

PUBLIC TO RECEIVE FAVORS TONIGHT AT MILK PLANT OPENING

The Wayne Dairy Products company is arranging to entertain a host of visitors Saturday evening at its opening reception and housewarming at South Sixth and A streets. Thousands of beautiful white roses have been ordered for presentation to the women, and there will be milk to drink for all comers.

The machinery of this new and most modern creamery and dairy plant will be in operation. Milk will be bottled in the presence of the visitors.

The guests of the evening will be received by members of the reception committee at the entrances on South A street, and will be escorted through the plant. This will enable them to follow the various processes through which the milk passes on its way to the consumer, either in bottles or in the form of butter, cottage cheese, or condensed.

The sightseers will begin where the milk is received in cans from the dairy farms and follow the white stream through numerous processing processes. The plant is largely fully equipped, has been in successful operation for several days. The reception and housewarming was arranged to afford the opportunity to look it over.

A large reception committee, headed by Russell White, will take care of all visitors. All the officers and directors will act on this committee, together with such others as may be needed to properly take care of the guests of the evening.

This is the only condenser in eastern Indiana. That section will be run only as surplus milk is provided.

FIVE MINUTE RITES MEAN AMERICA AND GERMANY AT PEACE

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—Ratifications of the German-American peace treaty were exchanged here last night at the foreign office between Ellis Loring Drexel, American commissioner, and Dr. Karl Wirth, chancellor and minister of foreign affairs.

The ceremony, which means a return of friendly relations between Germany and the United States, took place at 6:30 o'clock. It consumed less than five minutes. The exchange was to have occurred at noon, but owing to numerous other appointments of Chancellor Wirth, Mr. Drexel was compelled to await a summons to the foreign office.

This came by telephone, and the American commissioner, accompanied by Frederick R. Dolbaur, secretary of the American mission, motored to the foreign office, where they were received by Dr. Wirth and Dr. Haniel von Haimhausen, undersecretary for foreign affairs.

Both plenipotentiaries signed in duplicate, the protocol certifying that the ratifications had been duly executed.

The duplicate copy of the treaty, containing Germany's ratifying preamble, which will rest in the archives of the state department at Washington, is bound in dark red leather and tied with ribbons representing the republican colors of Germany. It bears the signatures of "Ebert" and "Wirth."

The preamble is considerable briefer than that of the copy which Mr. Drexel delivered to the German government. It merely records the fact that the authorities of the United States, having approved the treaty, the president of Germany pledges its fulfillment.

SOCIAL SERVICE BUREAU MOVES SATURDAY INTO ENLARGED QUARTERS AFTER 7 YEARS

The Richmond Social Service bureau, located in the county court house for the past four years has outgrown its quarters in that building. Saturday, seven years after the bureau had started work in this city, was given over to moving the records of the institution into its new home on North Eighth street, next to the high school.

Much larger working quarters, better facilities for accommodating the patrons of the bureau, and a more convenient location, are among the advantages cited by officials of the Social Service bureau for the change.

Rev. George C. Burbanck, head of the department of social education emphasized the need of the institution for quarters that would allow it to function properly.

"The court house is run on a business schedule," he said, "and the needs of society, which the bureau must serve, are not run on a business schedule. People do not get sick on schedule, but when they do fall ill, they want relief at once. We wanted the bureau accessible at any time."

Good Location. That it is easily reached is evidenced by the fact that it is less than two blocks from the heart of the city. Located between the high school, on the north, and St. Paul's Episcopal church on the south, the building, which was formerly occupied by Dr. J. C. Blossom, is ideally arranged for the work which will be carried on within its walls.

Each department of the Social Service bureau will have separate quarters in which their work may be carried on in complete harmony, without confusion of detail. Entering the building from the front, the observer sees on his right, a large well lighted room which will be used for committee meetings, and for the office of the executive secretary of the bureau, Miss S. Ethel Clark.

On the left of the hallway, two rooms have been reserved, the first as a reception room for visitors, and back of it, a consultation room, in which clients may be taken for private interviews.

Adequate Lighting. At the end of the hall, about half way to the rear of the house is a long narrow room, extending clear across the building. Large windows at each end of the room insure adequate lighting. Present plans are to run a partition across the middle of the room, and turn it over to the Red Cross work carried on by the bureau.

Rooms upstairs are arranged on the same general plan as downstairs. In the southwest corner of the second floor is located the room in which the health department will conduct clinics and carry on such other activities as it finds necessary.

Across the hall, two rooms will be turned over to office work and the storing of supplies for the two nurses employed by the health division. This division cares for such problems as relate to the public health, including adult mothers of small children, milk distribution, visits from nurses and the like.

