Neuritis Victim Hardly Knows Danger

Tuesday Health Talk No. 49
By G. C. Wilcoxen, D. C.

Health turns the
Clock Backward

The neuritis victim hardly knows the danger of this disease. Usually the pain is so persistent day and night that any measure of relief is welcome and no thought of future danger is possible. Neuritis, like neuralgia, may be caused by a local displacement of spinal vertebrae, and thus affect only a part of the body.

If nerves are affected in a number of places at the same time, it is what is called multiple neuritis and is caused by pressure on the spinal cord at the base of the brain. The danger of neuritis if not quickly checked is that the heat in the nerve finally atrophies or destroys the nerve. This degeneration of the nerve tissue, if the neuritis, for instance, affects the arm, amounts to a loss of power in that arm. Neuritis should be checked at once. Its very nature points clearly to the need of chiropractic spinal adjustments.

Neuritis is Gone

"For months I suffered with neuritis of the neck, shoulder and arms. After three months of osteopathy, during which I got ninety-seven treatments, I decided to try chiropractic. In two weeks the pain had gone, and I have had other chiropractic treatments since, but no return of the neuritis." —Lillian Harne, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Sworn Statement No. 1293L.
