The music is expected to come before the end of the week so plans to obtain the community festival chorus of between 200 and 300 voices to present Hayden's "Creation," were discussed.

Heading a small committee on chorus membership is Conductor J. E. Maddy of the Symphony orchestra. Others on the committee are Mrs. Charles Marvel, Miss Alice Knollenberg, Prof. H. W. Zimmerman, and Clifford Piehl.

SPANISH TOREADOR ENTERTAINS FLEET

LIMA, Per. Feb. 3.—This city and Callao, six miles westward, shared in the program of entertainment arranged for the officers and crews of the warships making up the United States Atlantic fleet. The feature of the day's activities was a reception given by Admiral Henry B. Wilson on board his flagship Pennsylvania, which was planned as a return of the courtesies shown the higher officers of the fleet at the presidential banquet Tuesday night.

During the afternoon Peruvian and United States sailors were to compete in sporting events and a lecture was given in this city by Harry Ermin Eard, who was charged by the Peruvian government with the task of reorganizing its educational system. A reception at the United States embassy in this city was the concluding feature of the day's ceremonies.

A large number of American sailors attended a bull fight at the fair grounds here yesterday and saw Belmonte, the famous Spanish toreador, in action. Admiral Wilson occupied the presidential box, being accompanied by the members of his staff. Belmonte was slightly injured in an encounter with an especially fierce bull, but courageously secured another sword and killed the animal. Belmonte was given the ears as a recognition of his good work, and other bull fighters who made their appearance, were well received.

AMERICA'S HANDCLASP CURE FOR UNREST, SAYS SAMUEL M. RALSTON

SAMUEL M. RALSTON

Termining the present unsettled condition of America and other countries of the world a "nervous" condition, and calling the attention of his audience to the many "classes" springing up, former Governor Samuel M. Ralston of Indiana, addressing the Kiwanis club at noon Thursday, said that this condition would continue until America gave the handclasp to the countries of Europe and agreed upon disarmament.

Throughout his speech Mr. Ralston declared several times that what he had to say was as a citizen and not as a partisan.

"You will never have this nervous tension relaxed until nations come to an understanding on disarmament. I do not think the clause of the league of nations referring to the disarmament of nations was discussed as fully as it should have been. We will not have peace here or across the water until they know that some sort of arrangement between all of us is agreed upon."

Says We Are Responsible.
"They will never agree upon disarmament while we are spending billions for battleships. The progress that is to come out of existing conditions depends upon Uncle Sam."

Mr. Ralston recently was in Europe, and forcefully told his impressions gained there. Before advocating disarmament as the solution to a relief from unrest and nervous tension felt all over the world, Mr. Ralston declared most vehemently against proposed state legislative amendments making it easy to levy taxes. He quoted John Marshall, chief justice of the United States in the early nineteenth century, and Thomas Jefferson, both of whom declared "the power of taxation is the power to destroy."

He said that under the present proposed amendment there would be no restraint on the legislature in the future, and that taxation could be levied heavily without regard to the public.

Warns Kiwanians.
When Mr. Ralston opened his arguments against the proposed amendment, he hastened to say that he was not aiming at the Republicans who favored high tariff, or Democrats advocating free trade.

"If I were to speak against tariff," he humorously remarked Mr. Ralston, "I would have chosen another community." Following the laugh this provoked, he said that he liked to feel sure of converts when he preached. Mr. Ralston also warned the Kiwanians against legislation making the position of superintendent of public education an appointive office instead of elective, as is the case at present.

Mr. Ralston pleased to classify himself as a "plain, blunt, unassuming American citizen," in his opening remarks. "I do not pretend to be educated or cultured," he said, "I am just one of the greatest things on earth."

Mr. Ralston spoke affectionately of several of his old friends of Richmond, among whom were Dr. S. E. Smith and B. B. Johnson, his former private secretary. About Mr. Johnson he said: "You will have to go a great way to find a brainier man. While I was governor I sometimes thought he ought to have occupied the place in my stead."

Pays Sly Tribute.
In his introductory statements, Mr. Ralston said he was not so well acquainted with citizens of Richmond as he was with citizens of other cities of considerable size in Indiana. "The truth of it is," he slyly remarked, "that I have always regarded you as a bunch of highbrows, with your music, art and education."

About 25 local Kiwanians are to go to Winchester Thursday night to attend the charter meeting of the Kiwanis club of that city.

Gus Hoelscher reported on the proposal of motorizing the street cleaning department, but action was deferred until the next meeting.

Frank P. Chaffee, new secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce was introduced, and spoke very briefly.

Robert Wiechman won the attendance prize of 50 gallons of gasoline, given by Ed N. Wilson.

The next rehearsal of the Kiwanis minstrel will be held at 2:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon at the Weisbrod music store.
