WAR INFLUENCE SEEN IN DOMESTIC LIFE OF ENGLISH PEOPLE (By Associated Press) LONDON, July 6.—Since Easter the divorce courts have been working at high pressure to clear off an unprecedented accumulation of arrears, which, added to a steady stream of new cases, threatened at one time to overwhelm the physical capacity of the bench.

It needed the assistance of a number of retired judges to make headway against the avalanche of suits, with the result that they have been disposed of at the average rate of two score or more per day.

The Lord Chancellor, Lord Birkenhead, himself lent assistance by acting as an ordinary judge in the courts. Reviewing the position, he said: "The war has left a degree of unrest which has spread into almost every sphere of modern life, and the influence of which is likely to be felt for an indefinite period in domestic relationships."

Army Destroys Homes "Nineteen out of twenty of the cases in arrears," Lord Birkenhead added, "had their causes in the war or consequences of the war. The date when he joined the army was the early chronological landmark of petitioner after petitioner, from which date the familiar and melancholy story of weakness on the part of the wife."

It is Lord Birkenhead's opinion that matrimonial suits may not return at least for a generation, to the pre-war level.

The anomaly of the present situation has revived controversies on the inadequacies of English divorce laws. Mrs. Sexton-Tiedeman, secretary of the Divorce Law Reform Union, estimates that the number of wrecked marriages in the United Kingdom is higher in proportion to the population than in the United States.
