

SANBORN PRAISES FARM SALE LUNCH; AUCTION NETS $3,100

By WILLIAM R. SANBORN.
We wonder what you farmers would think if we should start the story of a farm sale and a first class lunch, by talking about the lunch and the ladies who served it first, incidentally mentioning that there were a lot of folks present to enjoy said lunch.

It is all right with you? Correct, gentlemen, so we shall proceed in accordance with your good judgment.

Be it known then that the ladies of the Hollansburg Grange served this satisfying, winter day lunch, to all comers, at a modest price. Albeit they had garnered $50 at the time of making their report, and were still going strong. The menu offered piping hot soup as a starter, and including edible sandwiches, fruit pies, some sweetstuff, salad and pickles galore, and mayhap a few home-made cakes. Oh, yes, surely, it is the William G. Ross sale we are talking about. It was held on the Stowers farm, two miles north and one-half mile west of Hollansburg. The date was Tuesday, December 7.

Ladies Who Served.
The Ross sale lunch was served by Mrs. Asaac Trimble, Mrs. Paul Harris, Mrs. John Money, Mrs. Nora Harris, Mrs. John E. Chenoweth, Mrs. Henry Wolfal, Mrs. Arla Harris, Mrs. Theodore Thattor, Mrs. Ray Milton and Miss Ruby Mikesell. The general verdict was that these ladies knew just what would best suit a hungry farmer during a sale recess, and that they were mighty fine pie-makers.

Good Bunch of Livestock.
The live stock offering included 7 head of horses and mules, 7 head of cattle and 100 hogs. Ten Big Type Poland China gilts, eligible to registry, and 7 Chester White sows, together with upward of 80 shoats, ranging from 60 to 100 pounds, comprised the hog sale.

Mr. Ross is leaving the farm and will move to Lynn. The man who will farm the place, A. F. Meyers, was a liberal buyer, and took in the team of dun mares at $325. He also paid $42 and $44 for two fine white sows, and bought several tools and implements, according to his needs.

The cows sold at from $50 to $80, the top price being paid by Dick Adelman for a nice Jersey. The team of young mules was captured by Gould Ross, at $302.50. The shoats sold according to weight on the present market basis, no outside prices being realized. No grain was sold and the mixed hay put up brought $12 per ton.

Sale Totals $3,100.
The demand for agricultural implements was not pressing, this being the off season. A cultipacker in fine condition sold for $65, and a substantial set of heavy harness brought $47. A few household goods which will not be needed in the new Ross home, were put up, and the baseburner sold for $52, this being baseburner weather. The sale was cried by O. E. Ross, auctioneer, and William Harris made the settlements. Mr. Harris reports a net of $3,100.

German Monarchy's Return Predicted by Berlin Paper

(By Associated Press.)
BERLIN, Dec. 8.—The time for the return of the monarchy will come when the German people will have "drained to the dregs the blessings of the republican form of government," says the Krenz Zeitung, discussing the anniversary of the German revolutions.

The conservatives' organ adds "that the time is likely to come much sooner than most people imagine."

The paper declares that the German proletariat in the past two years has been torn by dissensions which are constantly growing and that it is anything but a collective unit, inasmuch as a section of it prefers to celebrate the Russian revolution while the so-called reformists accept the German revolution as marking a new era.

INVENTS NEW COAL.
BRUSSELS, Dec. 8.—It has been announced here that an engineer named Bauschleicher has succeeded in manufacturing by a simple process artificial coal of great heating capacity. It is made with the vegetable refuse from peat beds, of which Germany possesses a great number.

The new fuel, which is called "gasol" coal, is said to have a heating capacity of 7,500 units and burns a bright flame. It leaves no cinders.

BUST OF TAYLOR IN CAPITAL OF UNKNOWN ORIGIN

The uncatalogued bust of President Zachary Taylor.

Among the many famous statues and works of art in the capitol building at Washington, D. C., is a marble bust of President Zachary Taylor. It is uncatalogued and of unknown origin. There seems to be no record of how the statue came to be placed in the capitol.

FRIENDLINESS

as if he were the party leader and to put his shoulder behind a program of legislation for the present session. To this urging, apparently Senator Harding showed rather marked dissent.

Press Budget Bill.

He was urged to make some public utterance in the shape of endorsement of the budget bill, to do what he could to press the budget bill through the present session of Congress. Except to express the hope that the budget bill would pass in the present session, Senator Harding did nothing about this.

Senator Harding was urged to seize the first occasion possible to make a speech, or some other public utterance, about the troubled state of business. He was urged to say something that would give comfort and assurance to those who have been harassed by the fall in prices and the slow-up in business. He was urged to say that all this is merely a normal episode of after-war conditions, and to try to focus the minds of the business men of the country on the hopeful signs in the situation, and to say we have every reason for hopefulness and every reason for knowing that the depression is merely temporary.