Two nurses, Miss Virginia A. Jones and Miss Katherine Daub, have been employed by this division. The demand for their services has grown so great, however, that another, Miss Shute, will take up the work within a few weeks.

Have Storeroom. One room upstairs has been reserved for a storeroom in which clothing will be held subject to call from people in need.

A new departure in the work of the bureau is that which will be carried on in a small room downstairs, formerly the kitchen. This room is being equipped with a simple outfit of cooking utensils, and lessons in domestic science of the simpler sort will be given at intervals in this room.

When the Social Service bureau was reorganized in 1917, it started work with four affiliated organizations. Last year it had 11. This year it has 20, and a board of directors numbering 52, made up of representatives of these organizations. Howard A. Dill is president of the bureau, and members of the house committee which arranged for the new quarters are: A. J. Harwood, chairman; Thomas Tarkenton and Mrs. Joseph H. Mills.

Aids Suffering. Many activities are carried on under the direction of the bureau. In each and every one, the primary object of the organization, that of saving the taxpayers' money, by making relief as far as possible, and obviating the need for relief as much as possible, is never forgotten.

The work of the Richmond Social Service bureau, according to statements of its officials, is always constructive. It is not a relief organization in the strictest sense of the word, as it aims to strike at the root of the trouble in most cases.

In every community, there are unfortunate, who find it necessary to fall back on outside aid at certain periods. The bureau takes these cases, gets them on their feet, and sets them to making their own way once more. Many an individual has been saved from becoming a public charge through such action. Hundreds of dollars are saved the county and the taxpayers annually through such work.

Prevention is Aim.

In this connection, the statement of Rev. George C. Burbanck, head of the department of social education of the bureau, is of interest. Rev. Burbanck head of the department of social education of the bureau, is of interest. Rev. Burbanck asserts the bureau is working on the assumption that prevention is better than cure. He says:

"The Social Service motto is 'cure if you must, prevent if you can.' We aim to diagnose social conditions, find the source of the evil condition, and eliminate that source."

Education of the giver is as important as education of the person who receives aid, according to him. To this end, the social education department has taken steps to circulate all information regarding reports of state institutions, which have inmates from Wayne county. Then these reports are applied to conditions locally.

Seek Information. Questionnaires are sent of heads of these institutions, and they are asked to state what steps should be taken to prevent other cases of a like nature, coming from this county. In other words, the bureau aims eventually at making relief work unnecessary. It proceeds on the theory that these institutions exist because conditions in Wayne county are not right, and should be remedied.

Besides its public health service department, the bureau has general supervision of the venereal disease clinic, which is in direct charge of Dr. S. E. Smith, at Easthaven. A county-wide tuberculosis committee is also numbered among the activities. This committee, which has representatives in every township is under the direction of Dr. George B. Hunt. At present it is co-operating with the state board of health in putting on a tuberculosis educational campaign in the county.

Other Department Heads. Mrs. J. F. Hornaday is chairman of the family welfare department. The bureau also conducts the home service department for the Wayne county chapter of the Red Cross. Miss Margaret Starr is at the head of this division which looks after ex-service men.

Sam Fred has charge of the finance and membership division, and Horace Kramer is chairman of the health division. The Social Service bureau also conducts all investigation into cases of distress which would otherwise be handled by the county. It insures against waste of funds and avoids duplication of relief.

Bodies Affiliated. The following organizations are affiliated with the Richmond Social Service bureau: Rotary club, Wayne county chapter American Red Cross, Wayne County Medical society, Woman's club, Richmond Day Nursery association, Penny club, Ministerial association, Kiwanis club, the Union Mission.

Richmond Teachers' federation, Central Trades and Labor Council, Salvation Army, Home for Friendless Women, Women's Auxiliary of Harry Ray Post, J. W. Jay Dental Center, Richmond Chamber of Commerce, Richmond Community Service, Y. M. C. A., Richmond W. C. T. U. federation.

Ex-officio members are: W. G. Bate, superintendent of schools, William A. Bond, Judge, Wayne Circuit court, W. Howard Brooks, Auditor, Wayne county, J. O. Edgerton, Trustee of Wayne township.

Meetings are being conducted to keep the current topics of the day before the colored people of the city. It is planned to have the forum meet every Sunday afternoon, and to visit the various colored churches of the city.

LIBRARY INCREASING ITS STOCK OF BOOKS; SEEK BETTER GRADE

Many new books are being added to the shelves of the library as the result of many calls for books that are not on the library shelves, and which people are wanting. If a person wishes a book that is not at the library, and can convince the librarian of its value to the public, this book is purchased.

