

"Something Doing Every Minute" seems to be the motto adopted by the Wayne County Automobile Dealers' association, in arranging for the varied program to be shown during the hours the auto show is open for the public.

Although there has not been a time set for the occurrence of several features on the program, it is known that music will predominate at all times. From 2 to 5 p. m. of each of the three days beginning Thursday, Dec. 9, and from 7:30 to 10:30 p. m., the Evan Smith orchestra of six pieces will be on hand playing popular tunes. When this group of talented musicians are resting, it is planned that music from mechanical instruments will hold sway. Special features of musical talent, it is said, will be offered when solos are given by Howard Hitz, Harry Frankel and C. F. Hutchins. The Kiwanis quartet also has been engaged.

Mr. Hutchins and Mr. Frankel will each sing solos Thursday night. Both are well known here for their ability as vocalists. Friday night the Kiwanis quartet will entertain. This quartet is composed of Clyde Gardner, George Hodge, Frank Funk and Samuel Garton. It is very probable that Howard Hitz, with other musicians, will entertain Saturday night.

Workers were putting the finishing touches on the interior decorations Wednesday. Large spaces have been marked off as booths on both floors. The name of the dealer and the make of the car has been painted on good sized signs which are being hung over each booth. An excellent effect has been attained by placing the ruscus trees mounted on pillars, at regular intervals throughout the building. American flags are artistically draped at the rear of each auto stall.

Dealers to be represented by cars or accessories on the first floor include Manlove and Wilson, Chenoweth Electric Service, Richmond Auto Electric company, Richmond Tire Service, McConaha's garage, Bethard Auto company, and the E. W. Eldhardt company; second floor, Leslie Lomen company, Webb-Coleman, Chenoweth Sales department, Marson company, Davis-Reo company and Fred Bethard Auto Sales department. Where one dealer's name appears twice, it means that he has entered both accessories and cars.

WID VAMPS of History

Mary Ann Smythe Weld Fitzherbert Hanover, a Vampire and a Sport.

BY ANNE JORDAN

Mary Anne Smythe was descended from a family short on names but long on lineage. Mary Anne's father was Sir John Smythe of Acton Burnell Park. The girl was hardly out of the crib before they shrunk her name to fit the rest of the family. They called her Maria.

Maria, having Roman Catholic parents, was educated in a French convent. As soon as she got out she turned into a marrying trick. She practiced on Edward Weld. Maria was 19 when she married him, and a widow at 20.

"Poor Mr. Weld," meowed Maria, as she peeped through the widow's weeds. "He was such a good man. He always wound the cat and put out the alarm clock every night. I'll never find another like him!"

Mr. Weld was hardly tucked away comfortably in his wooden neglige when Thomas Fitzherbert tapped at the widow's door.

"Thomas," chortled Maria, "you do so remind me of my lamented husband. He was such a good man, too!"

Fitzherbert blushed, and soon he was treading to that Middle-some bridal tune with Maria hanging on his arm.

Thomas didn't last much longer than his predecessor. There was something about Maria that hurried one along so in life. Within three years the undertaker was soliciting Mrs. Fitzherbert's further patronage, in the event she should seek a third husband.

"If I might make so bold to say it, Ma'am," he genially remarked as he collected for services rendered, "I was telling the Madame only the other night, you're one of our best customers, Ma'am."

Thomas left Maria with a neat allowance, and as soon as she had observed a reasonable and dignified time of waiting, she trod the carpet again, wondering if she had better insert a want ad or just trust to luck.

The Prince of Wales Saunters In
Luck was longer but worth waiting for. She was one of the most popular ladies in London in 1784. It was in this year that she met the Prince of Wales, later King George IV. When he had maneuvered her into a cozy corner and was trying to get her biography straight, he exclaimed:

"So you've been married twice already!"

"Yes. Two good men. Looks like all the good die young."

"Umph, here's to a long life without 'em," toasted his High Naughtiness.

