Additional Appropriations for State Institutions

The three state educational institutions are waging a campaign to obtain increased appropriations for their support from the forthcoming general assembly. They literally have been starving for the last two years, and in the interim their best teachers have deserted them for positions that are more lucrative.

Indiana University, Purdue University and Indiana State Normal occupy strategic positions in the educational system of the state. They offer training for specialized work. When the boy and girl have completed their public school courses, they are ready to enter these institutions to obtain intensive training.

If it is vital for the welfare of the state that our public school system be supplied with good teachers who are abreast of the times and adequately trained to instruct the youth, it also is important that the great centers of learning, where teachers are trained, be supplied with professors who are possessed of scholarly attainments and have the ability of imparting their learning to young men and women.

If industry and business succeed in luring away college and university professors into commercial pursuits, where will the institutions of higher learning obtain the men that are necessary for a faculty? Presently the universities and colleges will be in the same predicament in which the public schools find themselves today—lacking teachers.

Some of the states have escaped the predicament in which Indiana finds itself today, by increasing their appropriations for educational purposes several years ago. As a result, they are in a position to bid for the best teaching ability of the collegiate world, and the teachers are accepting the offers. No one can blame them for leaving Indiana if adjacent states are willing to pay salaries that are commensurate with their ability and enable them to live without constantly worrying about having enough money to meet bills as they fall due.

The only way in which Indiana can maintain faculties of high standard in her institutions of higher learning is by appropriating enough money to enable the boards to meet competition. The state will profit by permitting other expenditures to wait another two years while the institutions of learning are put on a basis that will not only maintain their old standing but also enable them to make progress.

Indiana's rank as seventeenth in a comparative estimate with other commonwealths of the union does not speak very highly of our educational system. It shows that we have been remiss somewhere in our appreciation of the school system. The fault probably lies in the niggardly manner in which we have supported the system with money. Exceptions to this, of course, can be found in the state. Richmond, for instance, occupies a high position for the excellence of its school system; but at that, few of us are so bold as to assert that room for improvement does not exist here. The antiquated grade school buildings, for instance, are a reproach to us. It will not be long before we will be compelled to replace these structures with new buildings, whose cost will be reflected in our tax levies.

But the construction of new buildings, erected along the latest lines and stocked with the best equipment, will avail us nothing if we do not have competent and capable teachers to preside over the grades and instruct the boys and girls who are seeking an education. To prepare these teachers, we must have excellent schools of higher education, where they may receive their training.

The appeal of Indiana University, Purdue University and the State Normal should not be discarded by the general assembly. They must have enough money to support faculties that will train teachers for our school system and prepare men and women for our industries and commercial enterprises.

SHE'S TIRED OF POLITICS EARLY; WILL RUN FARM

Mrs. Isetta Brown.

Mrs. Isetta Brown, widow of Representative William Brown of Kingwood, W. Va., attracted attention at the San Francisco convention of the Democrats last summer when she made a speech and her efforts in the presidential campaign gained her more notice. And now Mrs. Brown says she has tired of politics. She has turned to dairy farming and plans to run a model farm near Kingwood, W. Va.

TODAY'S TALK

By George Matthew Adams, Author of "You Can," "Take It," "Up."

JUST AS THE SUN CREEPS IN

There is a touch of pathos, as well as of beauty, in the closing of each day.

Quietly does it withdraw until it rests in the lap of Nature—greeted behind the curtains of darkness by a thousand kisses from the stars.

It's just as the Sun creeps in that people go home tired, overwrought maybe, yet with a sense of bravery that only a good God could give.

Hourly we are told in silent whisperings that we must fight on—that the real intent of existence is not merely that of living—but to live!

To be just and kind, to know how to forgive, to believe, to know how to handle adversity and to keep right on—these are but a few of the things that must help us through our tasks.

Like the ending of one of our days, the Old Year comes up to us and seems to say: "I am tired, I want to go to my rest."

But as the day follows night, so is the Old Year followed by the New Year!

We can begin all over again. We have learned things. We have stumbled and there are scars where we fell. But love smooths the deepest hurt and grows beautiful and fragrant flowers in the valley of despair in which we all so often find ourselves lost.

Leave your Old Year. "Sleep to wake!"

Arise to go forth into better and happier days.

