

A SWEETHEART AT THIRTY

The Story of a Woman's Transformation
BY MARION RUBINCAMChapter 22.
MORE HAPPENINGS.

I followed Francis into the building without saying a word. It was one of the downtown police headquarters, the first I had ever been in. We went through long corridors, with vaulted ceilings of reddish brick that made our footsteps echo oddly. We went up an elevator and through more corridors, and saw no one but occasional men in the regulation police blue.

And finally we entered an enormous room, brightly lighted at one end where there were desks on a platform. A number of policemen were standing about, and a nice looking young man with a stenographer's note book and an array of pointed pencils. Below the desks were rows of empty benches, which ran back into the shadows of the unlighted part of the room. The whole effect was curious and unreal, especially when I realized that this was Christmas night.

"Sit here," Francis said, indicating one of the front benches.

I sat down and stared about me. Where was Bud? And who were all these other men out of uniform? There were perhaps 20 of us in the room.

Francis had walked over to one of the men, a tall, rather handsome man in a fur coat. He had a huge nose and a chin that stood far out, and he looked gray eyed. I had never seen in anyone's face. The two came towards me.

Mr. Mills, my lawyer, Francis said. "George, my fiancée, Miss Haines." I held out my hand. A little wave of warmth and pleasure went through me. I was Francis' fiancée! He did love me! I turned to smile at him a little, and the sense of depression which had come over me when I entered the place, began to wear off. But Francis had again forgotten me. He did not even see my smile. After the conventionally polite greeting, Mr. Mills turned away and the two men began going over some notes together, gradually walking away from me. So I sat, quite alone, in front of the vast array of empty, desolate benches, and watched the little drama work itself out.

It was quite as though a play were being staged for me alone, since everybody else in the room seemed to play some part of it. Even the uniformed men that I thought did nothing but guard doors, were kept busy running errands.

A door behind the platform opened, and an elderly man entered. Every one stood at attention, so to speak, and turned to him as he took his seat at the desk, so I judged the curtain was up and the first act had begun.

I examined him closely. He, too, wore the police uniform, but a very well tailored one, with much more impressive gold braid on it. He had a great pompadour of gray white hair, and a clear, curt voice that was usually pleasant.

"The circumstances are unusual, gentlemen," he began. "But in view of some new evidence, I felt justified in calling the hearing this evening." He went through what seemed to be some routine court business, then someone got up and summarized the case. All this I was familiar with, but I listened eagerly and tried to understand every word.

Presently another door opened, and with a policeman on each side of him—Bud came in!

I shall never forget the shock I felt at the sight of the lad under such conditions—practically a prisoner, really a criminal in the eyes of the law until Francis and the man with the hard gray eyes could prove him innocent.

Drawn by my gaze, Bud turned and saw me. I tried to smile in a reassuring manner at him, but of the two, I think I was more frightened. Bud turned to look eagerly at Francis, but Francis' back was turned and he did not see Bud until the boy was sent to the witness chair.

But first a police officer was put on the stand.

"I saw a commotion and a lot of people," he said, after answering a few preliminary questions. "So I went up, and there in the middle of the crowd, looking sort of dazed, was this lad," he swung around and regarded Bud with a friendly eye.

"Was he hurt?" a lawyer asked.

"His eyes were shut, and he had a mark on his forehead, but he opened his eyes about as soon as I got there, and then he clapped his hand to his side, and says something about a wallet and money."

"Did you notice any cabs or autos hurrying away from the place?" the lawyer asked.

"As soon as I saw it was a robbery

Heart Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two girls considered pretty; we dress becoming, and can dance good; but the dances we go to, we can never have a good time. There are plenty of young men here who haven't any girls, but they seem always to pick on two other girls from our own town. These girls are not pretty and they never have any girl friends. When we go to the dances we do not seem to "cut in," and have a good time. Won't you please tell us what is the matter and what we can do to have a good time?—R. E. M., and H. E. P., Cambridge City.

P. S. It is always public dances that we never have a good time. At private ones we have a fine time but there are so few of the latter that we have to go to public ones.

R. & H.

The fault may lie with yourselves. Perhaps you are arrogant or consider yourselves better than others. And on the other hand, the others may not be as refined as you are, and for that reason you are avoided. If the latter is true, you should be glad to know self-respect and are respected by those who won't dance with you.

CUT THIS OUT. IT'S WORTH MONEY. Put this out in a slip, enclose with 5c and mail it to Foley & Co., 2835 Sheffield Ave., Chicago, Ill., writing your name and address clearly. You will receive in return a trial package containing Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for coughs, colds and croup; Foley Kidney Pills for pains in sides and back; rheumatism backache, kidney and bladder ailments; and Foley's Cathartic Tablets, a wholesome and thoroughly cleansing cathartic for constipation, biliousness, headaches, and sluggish bowels. A. G. Luken & Co., 625-625 Main—Advertisement.

case, I looked up, but there are always cars hurrying in those streets, and by the time the boy opened his eyes and began to talk, there must have been two minutes passed. You know how confusing it is yourself, sir, in that jam on the street."

"Never mind that. Then what did you do?"

Obviously the policeman who made the arrest was trying to cover up any possible negligence on his part. And even I recalled how easily one car might lose itself in the dense traffic of lower New York in the middle of the day.