George was an orchid of the fields when it came to being gorgeous, ly attired and job in sight. He camped around the Widow's doorstep, trying to read an exclusive "Welcome" on the mat. But Maria was so used to saying "I will" in a preacher's face that said he'd have to sound her doorbell with a wedding ring.

Maria was now 23; George was only 22. He went flying to his paternal error.

"Father," he exclaimed breathlessly, "I'm off this king business; I want to live like a private gentleman."

"Why George," exclaimed the old King, "if you've ever lived like a gentleman it has certainly been perfectly private."

George couldn't get excused from the responsibility of being next in line for succession, and there were two laws that forbade him to marry Maria—one the injunction against royalty wedding a Roman Catholic, and the other a law forbidding any of the royal house to marry without the King's consent.

So George pulled a ruse to work on Maria's sympathies. He jumped in bed, struck himself with a neat but refined dagger, and sent word to her that he was stabbed, with the warning that unless she came he would perform the fell deed all over again. Maria was sick. She arrived accompanied by the Duchess of Devonshire, and remarking that deathbeds were her specialty. The Prince lay moaning musically, and the ruffles on his pajamas were tipped with blood. It was too much for Maria. When he asked her to become his wife she accepted impulsively, and the Duchess of Devonshire loaned her her wedding ring.

But George was convalescent too soon to suit Maria. She didn't believe he had stabbed himself. She fled to the Continent, and for over a year lived in seclusion. The villain still pursued her, however, and in 1785 she returned to London to be secretly married to him. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. Burt.

George was so extravagant that he soon was forced to shut up his own establishment, Carlton House, and went to live with Mrs. Fitzherbert at Brighton. Pretty soon, even Thomas' life insurance was cashed in.

There was only one thing to do. The government wouldn't even give George postage stamps, because the news of his marriage had leaked out and he was barred from the line of succession. So the Prince caused it to be announced in the House of Commons that his marriage was false. This angered Maria at first, but when the House voted 221,000 pounds and the King added 10,000 pounds to his income, the outcome was reconciliation.

By 1794 the royal spender was broke again, his million-odd dollars having gone down the sluiceway. This time Parliament refused to give him any more money unless he was married to a Princess royal. He agreed that if his debts were paid he would marry the Princess Caroline of Brunswick, and give up Maria.

George Takes a Drink and Makes a Will
The Princess Caroline received a warm welcome. When George first saw her he kissed her and collapsed into the arms of an attendant, moaning, "Ye Gods! Get me some brandy." He immediately made out a will leaving all the money he had, if any, to Mrs. Fitzherbert—Hanover, in the event of his death under trying circumstances.

Scarcely four years had passed before George was back, asking his first wife to forgive him for marrying his second. Maria sought religious counsel, and was advised that she was pure as the drifted lard, even if she had drifted. She decided to take him back.

The influence of "Mrs. Prince," as her friends called her, lasted a long time, but when George began to talk in his sleep and call her "Sarah," she declared she would not share her morganatic happiness with any dismal blonde.

"Back to Brighton!" she sighed.

George became Regent, and saw to it that she received an income of 6,000 pounds a year. All the time he was King, Maria never butted in. When he died, King William IV offered to make her a Duchess. She refused, but permitted her servants to be put in royal livery.

When Maria died at Brighton in 1837, there was still a question as to her marriage to Prince George. But in 1905, a sealed packet left at Court's Bank, 72 years before, was opened by royal permission. It contained the marriage license of George and Maria, and proof of the legality of the ceremony.

Robber Ransacks House In Ridgeville; Escapes
RIDGEVILLE, Ind., Dec. 8.—Yesterday forenoon a man called at the home of Sheldon Bailly, Ridgeville, rapped on the door and when Mrs. Bailly came to the door inquired if she had any money for him. The man went through the house taking everything of value that he could carry and made his escape. Upon regaining consciousness, Mrs. Bailly notified the authorities and Chief of Police Fletcher, of Winchester, was called, but no trace of the robber could be found. He is described as being 40 years old, tall and smooth shaven.

