

College Girl, Living in Box Car, Has Bad Attack of Wanderlust

In a scrubby little box car in the Gambrian freight yards of the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad, three miles southwest of Canton, O., lives Miss Lucille Waltz, "weighmistress" and disciple of the open road.

She affixed the former after her name last August. It won't remain there long, for she is feeling again the call of vagabondage. The latter title was born with her, "I guess because there are ministers and newspapermen in my ancestry, and they move around a lot!"

Miss Waltz lives in the box car with the family of an official of the yards. The yard "offices" are housed in two box cars on a side switch; Miss Waltz's home is a half mile down the track.

"How would you like to live in a box car, with the railroad yards for your front door, and the open fields and woods for your back yard? I have found it interesting and comfortable," Miss Waltz said.

Miss Waltz is pretty, well educated and in her twenties. Due to the wanderlust she has been:

College student, reporter on a small town paper, telephone operator at a city exchange, waitress at a summer resort, traveling companion to a woman of means in Chicago, and school teacher.

Ready to Move.
Six or eight months in one place, and she is ready to move on. "I've stayed here longer than usual," she said, "but I suppose I'll be moving soon."

"Of course my family think it's awful that I am a regular tramp, but why should one not see things while earning a living?"

Pennville, Ind., is Miss Waltz's home town. After graduating from high school, she worked on the only paper there, and was everything from the "printer's devil to assistant editor."

The next fall, she entered the Indiana state university as a freshman. Going to Indianapolis with a college chum at the end of her first year, she took a position in the office of a manufacturing concern.

"My chum had to take a state examination in order to get a license to teach in Indiana, and because she did not want to go alone, I went with her. Rather than idle the time away, I took the examination. It happened that I passed and she did not. I had never thought of teaching, but now that I had a license, the idea seemed worth trying, so that winter I taught at Mugsdore, Ind."

Likes Teaching.
"There was a certain appeal about teaching, and at the end of the term, I went to the state normal school at Muncie. When the superintendent of the Akron school district came to Muncie in search of teachers, I signed up with him to teach at Ira, near Akron. I always had wanted to come to Ohio."

"At Ira I met the most interesting person I ever had the privilege of knowing. She had been a professor of languages at one of the larger American colleges, and had traveled over most of Europe. She had retired and lived with her sister, a quaint person who might have stepped out of a Dickens novel. They had taken up violet raising."

Twice a year, in the spring and fall, Miss Waltz returns home. Last year, she spent six weeks there, owing to the illness of her mother, the longest time she had spent at home since entering college.

WHOLE TEXAS CITY WILL WEAR COTTON GARMENTS TO MARK "COTTON SUNDAY"

Miss Dolie Hilbert, an "all-cotton" maid of Dallas, Texas.

Miss Dolie Hilbert is only one of the pretty maids of Dallas, Texas, who believes the silk worm is an unnecessary adjunct to feminine charm. She is proving her theory by wearing nothing but cotton. Her gingham frock, her hose, her canvas slippers and even her lingerie were produced in the fields of the sunny south. Miss Hilbert is the daughter of Mrs. J. G. Hilbert, president of the Dallas housewives' chamber of commerce, which is sponsoring the "wear cotton" campaign.

this year. Each told his story and the class guessed who he was. Some of the characters were Betsy Ross, Mary of Plymouth, Columbus, Uncle Sam, Wm. Penn, Col. Warner, Daniel Boone, Miles Standish, John Smith and Pocahontas. Myrl Smith representing the sophomore history class has drawn and framed an interesting map of Ancient Greece. The Glee club will repeat their operetta "Love Pirates of Hawaii", May 20, here.

Recent Chess Parse Largest in History

Although the loser in the chess tourney for the world title, Lasker, got more money than did Capablanca. The German master was given $13,000 of the $25,000 subscribed by Cuban sportsmen, but had to foot all his expenses. Capablanca received the other $12,000 of the largest sum ever put up for a chess match in the long history of the game.

Owing to the shortage of small change in Paris, half the beggars have disappeared from the streets.

At the New Low Prices For 1921

THE NEW DAVIS

Offers More Than Any of its Competitors

PRICE is an important consideration in the purchase of an automobile—but price must always be measured in terms of value. More important than the price is the quality and the value which the price buys.

In the 1921 Davis the price is low and the value it buys is exceptional. Value is the one outstanding characteristic of the Davis.

The Davis is a fine motor car—fine in materials, fine in construction, and fine in the beauty that skillful designing has endowed it with. For twelve years the Davis has been "Built of the Best." For twelve years it has maintained leadership in its class through sheer merit. Now, at the new low prices, with manufacturing and equipment standards even improved, the Davis is a motor car investment of remarkable value.

Compare the Davis with higher-priced cars costing hundreds of dollars more. The Davis welcomes your comparison by any standard—beauty, performance, style, value!