"Call the prisoner," some one said. I jumped a little. Prisoner—what a terrible name! Bud, his face chalk white, walked up to the witness chair and took the oath.

Tomorrow—His Evidence.

ORGANIZE NEW CLASS
IN DRESS FORM WORK

Baxter school has been pressed into service as a point where dress form making can be taught, according to an announcement Tuesday. So crowded have the night school classes become, that it has been found necessary to organize a separate class to be taught each Monday and Friday, at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Miss Bertha Larsh, of the high school vocational department, will be in charge.

As it takes only two and one-half weeks to teach a unit of five persons the art of making dress forms, it is now planned to include garment fitting as part of the instruction offered at the Baxter school.

Practical home nursing has made a definite appeal to busy housewives, and two classes are maintained by the night school management. One class is taught at 3:30 o'clock each Monday and Wednesday afternoons in the high school, by Miss Elizabeth Jones, and the other class on Monday and Wednesday nights by Miss P. E. Taylor, of the Red Cross. There is still room for several more persons in the night class.

CHOOSE LIEUT. FOX

Word was received Monday night from Adjutant General Henry B. Smith, of Indianapolis, that Lieutenant Henry Fox has been appointed recruiting officer of the national guard company now being organized in this city. This gives Lieut. In order to hold these offices the men must be regular army men, and these three men are army reserve officers.

It was announced that the armory would be kept open on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights and on Sunday afternoon, for recruiting purposes.

Be Better Looking—Take
Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

AUDIENCE CHARMED
BY FINE TECHNIQUE
OF FIRST CONCERT

A finished performance which was one of the best examples ever displayed of the community's exceptional musical assets was given by the new Richmond Symphony orchestra in the first of the season's concerts at the Coliseum Monday evening.

Under the guidance of an able conductor and experienced musician, Prof. J. E. Maddy, the orchestra presented an ensemble that was never once jumbled but which played together with an ease and harmony that asserted itself even through the most difficult passages.

Strides Forward.

Strides forward have been made since the complimentary concert last fall, and even greater accomplishments may be expected of the orchestra, it is said.

A usually unimpressive audience showed no little amount of evident enjoyment and enthusiasm over the performance. The execution of the symphony "Unfinished" was well done, the dramatic climaxes being executed in the most polished style. The singing melodies carried through by the string instruments have been one of the most popular of Schubert's compositions.

Probably the pieces that delighted the audience most were the two short numbers, "Woodland Whispers," and "Czardas-Dance Styrienne." The first was an evasive, imaginative bit full of rhythm and appealing melody while the second was an irresistible and lively Hungarian dance.

Charm Audience.

The finest technique, feeling, and interpretation were achieved in the rendition of the beautifully tragic "March Slav" by Tschalkowsky. From the moment the violins and basses took up the weird introductory measures to the climax the orchestra carried the audience with it.

Madame Zentz, the concert soloist, a singer possessing the highest powers of artistry, deserved the enthusiasm and persistent applause which her numbers won from the audience. The aria "Ove, Hear the Gentle Lark," a number in which the voice soaring in trills and roulades imitates the notes of the flute which she sang with it, was the only selection which gave Madame Zentz an opportunity to display to the fullest her brilliant voice. Her tones are exceptionally sweet and her presence is one of endearing graciousness combined with much charm and beauty.

At the close of her second song the soloist was given an encore to which she responded with "Love's in My Heart" and "The Icicle."

COMMUNITY SERVICE
COMMITTEE ENLARGED

Enlargement of the Richmond community service committee from 15 members to a committee of about 50 is the goal to be reached before anything further is done. With this in view, Miss S. Ethel Clark, social service secretary, was appointed chairman of a committee to select persons interested in the work, at a meeting held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms late Monday afternoon. Dr. L. F. Ross and the Rev. J. L. Baer, who comprise the remainder of the committee.

When names of persons interested in the community spirit being fostered has been secured by the membership committee, they will be turned over to C. B. Root, local representative of the national community service organization. Mr. Root has been interviewing the persons and securing them for the permanent committee of 50, which will be the executive body of community service here.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Life's an easy way to save $2, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home, but have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2 1/4 ounces of Pinex, then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat troubles, whooping cough, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used by generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2 1/4 ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

KEEP URIC ACID OUT OF JOINTS

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Eat Less Meat and Take Salts.

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly; keep the feet dry; avoid exposure; eat less meat, but drink plenty of good water. Rheumatism is a direct result of eating too much meat and other rich foods that produce uric acid which is absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate the uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.—Advertisement.

VOCATIONAL FEATURES
TOLD BY PUBLICITY

News items covering the various features of vocational training in Richmond and other cities of the state will be compiled by the vocational department here and made into a news letter or pamphlet for distribution throughout the state, according to Vocational Director Fulz, Tuesday. This plan of gathering interesting material regarding vocational activities and printing them for public information is new in Indiana, but has been followed for several years in other states. The news features will cover such subjects as types of work carried on, methods of publicity in and out of school, and original contributions by students. Richmond's letter is to be printed here and sent to Indianapolis by Feb. 11. Distribution of the news letters will be about a week later.

Other Indiana cities to issue news letters include Evansville, material to be in by Feb. 25; Logansport, March 11; Anderson, March 25; South Bend, April 8, and Marion, April 22.