Expect Jump in Sales of Christmas Seals Here

At the Wayne county social service bureau, headquarters for the Christmas seal sale drive, officials said Wednesday that the movement was progressing favorably. Although exact figures could not be obtained, the requests for additional seals that have been coming in from the country districts were such as to cause them to be highly optimistic.

Because there is such a large organization over the county, definite reports cannot be obtained for some time, it was said.

It is believed that with the establishment of booths in the downtown district within the next few days the sales will show still greater progress.

OFFICES, COLLEGES, CLOSED AS RESULT OF INDIAN BOYCOTT

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—The progress of the boycott movement of the native element in India against the British Indian government is given in reports from India reaching the India Information Bureau here. The reports state that since the boycott began many natives have resigned from offices under the government; four colleges have closed as a result of the agitation, with a growing student-strike movement through the country; and an almost complete boycott is under way of the government elections scheduled to take place in a few weeks.

Government Issues Statement
For the first time since the inauguration of the boycott, the British Indian government has issued a statement of its attitude toward the movement, according to dispatches just received by the India Bureau. The statement says that no repressive action will be taken by the government "for it considers that such action should only be employed in the last resort, when, indeed, failure to adopt it would be a criminal betrayal of the people." The government has refrained from taking action against those who advocate a boycott of the government schools, the law courts and the legislative councils, for three reasons, namely:

"Reluctance to interfere with the liberty of speech and of the press at a time when India is on the eve of a great advance toward the realization of responsible government."

"Reluctance to make martyrs of individuals, some of whom may be honest in their convictions."

"Trust that the common sense of India will reject the non-co-operation."

The bureau states that the native element construes the statement to mean that action will be taken to break the boycott on the slightest outbreak of violence or anything that may be construed as such.

Indictments on charges of keeping liquors in violation of the law were returned by the grand jury against Jason Watkins and Clerk Thistle Tuesday evening.

Watkins was arrested immediately. He furnished bond in the sum of $500 and was allowed to go pending arraignment. In the indictment against him, it was charged that Watkins sold liquor to Walter Moler, in November, 1920.

The indictment against Thistle, a white charged that he had on Nov. 2, 1920, sold a bottle of Jamaica ginger unlawfully.

Etta McConnell, negroess, was indicted on a statutory charge. Her bond was set at $300.

Joseph E. Atchison was indicted on a charge of forgery. It was charged that he had forged the name of Robert Young to a check for $15, which he passed later as genuine. His bond was placed at $2,000. Joseph Ernest Brown also was charged with forgery. On October 27, 1920, it was charged, Brown forged the name of Dominic Clementi on the back of a railway pay check for $55. His bond also was set at $2,000.

POLICY OF WAITING ADOPTED BY GREECE IN EX-KING'S RETURN

ATHENS, Dec. 8.—The plan to have Ex-king Constantine return to Greece this week appeared today to have been abandoned. The decision of the government apparently was to continue its "wait and see" policy with the tendency to leave the decision as to Constantine's return to the throne with the ex-king himself.

Notification regarding the result of the plebiscite held in Greece last Sunday probably will be sent to former King Constantine at Lucerne, Switzerland, today, according to a statement by Minister of War Gounaris.

"Yes he will come," he declared when asked if Constantine would return to Greece. "We probably will notify him on Wednesday."

When the Earl of Granville, the British minister here, visited Premier Rallis early this week to hand him the latest British communication the latter smiled and exclaimed:

"What, you have come with a new note. I have not answered the other two yet."

Many Conferences
The cabinet is spending much time in conferences at which are discussed the financial situation and the possibility opened up by the return of Constantine.

Trading on the bourse was unsteady yesterday, the dollar being quoted at 12 3/4 drachmas.

Latest returns from the plebiscite show that scattering votes against Constantine, generally one or two to a district.