Is Sure-Footed.
All these things were urged upon Senator Harding, and as to practically all of them he didn't. He gave the impression of wanting to be very sure-footed.

Whether any of Senator Harding's callers brought up the subject of cabinet appointments, or whether Senator Harding himself brought up the subject, the present writer has no knowledge but is inclined to believe that while Senator Harding is himself giving much thought to these appointments, none have yet been rendered. Quite as important and more interesting in a human way than the matters of politics and statesmanship connected with Senator Harding's visit, was the personal impression he made. He met the newspaper men, some 60 in a body, and he met the Senators in a body, and he met, either individually or in groups, an considerable number of Republican and Democratic senators and leaders. So far as it is possible to make a generalization based on so large a number of individual contacts, it is safe to say, with a good deal of warmth, that the impression Senator Harding made was extremely happy.

Observes Proprieties.
Almost his chief preoccupation seemed to be a wish to live up to the properties, to be considerate of others, and to let all his acts and utterances be governed by a high-minded aspiration for what is best in taste. The impression he made was, above all, one that reflected friendliness and consideration in him, and inspired friendliness and consideration in others. When he spoke in the senate, I sat facing all the senators; I saw no face that did not shine with kindness. Even Senator LaFollette, whose devotion to individual standards frequently brings him into situations where he stands apart from almost every other senator—even LaFollette's countenance beamed with kindness and approval and he put obvious enthusiasm into his applause.

A reasonable proportion of so brief a visit was given to things in which his primary interest was sentimental. The dinner at the apartment house for New was that as well as some other incidents more intimately personal. Senator Harding really regrets leaving the senate. That is a bold thing to say, but it is literally true. He did not seek the presidency, and would have preferred to remain a senator.

Regrets Senate Departure.
I was surprised that so few of his hearers seemed to grasp the dramatic quality in the candor with which he said, in his speech to the senate, "If one could always direct his own political fortunes to his liking, I should have preferred my membership here to any office a citizen may hold in this republic." Those of us who have followed the intimate policies of the past year know that this is exactly correct as a matter of history, and that the sentiment came from the heart and reflected the feeling that the next president of the United States maintained as near to his new honors as yesterday.

All in all, Mr. Harding gave the impression of a man who is giving up a career of comparative ease with reluctance; who realizes that the presidency of the United States is not a glory that you enjoy, but a duty that you live up to. He gave the impression of a man who is rather regretfully giving up a career that had become familiar and easy, and taking on one which he sees as composed largely as self-sacrifice, in which the single chance of success lies in stern and unremitting devotion to the highest attainable standards of duty. FAILS TO REMOVE HAT; IS SENT TO PRISON

(By Associated Press.)
VIENNA, Dec. 8.—The state of religious freedom in the Austrian republic is illustrated by the fact that a man has just been sentenced to two weeks imprisonment for failure to remove his hat when a Corpus Christi procession was passing on the street. He pleaded that he was a free thinker and furthermore that it was a bitter day and he was a sufferer from an affliction of the head that made it dangerous to be uncovered.

PROPAGANDA EXPERTS RESORT TO OLD DODGE

(By Associated Press.)
AMSTERDAM, Dec. 8.—Bolshevik propaganda experts, anxious to avoid discovery of the propaganda matter they are taking to America, are said to have resorted to the old war-time dodge of having their printed matter done in microscopic form, capable of being enlarged photographically.

One man, who was caught in central Europe, had in his possession a number of queer looking postage stamps upon which were printed Soviet propaganda matter. The authorities were enabled to enlarge them to ordinary size.

The propaganda university which has been established at Moscow is reported to be now devoting extraordinary care to literature intended for two particular classes—women and farmers.

The women are urged to join the International Women's Communist associations, of which branches are to be established in America, and the latter are urged to form farmers' communes with the ultimate purpose of creating "Farmers' Red Guards."

How a prospective mother prepared for baby's coming

Of all the vital adventures in life, the birth of a baby is the climax of nature's most wonderful evolution.

During this period, nature is supposed to be preparing the internal organism of a woman for a safe and speedy delivery; but it is more the exception than the rule when nature, unaided, performs her part at the crisis in a manner to relieve pain and contribute to comfort.

"I was afraid," writes a prospective mother, "until an experienced mother told me about MOTHER'S FRIEND."

"—but now I cannot recommend MOTHER'S FRIEND too highly for I know it helped me wonderfully, and I can almost say my baby was born without pain. At the present time I am using it again, as I do not want to go thru the ordeal without it."

Three generations of prospective mothers have used MOTHER'S FRIEND. When gently applied, during the period of expectancy, it soothes the fine network of nerves, lubricates the broad, flat, abdominal muscles and prepares the way for an easier, quicker and practical delivery.