People are requested to see the librarian when they cannot get a book at the library. Every effort is being made to purchase the books that are in most demand.

Several new books are being read, and for which it has been necessary to have a waiting list. They are: Strachey's "Queen Victoria," and Wells' "Outline of History." Fred O'Brien's stories on the South Seas also are becoming very popular, and are never on the shelves.

All books concerning Richmond and Indiana are purchased by the local library, as soon as they are published. A complete record of the history of Richmond can be obtained.

Recommend Books. A new set of books recommended to all teachers of the city has been purchased at the recommendation of Superintendent of Schools W. G. Bate. This set of books is on the "Modern Method of Teaching," for teachers.

Books concerning the World war are being added to the library as soon as they are published. Calls for history and biographies are being made more than in previous years.

Books for drama are being used continually by the high school and by Earlham students.

Books are sent out to the schools in West Richmond in large numbers, so the people will not be compelled to come over to the library. This is especially so at the Sevastopol school.

Readers of Richmond are demanding a higher grade of books than what has been demanded in the last few years, according to the librarian.

Muscle Shoals Dam Leased Temporarily by Weeks

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Secretary of War Weeks to meet a power shortage emergency has granted a temporary lease of Muscle Shoals dam No. 2 to the Alabama Light and Power company.

The lease is revocable on a thirty days' notice. Secretary Weeks announced, and in no way prejudice the proposed plan for Henry Ford to take over the entire Muscle Shoals power and nitrate project from the government.

Controversy, Secretary Weeks admitted, might arise over his action, but he said he would not permit this to have any influence on a decision on the Ford proposal, modification of which he will discuss with Mr. Ford on Nov. 18.

The lease to the Alabama company calls for a compensation to the government of $10,000 a month and two cents a kilowatt hour on power developed. Lack of power which threatened a shutdown of mills in the southern territory persuaded Secretary Weeks to grant the temporary lease.

M. BRIAND DECLARES HUGHES' FRANKNESS INSURES RIGHT START

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Premier Briand of France came out of the disarmament conference animated and intensely interested in what had taken place.

"It is an excellent beginning," he said, "just what I should have expected from an American statement. Mr. Hughes took resolute hold of the question, boldly and courageously. No time spent over phrases. He closed at once with realities and laid down a clear, straightforward proposal, about which there can be no interpretive doubt. Now it is plain and understandable. It is fundamental in principle."

"What do you think of the program itself?" he was asked.

"It concerns France less than Great Britain and Japan, and I should like to know the views of the British and Japanese delegates. As for me, I think the American government has begun the conference in the right way with frank proposals that go to the bottom of the naval armament question."

M. Viviani an associate French delegate said he would rather M. Briand should speak in the name of all the delegates of France.

NEED TO GET BACK TO HONEST WORK, SAYS BUTLER COLLEGE HEAD

"Get back to honest work," was the message given the teachers of Richmond and Wayne county by Robert J. Ale, president of Butler college, Saturday afternoon. A total of 340 teachers was present at the meeting.

Reverence for the law and open-mindedness were other points stressed by the speaker. He said figures showed that the amount of work done before the war by three men was now being done by four, and that the general attitude was that of "getting by."

He also took a rap at the state course of study, saying that every person who had an idea or had made an effort to get it into the state course of study.

"Pupils used to take satisfaction in their studies, and when they were given a difficult problem they did not want others to work it out for them. It has been 10 years since I heard a pupil protest against receiving help," he said.

The city teachers' institute was held at the high school and Garfield school in the forenoon. Starting at 8:45 conferences of the administrative heads of the two schools, were held until 10 o'clock. At that hour, joint departmental conferences were held in various rooms of the high school.

Everyday Ad-Ventures

Jack Duncan had just moved his family, consisting of one wife, to town and he was hunting for a comfortable, reasonable apartment. Outside of that, he didn't have anything to worry about.

He started on his hunt gaily enough, but within a day or two he began to realize that he was up against a tough proposition. He found a comfortable apartment and a reasonable one all right, but the only trouble was that they were two different ones.

He hunted for a week and in the meantime—in between time—he and his wife were running up a hotel bill that looked like a first mortgage.

But just when it looked as though the apartment question had both his shoulders on the mat, he had a great "come-back" idea.

And then he called 2834-2872. And within three days, he had word of two attractive apartments that exactly met the demands of the "Wanted-To-Rent" ad he'd put in the Palladium's classified columns—and he and Mrs. Duncan were moving from the hotel to the one that was the most convenient to his business.