Who's Who in the Day's News

SIR PROBYN

One of the most remarkable instances of service to the British royal family, sustained over a period longer than the average lifetime, is furnished by Sir Dighton MacNaughton, a Welsh nobleman, who became equerry to King Edward when Prince of Wales in 1872 and is now controller of the household for Dowager Queen Alexandra. Although he is eighty-seven and shows the weight of his years, the place he holds is secure for him as long as he lives in simple recognition of the uniform loyalty and fidelity with which all his duties have been performed.

Since 1910 he has been the special servant of the dowager queen, who throughout her life as princess, as queen and as dowager has by her graciousness and kindly consideration commanded the devoted attachment of all who have been gathered around her in service. In this instance her friendliness was manifested continuously for thirty-seven years before the present incumbency.

She first knew Sir Dighton when she was in the radiance of early married life. She had been Princess of Wales only nine years when Sir Dighton became part of her domestic establishment. Three years later he accompanied the prince on his Indian tour, which covered parts of 1875 and 1876. In 1877 he became keeper of the privy purse, holding that position until the prince's accession to the throne in 1901, when he was appointed extra equerry to the king. That office has been carried over for him by King George as an honorarium while he has been serving the queen mother in a more intimate capacity.

Prior to his personal relationship with the royal family, Sir Dighton had won distinction in the army, which he entered in 1849. In 1852 he saw service on the trans-Indus frontier, remaining there five years. He was in the Bengal army throughout the Indian mutiny of 1857 and 1858. In 1859 he quit India for China, but was soon back again for the Ambala campaign of 1863 on the northwest frontier. Afterward he became colonel of the Eleventh Lancers, known as Probyn's Horse. He reached the rank of colonel in 1888.

The skill and alacrity with which he performed the various duties assigned to him from his appreciative master, beginning with the order of knighthood in 1876. Previously his military record had brought him the decoration of commander of the bath, the Victoria cross and the Indian service order. He has been for many years a governor of Wellington college. From 1901 until 1910 he was member of council of the duchy of Lancaster. He married in 1872 Miss Letitia, daughter of T. R. Thellusson. She died in 1900. His residence for nearly half a century has been with the royal family in Marlborough house, Windsor castle or Sandringham.

Big Ulcer All Healed

"NOW I CAN WALK," SAYS MRS. SOUTHCOTT, OF MEDINA.

Here is another letter that makes me happy," says Peterson, of Buffalo. "One that I would rather have than a thousand dollars."

"Money isn't everything in this world. There is many a big-hearted rich man who would give all he has on earth to be able to produce a remedy with such mighty healing power as Peterson's Ointment, to sell at all drug stores for 35 cents a large box."

Read this letter, written February 14, 1918, by Mrs. Albert Southcott, of Medina, N. Y. It seems like a miracle, but it is true every word of it.

I know it because I get similar letters almost every day from people who have used my ointment for old sores, eczema and piles.

Is it any wonder I am happy? Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

Dear Sirs: I was an untold sufferer from an old running sore and ulcers. I had tried most everything without any relief from pain. A friend told me of your wonderful ointment and the first box took away the pain that had not left me before in years, and after using just nine dollars worth of the salve I am cured. The ulcer was 9 inches by 6 1/2 inches, is all healed, and I can walk. Never, never, will I be without Peterson's again.

You may use this to recommend your ointment if you wish. I cannot say enough to praise it. Yours truly, Mrs. Albert Southcott, Medina, N. Y. Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

114 Eggs A Day Now Instead of 25 A Day

This Means About $126 Extra Income Per Month for Mrs. Ropp.

"I have 200 hens, including late pullets not old enough to lay, and had been getting 25 to 30 eggs a day. Then I tried Don Sung and am now getting 107 to 114 eggs a day."—Mrs. Essie B. Ropp, R. R. 2, Littleton, Ind.

This increase of 7 dozen a day in the middle of winter, at 60c a dozen, makes $126 extra income per month. Don Sung for her 200 hens cost about $2.50. It paid her, and we guarantee it will pay her.

Give your hens Don Sung and watch results for one month. If you don't find that it pays for itself and pays you a good profit besides, simply tell us and your money will be cheerfully refunded.

Don Sung (Chinese for egg-laying) is a scientific tonic and conditioner. It is easily given in the feed, improves the hen's health and makes her strong, or more active. It tones up the egg-laying organs, and gets the eggs, no matter how cold or wet the weather.