The Greek battleship Averoff, which is at Constantinople, is declared unable to leave that port. One report is to the effect that the ship's machinery has been damaged.

ALL MUNICIPAL JOBS ARE HELD BY WOMEN IN WEST COAST CITY

YONCALLA, Ore., Dec. 8.—Municipal government was in effect in Yoncalla today, the women who were recently elected to all municipal offices including that of Mayor, having taken their places last night when the men incumbents resigned in a body at the council meeting.

The women announced through the new mayor that they would start a clean-up of the town and make extensive municipal improvements.

The new city officers are: Mayor, Mrs. Mary Burt; council women: Mrs. Jennie S. Lasswell, Mrs. Edith B. Thompson, Mrs. Bernice Wilson, and Miss Nettie Hann.

When the regular city election day arrived Nov. 2, the women of Yoncalla surprised the men by suddenly putting a ticket in the field consisting entirely of women. Prior to election day the men of the town had assumed that they would hold no election but let the city officers continue. So unexpected was the action of the women in placing their own candidates before the people that the men did not have time to rally their forces and the women won by large majorities.

Men Are Friendly.
The resignations of the men from the city offices, it was announced in last night's council meeting, were merely to give the city officials-elect opportunity to begin the work of civic betterments at once. In farewell speeches the resigning male officers asserted they bore nothing but the best of feelings toward the new women officers, declaring that they would receive full support in their plans for municipal improvement.

The appointment of the women to the council was made by Mayor Jesse R. Lasswell, husband of one of the new council women, after the councilmen had resigned.

EUROPEAN INTEREST IN RELIGION GROWS

BOSTON, Dec. 8.—"In spite of war, disease, famine and economic prices, most interest is being manifested in religious matters among the peoples of central and eastern Europe than in some sections of prosperous America," declared Dr. Francis E. Clark, president of the World's Christian Endeavor Union, in his address at the annual meeting of the union today. Dr. Clark, who recently returned from an extended tour of southeastern Europe, added:

"All over Europe there is a growing demand for less politics and more Christianity. Hundreds of Christian Endeavor societies, with thousands of members, have been enrolled since the war. There are now nearly 1,000 societies in Germany alone, an increase of 100 per cent in the last five years. In the new republic of Estonia a great revival has grown from the efforts of Finnish Christian endeavorers. Encouraging reports also come from Poland, Hungary and Yugoslavia."

"With the admission of the new republic of Latvia to the World's Christian Endeavor Union, every country on the globe is represented in our fellowship. There are now more than 80,000 societies around the world, with nearly 4,000,000 members."

PERMIT FAILS TO SAVE ALLEGED LAW VIOLATOR

(By Associated Press)
DETROIT, Dec. 8.—Charles Brunz is in custody of police here charged with violation of the liquor law, notwithstanding that he was transporting liquor under a permit issued by the federal authorities. Brunz was taking 56 quarts of liquor from New York to Chicago in suit cases.

When he protested against his detention Prosecutor Bishop held that the state and federal laws are in conflict, pointing out that Michigan voted dry two years before national prohibition came into force and that the state law forbids possession of liquor under any circumstances outside of one's home.

Value of Crops Exceed Reclamation Expenses

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The value of crops grown on lands within government reclamation projects for the single year 1919 was $25,000,000 greater than the total of $125,000,000 expended on all projects constructed up to the close of the last fiscal year, according to the annual report of the reclamation service made public today. The value of crops produced on reclamation lands the report said, was "just about twice as large" per acre as the average yield of unirrigated lands in the humid regions.

ROBBERS GET $35.
WINCHESTER, Ind., Dec. 8.—Thieves invaded Union City and attempted a robbery at four different places, at three of which they failed. They were successful in opening the safe at the Imperial Electric Company, where they obtained $35. At the Pierce Elevator and the Union Elevator the robbers were unsuccessful in their attempt to break open the safe with sledge hammers. At the Titan Engineering Company they also failed. It is thought the thieves were novices.
