Action toward putting in a sewer system, and light and gas mains in the new Wrightland addition, as well as improving cross streets in the plat, was taken at the board of works meeting Thursday morning. Final hearing on the construction of a curb and gutter and eight feet of paving on each side of the Peachock road was held at the meeting. There were no remonstrances.

The resolution for the improving of cross streets in the Wrightland addition was confirmed after E. C. Wright, new owner of the plat, had given evidence that the gas and water mains would be laid with the sewers. The streets concerned are Northwest Sixth street, Sedgewick, and Northwest Seventh, all lying between Peachock road and Richmond avenue. Final hearing on the improvement of South E street from Fifth to Sixteenth streets, was held and the final assessment roll was approved.

The board issued an order requesting Robert Ashe to remove property which had been stored in the light plant office building.

Contract Arrangement.
At the suggestion of the city engineer, arrangements were made whereby contracts for city improvements for the coming year could be let on one day. That day was set at Feb. 2. All improvements on the program for the year 1922 will be let at the time.

The clerk was instructed to approve and place on record all appointments made by the board Monday when the new administration went into office.

DRY SPEAKERS SAY WETS SEEKING TO ELECT LAWMAKERS

The "wets" are trying to nullify the Eighteenth amendment in the next congress, by electing their representatives to that body, so that it will be possible to have beer and light wines sold on the public markets, declared D. Leigh Colvin, of New York, a member of the Flying Squadron, in his opening address of the squadron, at the First Christian church, Thursday afternoon.

Other squadron orators will speak here Thursday night and Friday and Saturday.

"If the wets gain control of congress in the next election it will mean that there will be beer of two and three-quarters percent and wines of 10 to 14 percent for sale," said Mr. Colvin. "This will mean that there will be a loss of lives in this country every year which was greater than the loss of life in the American army in the past world war."

"The wets now have their candidates selected for the next congress and will back them with every power at their disposal. These men are not drunkards or boozers, but well educated business men of much influence, and have a secret understanding with the wets of the country, that they are in favor of beer and light wines."

Approved by People.
The Eighteenth amendment is a well established one, as it was passed in 45 of the 48 states in the Union. Never in the history of the Union has there ever been a measure passed with such a majority as this one.

"If the wets are successful in electing their men to congress it will mean that there will be a new definition of the phrase 'intoxicating liquors' incorporated in a bill bringing back the beer and light wines."

Arthur E. Whitney, of Columbus, Ohio, spoke briefly, calling attention to the fact that wets were trying to influence voters by saying that if liquor again was made legal the revenue would make it possible for them to obtain a bonus. Mr. Whitney will deliver the main address at the Christian church Thursday night.
