

PLAN FOR MARKETING GRAIN PROVIDES FOR TWO CONTRACT FORMS

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, March 28.—Two contracts are provided for in the national plan for marketing grain co-operatively proposed by the Farmers' Grain Marketing Committee of Seventeen, according to a statement by C. H. Gustafson, chairman of the committee, made public here today.

"The contract is expected to run about five years," said Mr. Gustafson's statement, "but the exact period will not be determined until the conference in Chicago, April 6, at which ratification of the plan will be taken by delegates from the grain growing states of the nation."

Both include Elevator.
"One contract will be made between the grain grower and his local co-operative elevator and the national grain marketing agency. These contract forms are now being drawn up by competent legal assistance under the supervision of Clifford Thorne, of Chicago, an attorney and member of the committee. The general principles of the contract forms, however, have been decided and it only remains to put them in legal shape."

The contract made by the grower with his local co-operative elevator will provide for the exclusive delivery of all surplus grain not needed for seed and feed purposes. The contract made by the local co-operative elevator with the national's selling agency will, in turn, provide for the exclusive sale of the grower member's grain through the sales facilities of the national selling agency.

Still Leaves Choice Open.
"These contractual relations will not infringe upon the privilege of choice which the individual farmer has of deciding which method of marketing he may wish to employ, that is, consignment, direct sale to co-operative elevators, or pool. The growers at any local station will always have the alternative of contracting to pool their grain locally and selling as one unit through the national sales agency. In the same way, the contract will contain provisions authorizing two or more local companies to pool their grain, when approved by at least 75 per cent of the members of each company."

"Farmers' co-operative elevators that are now operating on the patronage dividend basis will need to make only minor changes in order to contract with the national selling organization. Where a local co-operative elevator, which meets the requirements of the contract, does not exist, the new marketing plan contemplates that the growers will form a local co-operative organization and either enter into a separate contract of their own with a local elevator to store and load their grain or make arrangements to buy, build or lease an elevator.
"The contract running between the local elevator and the national agency, provides that if the local elevator is not truly co-operative, it may be given a reasonable period of time to make such necessary changes in its form of organization as will meet the requirements for doing business through the national selling organization."

HAMMOND.—The body of Vernon Grant, first drowning victim of the season in the Colimet region, has been recovered from the East Chicago canal in Hammond. Grant, deceived about the warmth of the water, dove into the canal and was seized with cramps. He drowned in full view of companions unable to save him.

SHELBYVILLE.—Charity work, which has been carried on here during the winter from the city hall, was discontinued Saturday evening, according to an announcement made by Mayor Lee B. Hoop. The warm weather of the week has reduced the number of calls to such an extent that further assistance is not believed needed at this time.

MAR DEL PLATA MUCH DIFFERENT FROM SEA RESORTS IN NORTH

(By Associated Press)

BUENOS AIRES, March 28.—To the American accustomed to the hilarity of Coney Island, the gaiety of Atlantic City or the furious sport of the California beaches, Argentina's principal seaside resort, Mar del Plata, is a surprise, for one can really rest there.

He sees no merry-go-rounds, no scenic railways, no thrilling devices of any kind. He catches sight of few "mermaids" disporting on the sand. He is charmed, or shocked, by no frivolous or scant bathing togs. He sees no running about, no leap-frog, no surf-riding, no dancing on the sand to the strains of distant music.

Instead, he finds a sober multitude quietly promenading or loitering in chairs decorously chatting, or sipping drinks. He sees a smartly dressed crowd both of men and women. When fashionable Miss Argentina hies her for the beach, she equips herself with a trunkful of Paris gowns.

Little Time on Beach.
She usually takes an ocean dip every morning between 11 and 12, at a time in a bathing costume that falls modestly below the knees, and seldom carries between the surf and her bath house. She may sometimes play a bit at tennis in the morning, too, and in the afternoon try a round of golf on the excellent links up the beach. In the evenings she will dance at the hotel or at the villas of friends, but always chaperoned by her mother.

She dresses often and effectively and strolls along the "Rambla" looking wistfully out to sea, sometimes having her picture snapped by one of the many ambulant photographers with quick developer outfits who need only a discreet nod as an order.

