Quite different from the popular caricature of this famous woman, is the real Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst of London, England, noted suffrage leader. Rather is she a quiet, unassuming little lady with charming manners and a most fascinating personality.

She has been in America for almost a year now doing special lecture work and she has met with popular favor everywhere she has appeared.

When the war broke out Mrs. Pankhurst quit abruptly in her famous battle for suffrage. She threw all her forces behind the government and thereby became one of the most popular women in England. Then England reciprocated before the war was over by granting the very thing which Mrs. Pankhurst had been fighting for through so many years.

Following the war, Mrs. Pankhurst visited Russia, where she studied Russian conditions and bolshevism first hand. She believes that proper use of the ballot by women will assist in putting an end to the menace of bolshevism, which today is spreading through the world. She talks on bolshevism with authority, for she saw it first hand in Russia and she fearlessly proclaims its dangers in America. Mrs. Pankhurst is a gifted speaker, gentle, appealing, logical, and beyond words, convincing. Everywhere she has appeared this famous little English lady has won a host of friends and admirers through her personal charm.

Countess, once Painter to Czar, now in America

which must be completed in order to hold leases or which would result in heavy loss should operation be suspended.

It was stated here today that the South Pennsylvania Oil company had ordered the suspension of 31 strings of tools and the crews laid off. This company has also reduced its force of laborers, the water gang, pipe line gang and employees in other departments.

Pumpers, who have for some time been looking after a given number of wells, have been laid off and the wells divided among other crews.

Bonus Suspended. Employees of the Eureka pipe line company, who have been receiving a bonus in addition to their regular wages, have been notified of the abandonment of the plan and each man has been placed on a straight wage scale. Other oil and pipe line companies have followed these same general retrenchment policies and are planning no additional work until the slump in crude is over.

Natural gas companies, operating in this field, have not yet commenced to retrench, but persons close to the industry declare that drilling generally will be postponed until operating costs can be reduced.

Divided in Opinion. This is the first general plan for reduced operations in this field since 1914 and is one of the very few since the field was opened 31 years ago.

Oil men are divided in opinion as to the duration of the slump. In some quarters three dollars a barrel oil is being predicted while in others the opinion is held that reduced production will quickly return prosperity to the industry.

PITTSBURGH ENTERS CAMPAIGN AGAINST HIGHER RENT PRICES

(By Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 2.—City council and the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh have entered the campaign against higher rents in this city. The councilmanic finance committee in a communication to the city clerk today requested that a resolution be prepared for introduction in council next Monday, authorizing the city to advertise the fact that increased taxes this year do not justify large increases in rents.

Commenting on the action of council, J. H. Dailey, a councilman, said he had been advised that certain landlords had increased rents 50 per cent, claiming that they were forced to make the advance because of the higher tax rate. "The increase in taxes," Mr. Dailey said, "amounts to less than five per cent."

Rent Increases.

Rent increases in the residential sections of Pittsburgh this year range from 33 to 75 per cent, while in the business district the advance is from 50 to 100 per cent, according to those in close touch with the situation.

Oil men are divided in opinion as to the duration of the slump. In some quarters three dollars a barrel oil is being predicted while in others the opinion is held that reduced production will quickly return prosperity to the industry.

The question of rent increases will be taken up at an "excessive rents" mass meeting, called by the Chamber of Commerce for Feb. 12. Several of the tenants who asked the chamber to enter the fight, said they had been advised by owners to buy their houses or move, and they claimed that prices for the houses were exorbitant.