Don Sung can be obtained promptly from your druggist or poultry remedy dealer, or send 52c (includes war tax) in package by mail prepaid Burrell-Dugger Co., 214 Columbia Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

CURFEW MUST NOT RING TONIGHT

(New York police establish curfew hour, after which all citizens are being searched.)

Slowly New York's sun was setting o'er the hills tops far away. Filling all the town with terror as the night closed on the day. And the last rays kissed the foreheads of two holdups on their beat As they looked for lonesome stragglers coming home along the street. Then said one to the other, Dick the Done, to Mike the Biter: "What is eatin' of these coppers? Curfew must not ring tonight."

"What's to come of honest stickups if our working hours they cut? Ain't we gotta make a living like any other mutt?"

If we gotta quit at midnight when the curfew bell is rang We will miss all of them good things that come with the owl car gang. All the poker playing bobbies and the guys with rolls. "Tain't right. 'Tis a heluva free country. Curfew shall not ring tonight."

"Geet! dis has ben a punk night for business," said Blooley Louie as he met Hank the Holdup under the electric light to count their boodle. "Whatcha kickin' about?" "I hold up nine birds tonight and they all turn out to be newspaper guys."

Miss Madge Kennedy, New York City: Dear Madge—I was present the other night when you read several minds, while on the stage. You read the mind of a detective, you read the combination of a safe, you fathomed the thoughts of a doctor, a dope fiend and a society woman. Now, Madge, I have a little job for you some afternoon this week when you are not busy. I want you to go with me out to where I live, concentrate for a few minutes on the mind of a lady acquaintance of mine, to whom I have been wed for many years, and find out what she wants for her birthday. I have tried everything else, Madge. Will you help me? Sincerely, R. K. M.

VENTURES IN COMMON SENSE

By ED. HOWE

A lesson with which I have been greatly impressed is that which shows the care everything worth while requires. No man can succeed at anything and be idle, shiftless and thoughtless. The careless, indifferent man is sure to fail. If I read of a man who has succeeded at farming, it is a record of long hours; of keeping everything in its place; of watching little things; of doing everything at the right time; and all of this in addition to being fair, agreeable, temperate, and giving a certain amount of time to public affairs. If a man succeeds with a garden, with chickens, with anything on a farm, he must work hard, and be careful. If a man succeeds in the law, in merchandising, in any town trade it is the same thing; he must work long hours, and watch out constantly. Even the man who succeeds as a disturber must practice oratory unceasingly, in order that he may move his hearers to contribute liberally when the collection is taken, or turn out to vote for him when there is an election. He must study hard, in order to be well-informed in mischief.

I talked lately with a man who had retired from business. He said he as first tried to be idle, but couldn't do it; as a result of idleness, his affairs as well as his body became clogged up, and he was compelled to hustle to keep things straight.

Less work is the poorest philosophy in the world; yet it is the base of the present reform movement. The present clamor is for the people to work less, and pay less attention to habits of thrift and sense. The foundation of the new philosophy is for the state to look out for everybody while we are all having a good time. But the state can't do it; those who get along must work long hours, and watch all corners carefully. It is an impressive lesson. I recommend it for thought.

found it the unpleasant feature of his young life. "Now, Tommy Smith," said the school teacher one morning, during the usual hours of torture, "what is the half of eight?" "Which way, teacher?" asked the youngster cautiously. "Which way?" replied the astonished lady. "What do you mean?" "Well, on top or sideways, teacher?" said Tommy. "What difference does that make?" "Why," Tommy explained, with a pitying air, "half off the top of eight is nought, but half of it sideways is three."

Former German Vessels Are Offered For Sale

(By Associated Press) MANILA, P. I., Dec. 30.—Two former German ships seized during the war are offered for sale here by the United States shipping board.

The steamer Quinnebaug which was chartered to the Philippine government for some time was turned back to the shipping board and is now at Hongkong where a British firm contracted to purchase her for $120,000. After inspection, however, in drydock at Hongkong the firm decided extensive repairs would be required to make the vessel serviceable and refused to accept the ship.

J. F. Marias, shipping board representative in Manila inspected the Quinnebaug at Hongkong and estimated that repairs and cost of maintenance for the last three months would amount to $20,000. The Quinnebaug has now been offered for sale at $149,000 by the shipping board.