Mar del Plata has a permanent winter population of about 30,000 but throughout the southern summer its expensive hotels and costly villas shelter several thousand of Argentina's fashionable folk, mostly from Buenos Aires, while there are numerous cheaper hostels for those of lesser means.

$500 IN FURS STOLEN FROM RUSHVILLE STORE
RUSHVILLE, Ind., March 28.—The theft of $500 worth of furs from the fur department of the E. R. Casady store was discovered here shortly before noon Saturday. The thieves are thought to have gained an entrance into the store some time during the night by climbing a pole at the rear of the store and opening a window on the second floor.

Sirens on any automobiles, other than police and fire department motor cars and ambulances, are prohibited in Kansas City, Mo.

Transparent Man May Be Possible

LONDON, March 28.—The "Invisible Man," described by H. G. Wells, is being brought within the range of possibility by M. Wassilief, a Russian doctor now in Paris. He has succeeded in producing, if not an invisible, at least a transparent man.

"I have whole human bodies rendered transparent in my laboratory at Petrograd," he said in an interview. "I have also succeeded in making growing plants transparent without killing them."
In his laboratory the doctor has various specimens of the human embryo, from the ovum to four months. The transparency is that of gelatin, not of crystal, and by means of colored injections the brain, heart, etc., can be clearly seen in the latter specimens.

Well's dream in the "Invisible Man" has, moreover, turned out to be prophetic, for the methods of the Russian doctor closely resemble those described in the novel.
"A ray of light striking a liquid," explains the doctor, "is broken and forms a certain angle of refraction. This angle varies with each liquid."

"I have made a mixture of liquids according to their coefficient of refraction. This mixture offers a maximum of transparency."

"I impregnate the organic matter with this mixture, and at the same time inject other liquids in order to dissolve the chemical salts."

"Invisibility is impossible, so far, nor have I yet succeeded in producing these effects upon living animals." The doctor refuses to disclose the name of the liquids used, preferring to wait until his book on the subject appears, about two months hence.

CITY WANTS COMMUNITY HALL

HILL HONORS EARLHAM WITH VALUABLE RELIC

Dr. Allen D. Hole, curator of the Joseph Moore Museum of Earlham College, announces the recent gift from E. Gurney Hill, of this city, of a silk badge which was worn by Mr. Hill's father, Joseph Hill, in England 75 years ago at the time of the agitation there for the repeal of the Corn laws. The badge bears the likeness of the Right Honorable John Bright, M. P., and also words characterizing him as follows:

"The Apostle of Free Trade," and "The Eloquent and Undaunted Advocate of the Rights of his Fellow Men."

It will be remembered that John Bright was a co-worker with Richard Cobden for the repeal of the vicious corn laws which had so increased suffering among the poorer classes in England that the conditions were becoming unendurable. It required, however, the most vigorous efforts lasting for the years from 1841 to 1846 to square the repeal of the obnoxious laws. Cobden had said to Bright in 1841, "We will never rest till the corn laws are repealed," and they addressed meetings all over England within that time, succeeding at last in forcing the action for which they sought.

The badge is remarkable in its workmanship, as well as for its unusual historical interest. Unlike most badges produced now, these Anti-Corn-Law badges were not printed, but woven. The likeness of John Bright shown to be remarkably accurate when compared with his published portraits, as well as the lettering, is produced by weaving in of colored threads among the white threads that go to make up the background. The colors shown are, besides the white and black in the portrait, red and blue in the lettering and in the royal emblems which appear at the bottom. The badge has also additional interest and value because of the fact that E. Gurney Hill's father's home was near the home of John Bright and that Mr. Hill had personal acquaintance with the great English Quaker statesman.

MEETING TODAY'S CONDITIONS

NEVER before has the country passed through such a wave of prosperity as that we have just experienced—never before has the inability to produce sufficient manufactured goods forced prices so high. But at last we have reached the turning point. The conditions of today make it imperative that furniture come down.

THOUGH we have on our floors stocks purchased at war-time prices, we must sell at today's reduced prices and we are willing to take a loss to do it. We have marked down every piece of furniture to a price considered a good bargain, even in these times. Original COST HAS BEEN DISREGARDED.

The pendulum, right now, is at the bottom of the swing. These prices we quote are the lowest possible prices that can be quoted on furniture. The wise man will buy NOW before the upward swing—and save money.
