

SEEK TO MEASURE NEEDS OF LIBRARIES IN NORMAL SCHOOLS

(By Associated Press)
EMPORIA, Kan., Jan. 6.—In carrying out its assignment to apply "a measuring stick" to normal school teachers' college libraries, the committee on normal school libraries, appointed by the National Educational Association, has completed its first draft of standards covering all essential requirements.

The committee finds ardent need of a "measuring stick." How large should be the staff of librarians in a normal school of 750 students? How large a library fund? How many books are needed in the library of a teachers' college of 1,500 students? How much floor space? What library instructions should be given?

"Administrators, boards of regents, faculty committees and librarians of normal schools and teachers' colleges are asking questions like these," the report says. "There ought to be an authoritative answer. For until the teacher training institutions have adequate, satisfactory library service, resulting in teachers trained to know the true value and use of libraries in education, all types of education will be deficient and all types of libraries will fall in their highest usefulness."

Institutions Divided
The committee's report divides the institutions into two general classes—two year normal schools, and four year teachers' colleges. It goes into detail as to standards of equipment, floor space, staff personnel, number of books under various classifications, funds, academic status of libraries and staff members, etc. Some of the findings follow:

A normal school with a two-year course (with an initial enrollment of 300 students) should have a library of 20,000 volumes; with 7,000 more for each additional enrollment of 300.

The librarian should have academic status of full professor with vote; assistants to rank as instructors; staff should consist of librarian and three assistants; salary on par with professor of English; staff on par with better paid instructors in English.

Four-year teacher colleges with enrollment of 500 should have a reading room to accommodate 100 readers—2,500 square, and nine other rooms; reference, periodical, children's (2), library class room with 60 seats, cataloging, work rooms (2), and office.

RICHMOND

Every reader of novels knows Mme. Elzoin Glyn, author of "Three Weeks" and other novels of international fame. She wrote the story of "The Great Moment," in which Gloria Swanson stars and during the filming of Cecil B. De Mille's Paramount production of "The Affairs of Anatol," which is being shown at the Richmond theatre. Mme. Glyn was induced to permit herself to be screened with others in a society scene of which there are many in this remarkable all-star photograph. The celebrated author is seated with Lady Parker, wife of Sir Gilbert Parker, at a fashionable tea given at the home of Anatol DeWitt Spencer, the hero of the story. Only a momentary glimpse of the two ladies is given and those who desire to study their faces must look sharp. Wallace Reid, Gloria Swanson, Elliott Dexter, Bebe Daniels, Monte Blue, Wanda Hawley, Theodore Roberts and Polly Moran have the leading roles in this great picture production.

MURRETTE

When Mrs. Morgan Belmont of New York and Newport's exclusive set first took up her picture work with D. W. Griffith in his production of "Way Down East," she did it with a will, reporting at the studio in Mamaroneck every morning at 8 o'clock and taking her place with the regular members of the company.

Before it became known to the "four hundred" that she had taken this new departure, a friend called her up one morning.

Mrs. Belmont's butler informed the friend that Madam was out. "Madam is working today," he said. "What?" gasped the friend at the other end of the wire, "working?" "At the Griffith Studios," spoke the urbane voice of the familiar servitor. There was something sounding like a muffled well-bred shriek from the other party; a receiver clicked—that's all.

Mrs. Belmont is appearing as a Boston society woman in "Way Down East," showing at the Murrette theatre. This is her first venture in pictures and she proved a most valuable actress under the direction of the master hand of Mr. Griffith.

MURRAY

Appearing in "The Good-Bad Wife," the Vera McCord production of the Mary McCard Taylor story, "The Wild Pawns," will be found a youth who gives great promise as a future screen favorite, and we refer to Albert Hackett.

Albert Hackett plays the part of Leigh Carter, the youngest of the three Carter brothers, and his sterling performance stamps this young artist as a "comer" who will make his mark within the next few years. For a youth, he has had a very wide legitimate stage schooling, having appeared with Maud Adams in "Peter Pan," also appearing in stage productions of "Good Gracious, Annabelle," and "Just a Woman," while on the screen Hackett has supported Marguerite Clark, Billie Burke, Dorothy Gish and Mary Miles Minter.

His performance of Leigh Carter leaves nothing to be desired, and he is easily entitled to rank with the other star members of the cast as one of its shining principals. "The Good-Bad Wife" is now at the Murray theatre.

MURRAY VAUDEVILLE

"Along Broadway" presents one of the most artistic and well-balanced talented offerings that makes the local Murray theatre. Good taste and good sense are evident in the staging of this most unusual vehicle. Snatches of song and bits from the successes of present reigning popular extravaganzas combine in producing the scoring material. Gowned in the richest, and examples of talented art, the two young ladies in the performance fill an important niche. Of the two men, one sings and the other accompanies on the piano. Appropriate settings are a feature.

There is little doubt that Nelson and Madison pleased their audience. Billed as "A Rube and a Ruby," the couple, a man and a woman, have a popular brand of comedy. The man appears as an old telegraph messenger, whose precarious disposition is provoked by young femininity. It's thrilling and a scream.

An encore must be responded to before Peters and West, the "Mirth and Melody" boys, can be permitted to close their act. Clever singing with a correct proportion of clean comedy, turns the performance into one of favor.

"The Gabby Trickster," E. J. Moore, is a repeat of the modern magician. His most puzzling bit of necromancy is exhibited with the aid of a rabbit, and a "hick" helper.

Dorothy Green in "The Good-Bad Wife," is the film feature.

Peace Dollars, Created In Hurry, Are Uneven

(By Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—The 800,000 new peace dollars coined at the Philadelphia mint last week, with the 1921 date have an uneven edge. The coins are a little thinner at the top and bottom than on the sides.

It was said at the mint today that this is not regarded as an imperfection and that the dollars contain the legal weight of metal. The peace dollar, it was added was created in more or less of a hurry, so that a large number could be minted before 1921 expired. The 1922 coins, it was said would have a more even edge.

BENTONVILLE MUSIC WARMLY APPRECIATED

BENTONVILLE, Ind., Jan. 6.—One of the most successful and enjoyable of the many farmers' institutes of Bentonville closed Thursday evening after arrangements had been made for next year's institute. The attendance at the institute numbered over 200.

Liberal displays were made by contestants in the domestic science and corn contests.

A feature of the program of the institute was the music by the Newman orchestra, of which the audience expressed warm approval. The orchestra consisted of Albert Newman, leader, Frances Hackleman, Elsie Mason, Mary Mason, Margaret Smiley, Ruth Donelker, Garnet Myers, Chester Hackleman, James Huston, Harry Bradway and Thomas Bradway.

A solo was given during the afternoon by Miss Garnet Myers, and farm bureau songs by a girl's quartette composed of Misses Mary and Elsie Mason, Ruth Donelker and Frances Hackleman, proved very popular, the audience being insistent in its demands for an encore.
