

DUBLIN POLICE RAID HOUSES; SEARCH FOR SINN FEIN EVIDENCE

(By Associated Press.)
DUBLIN, Dec. 6.—Searches for evidence against the promoters of Sinn Fein outrages which are conducted by the police or military authorities are among the notable features of life in Dublin. They usually take place in the daytime or in the early morning hours.

In making them the authorities have committed some blunders. The military motor trucks used to drive up in front of a suspected house and stop while the searches entered the building. The trucks were left in charge of only a few men. This proved tempting to Sinn Fein attacks which frequently surprised those on guard.

No Risk Taken.
No risk is taken now. The whole street, no matter what its importance, is cleared of all traffic for a distance on both sides of the suspected house and the searches can thus do their work without apprehension of being taken in the rear.

The fact that a house is raided implies no reflection on its owners. Some of the most respected of Dublin Unionists have had their premises exhaustively searched. There have been several searches in Sackville street, Dublin's principal thoroughfare, and the starting point or junction of all its extensive street car system. A raid there meant that the street cars were held up all along the line, and thus citizens half a mile or more away, would learn that a raid was in progress. While the search was going on armored cars would dash about and prevent entrance to the area within the line set by the authorities.

The results indicate that the government is at least obtaining information.

An incident which indicates that the government agents are not the only ones who are collecting weapons under the decree that arms must be surrendered, occurred the other day at one of Dublin's most fashionable clubs. There were two old revolvers in the club room. The police heard of them and notified the club that they would have to be surrendered. A few days later two men appeared and demanded the revolvers, which were surrendered to them. After they had gone, the club members looked at the receipt and found it was signed "Mutt and Jeff."

Increased Taxes on Liquor Cause Unrest in Cordoba

(By Associated Press.)
BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 16.—Wholesale and retail dealers in liquor in the province of Cordoba threaten to close their places of business if a recent law passed by the provincial government imposing increased taxes on alcoholic drinks is not repealed.

The law passed by the Cordoba leg-islaure was intended not alone as a source of revenue but as a move to restrict the liquor traffic. Furthermore the provincial government has declared that if the new tax is resisted by the dealers, it will present to the legislature a bill providing complete prohibition of consumption of alcohol in the province.

Portrait of Washington Bought for Mt. Vernon

(By Associated Press.)
PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 16.—A miniature portrait of George Washington, painted at the request of Martha Washington by Charles Willson Peale has been purchased at auction here by the Mount Vernon association for $9,600. The miniature, one of a number of Washington relics from the estate of Dr. David Stuart, a kinsman of Washington, is a portrait on ivory in a gold frame and reposes in the original leather case. It was presented by Martha Washington to Rosalie Eugenia Stuart, a daughter of Dr. Stuart. Other relics purchased by the Mount Vernon association include Washington's field telescope, which brought $4,000 and two mahogany chairs which he had in his dining room at Mount Vernon. One of the chairs brought $1,100 and the other $700. Washington's shaving outfit, consisting of two razors, a hone, strop, brush, comb and mirror, in a morocco case, was sold to an anonymous purchaser from New York for $950.

Poverty and Pellagra Go Hand in Hand, Report

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Poverty and pellagra go hand in hand, the United States Public Health Service concludes after a three year study of the disease in the cotton mills of South Carolina.

"As the income fell the disease was found to increase and to effect more and more other members of the same family," says an announcement by the service. "As the income rose, the disease decreased and was rarely found in families that enjoyed the highest incomes, even though this highest was still quite low."

"Differences among families with the same incomes are attributed by the report to differences in the expenditures for food, intelligence of the housewife, and ownership of cows, gardens, etc. Difference among villages which were economically similar are attributed to differences in the availability and condition of food in local markets.

"A recent statement by one of the largest life insurance companies in the United States indicates that the food standards of southern wage earners must have improved remarkably of late, for the death rate from pellagra has fallen from 6.7 per 100,000 in 1915, to 2.3 in 1919."

Hunters Find Boone's Name Carved on Virginia Rock

(By Associated Press.)
HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Dec. 16.—That Daniel Boone, famed Kentucky hunter, made an expedition into Wayne and Lincoln counties during his career, is the belief of a party of lumber jacks, who recently discovered the name "D. Boone" chiseled on a large rock at the mouth of a cave on Pond Fork of Four Mile Creek, Lincoln county, near the Wayne line.

The forms of the letters are said to correspond with the name of Boone which is found carved in the rocks of Kentucky. The rock bearing the name in Lincoln county is located in a remote and wild section.

RECOMMENDED TO SCHOOL CHILDREN

This is the season when children are subject to croup, colds and coughs. Rens C. Marchard, 36 Lawrence St., Salem, Mass., writes: "I used Foley's Honey and Tar with good results. I had a very bad cold and it gave me relief at once, so I recommended it to every child that goes to school." This standard, low priced medicine loosens and clears mucus and phlegm, checks strangling coughing, makes easy breathing, soothes and heals raw, inflamed membranes, and stops tickling in throat. A.
