WINGLESS AIRPLANE WHICH RISES VERTICALLY IS TESTED

The novel plane, showing the screw propellers.

Final tests have been completed successfully, according to experts present, on a flying machine which is a radical departure from present types and ideas. The plane has two pairs of horizontal blades which revolve in opposite directions. The machine can be made to rise vertically and then, by tilting the propellers, can be directed horizontally through the air. The plane has no wings. Herman Leinweber, now dead, conceived the idea. His three sons, Victor, Curtis and William, perfected the plane. In the picture the propellers are set for a vertical rise.

NEW GARDEN TOWNSHIP FARMERS DISCUSS WHY FEDERATION MEMBERSHIP IS LAGGING

FOUNTAIN CITY, Dec. 30.—"Too many who like to coast down hill but don't want to help pull the sled back up hill" was the unofficial explanation of what is the matter with the New Garden membership drive, at a meeting held Wednesday night in the school building at Fountain City.

The meeting was called to consider the membership drive and other matters of immediate interest and was attended by about 40 members of the local organization. The meeting was opened by the chairman, William C. Wright, calling on the membership committees for their reports.

In giving them, it was stated that one corner of the township finds it is difficult to meet the fees on account of a local crop failure, but in the other sections there was the belief that it would be possible to get the benefits of the association without belonging to it.

Tells a Story.
In this connection the county agent, who attended the meeting, repeated a story of how a small community managed its fire department. "This place was too small to afford a motor equipment," he said "or even to keep horses in readiness for the occasional fires. So, whenever there was a fire the whole body of citizens would rush to the engine house and drag out the equipment. Some would push, others would pull and they would get to the fire in some fashion. Others would run alongside and direct the actions of their neighbors. The rest always jumped on and rode."

It was decided finally to reorganize the township as there were some who had not yet been approached, and others who did not yet understand what the association is doing for the farmer.

Plan Cooperative Buying.
Co-operative buying of supplies, fertilizers for the whole township also was considered. The county agent announced.

FORCED CROP SALES
CLOSES MANY PLANTS

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Dec. 30.—"The forced sale of crops and live stock at prices far below the cost of production has resulted in the closing of thousands of factories and in thousands of working people being left without employment or income because the farmers have not the money to buy the products of the factory," Prof. G. I. Christie, director of the Purdue experiment station, told the Tippecanoe County Corn Growers' association at the annual meeting here today.

Points to Income Loss.
"One farm near Lafayette on which we have accurate records, had an income of $5,000 last year from its products and this year only $2,400, even though the crop was larger. Labor and all other expenses were higher. This man will exist and his farm will go on, but he will not have the $2,600 that he had last year to buy clothing, tractors, automobiles, etc. This thing is true throughout the United States and means a loss of $5,000,000,000 to the American farmer."

Prof. Christie urged the enactment of legislation by congress to help stabilize prices of farm products not only to aid the farmer but to help city dwellers.
