

STATE JOBS IN OHIO GAIN IN POPULARITY SINCE CLOSE OF WAR

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 7.—During the war period and immediately thereafter, state jobs went begging for want of applicants, but not so now, according to Thad H. Brown, of the state civil service commission.

"There were 45 applicants for one position, recently," Mr. Brown said. "We believe that the tightening of the industrial situation is responsible for the present popularity of state berths."

Since last June when the Liggett law became operative, a total of 141 veterans of three wars have applied for state positions. The Liggett measure exempts war veterans from state civil service examinations.

Ninety-seven of the applicants were Civil war veterans; 33 World war and Spanish-American war soldiers. Less than a dozen have been appointed, records show.

CHILLICOTHE, O., Dec. 7.—Plans for the establishment of a "recruit training center" where illiterate army recruits, who are unable to either read or write, will be given a six months' course in military instruction and common, ordinary, everyday education, is under way at Camp Sherman.

On completion of the course recruits will be assigned to various units. Similar schools have been or are to be established in each of the nine army corps areas, officers here say.

The school at Camp Grant, already established, is proving a success, officers declare.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 7.—A drive to have every air pilot in Ohio contribute $1 toward a fund for the aviators in the American flying squadron of the Polish army, is under way.

The American flyers have just finished 18 months of fighting in Poland and southern Russia as members of the Kosciuszko squadron, under command of Colonel Cedric E. Fauntleroy, and are much in need of boots and overcoats, the colonel told Cleveland aviators during a recent visit here, and to prove that the army spirit of corps still lives the drive was begun.

William Graves Sharp, of Ellyria, former ambassador to France, is acting as treasurer of the fund and will forward the money to the American consul at Warsaw, to be turned over to the flyers before Christmas.

ALBUM OF GOLD AND GARNET ON DISPLAY

A rarely beautiful example of the jeweler's art, and the product of an idealist of infinite patience. Such is the impression one gathers from a study of the gold and garnet album on display at the Jenkins jewelry store. This unique example of solid gold and Bohemian garnets, in book form, is 3 1/4 by 4 1/2 inches, and is one inch thick. This little volume has six golden leaves, making 12 pages. The inside covers are also fitted for holding photos, and the book contains 14 of these, all scenes in Vienna, Austria, from whence this antique was imported in 1852.

The golden album recently arrived in Richmond, through the courtesy of M. M. Brewster, an old-time New York jeweler, a lifelong friend of the Jenkins family, its intrinsic value is great, because of the weight of gold and gems composing it—twenty ounces. But its real value lies in its beauty of expression and perfection.

Its purpose is for ornament, not for use. Its value is the price a lover of the beautiful and artistic expression may place upon it. Incidentally, however, it was originally priced at $6,000. In its perfection today it appears to have just come, fresh from the hands of the maker.

This gem from Vienna contains 7,200 garnets, exquisitely matched as to coloring. The covers and clasp are "paved" with tiny stones of uniform size, the relief patterns are of gems of varying sizes, cut to suit the design. Taken as a whole it is an example of the jeweler's art that is possibly without a rival in this country.

Argentina's Foreign Trade Brings Favorable Balance

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 8.—Argentina's foreign trade during the past six years has given the country a favorable balance of approximately $1,400,000,000, according to figures just compiled. This exceeds the entire favorable trade balance built up in the history of the country as an independent nation before 1915. The favorable balance reached its height in 1919 when it amounted to $375,000,000, while estimates place the balance for the present year at about $100,000,000.

Foreign trade for the present year, it is estimated, will reach $2,000,000,000. Until the present year the highest figure reached was in 1919 when the country's foreign trade amounted to $1,700,000,000.

Argentina's foreign business per capita last year was more than $200 and this year is expected to be about $240. It is stated here that the per capita foreign business in the United States is approximately only $86.
