WOMEN VOTERS FORM LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM (By Associated Press) INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 9.—The Indiana League of Women Voters has completed the legislative program which it seeks written into law by the state legislature. It includes three measures:

The child labor and school attendance bill.

The woman's eight hour day. The mothers' guardian bill.

The last measure is ready for introduction in the house by Representative Bedgood of Lafayette, while the other two measures are pending in house and senate committees, with prospects of early consideration in both houses.

The league's new measure is another step toward granting women equal rights with men. It provides that mothers are equal guardians with their husbands of the care, custody and education of their children. Indiana now has no law of this sort, but the practice has been to follow the English common law accepting the father as sole guardian of children. Nineteen states, however, have the equal guardianship law.

Mrs. A. H. Beardsley of Elkhart is president of the league, Mrs. E. A. Gould of Peru, is legislative chairman, and Miss Kate Cox of Peru legislative secretary.
