

CLIMAX OF CAMPAIGN FOR BETTER SCHOOLS DRAWS LARGE CROWD

The largest crowd ever accommodated in the Richmond High school attended the night session held Thursday evening to celebrate "Better School Week". Nearly 2,000 people, including visitors and students, thronged the high school halls. Of this number 1,000 were visitors. The halls, the classrooms, the auditorium, and the gymnasium were filled with people. During the three periods of classes parents and students sat two in a seat while many more were lined up around the rooms. A large crowd was in the auditorium most of the evening watching the slides which were shown. The auditorium was filled at 9:00 when the chapel exercises were opened with a short concert by the high school orchestra under the direction of Prof. J. E. Maddy. Superintendent of Schools, J. H. Bentley, in a short talk, introducing the speaker of the evening, Dr. H. L. Smith, of Indiana university, called attention to the fact that the schools are the biggest single enterprise in the entire community, and that more money is spent for schools than for any one or any two other projects together in the community.

Tremendous Business.
"The budget for the schools is larger than for the city," Prof. Bentley stated. He explained how the new junior high school buildings would relieve congestion in the high school. The freshmen will be divided between the two new buildings, leaving only three years of work instead of four in the present high school building. At present 350 students are accommodated in the high school, which is supposed to have a capacity for 725. Dr. Smith in opening his talk, said that these meetings were not only being held over the state and nation so that poor schools may become better schools, but also that "good schools may become better schools."

"Richmond," he said, "falls in the second class. The local campaign is being conducted because we are realizing the emergency of education. The veil has been lifted by the war." It was discovered, Dr. Smith pointed out, that the average schooling for one million drafted men was less than sixth grade and one out of every four were illiterate, while one-third were physically defective, and the efficiency of foreigners was lowered because they did not understand our ideals.

New Value on Education.
"As a result of this," he said, "a new value has been placed on education so that the walls of this building and colleges in the country are crowded with young people seeking greater opportunities." Lack of buildings, lack of expansion, and adequate equipment handicaps the progress now he said. Speaking of the new buildings to be erected here he said that though the cost would be tremendous they were for the nation's greatest asset. He praised the people here for the work they were doing in education and said that Indiana's present status of 17th place in the field of education had resulted because Indiana "had rested on its oars." In figures presented Dr. Smith showed that the people of the United States spend $22,000,000,000 a year on luxuries "which is 25 times as much as they spend on education."

Following the address one more number was played by the orchestra. School authorities and students expressed appreciation of the fact that so many "parents, patrons, and taxpayers" showed such great interest in the schools by their attendance at the session Thursday evening. Much credit for the success is due to the committee who planned it, composed of Mr. Taggart, Miss Williams, Mr. Rice, and Mr. Cline.
