

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON TUBERCULOSIS AT HIGH SCHOOL TONIGHT

An illustrated lecture, with slides showing various stages of the disease, causes and methods of prevention of tuberculosis will be given by Dr. H. W. McKane, of the tuberculosis division of the state board of health, in the high school auditorium Tuesday evening. The lecture will start at 8 o'clock.

Dr. McKane's lecture is the second local step taken in a campaign for the prevention of tuberculosis in this community. The campaign is educational in character.

At 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, the first free clinic was given in this city, when some 17 patients were examined by Dr. J. H. Stygall. The clinic was given under the auspices of the state tuberculosis association, which is co-operating with the tuberculosis division of the state board of health, in this work.

Seven "Positive" Cases

Of the 17 patients examined Monday, seven were found to be "positive," that is, afflicted with tuberculosis in more or less advanced form. Recommendations were made to these patients regarding their manner of living, and where they might obtain treatment.

"Tuberculosis is really a childhood disease," said Dr. McKane, Monday. "Eighty per cent of the people acquire this disease to some extent during life. Some say the percentage is even higher. Then some particular condition, a strenuous life, or some other factor, may bring it to the surface."

Dr. Stygall, who was here at the clinic Monday, has engagements up to Dec. 22 with the various Indiana counties. At each of these counties he conducts a clinic similar to that given here.

Dr. McKane lectured in Dublin Monday evening. He will appear in the high school auditorium at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening.

GRAIN GROWERS' CHIEF PROPOSES PROTECTION AGAINST FAKE BODIES

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—C. H. Gustafson, president of the United States Grain Growers, Inc., proposed to the National Association of State Marketing officials here today that it take steps for the protection of farmers from fake co-operative schemes. Mr. Gustafson heads the largest co-operative grain marketing corporation of farmers in the country.

A number of strictly commercial concerns have been floated under the guise of co-operative enterprise, he reported. Frequently these have just enough of the earmarks of co-operative organizations to mislead and misguide.

"The co-operative movement has attained a place and gathered a momentum that was undreamed of a few years ago," Mr. Gustafson declared. "Naturally it has created opportunity for fraud and misrepresentation by men and organizations with selfish and unworthy purposes."

Sustains Objections

Mr. Gustafson told the state marketing officials that no objection could be made to their discouragement of organizations having for their purpose merely the exploitation of cooperative sentiment.

"I believe that much good might be done," he said, "through a campaign of education that does not directly attack any one by name but which is directed toward driving home certain fundamentals of co-operation."

The co-operative grain marketing leader defended government marketing agencies which have been criticized for aiding farmers in developing the co-operative marketing of their products. He declared he was opposed to government aid and subsidy of any industry.

That Changes Everything—

When you begin to turn your thoughts to what you'll give Mother and Dad for Christmas and you make up your mind that this year you're going to pick out something that will show how much you appreciate them—

But after you've looked around and tried to find the sort of presents you want at the prices you can afford to pay, you begin to realize that you have a pretty tough problem on your hands—

And then you think that maybe the best thing to do would be to give them a handsome present together, but you can't hit on anything that you're sure they would both enjoy, and so you're no further along than you were before—

Until one of your friends asks you why you don't look through the "Gifts for the Home" in the Christmas Gift Suggestions columns of the Palladium's classified section—
