REPORT RED CROSS CHAPTER OF EATON IS ORDERED TO MOVE

EATON, Ohio, Jan. 11.—The Red Cross chapter of Preble county has been ordered to vacate its quarters in a room it has occupied in the courthouse since and during the late war, members of the organization say. Written notice has been given by the commissioners to get out, members state, but no action, they say, has been taken on the notice. Belongings of the Red Cross have been removed by some one from the room into the corridor.

Red Cross members say the commissioners' notice stated a room had to be furnished for the new county health nurse and that the one held by the Red Cross was the only one to be had in the courthouse at this time. Officers of the county Red Cross chapter state that Mrs. A. D. Davis has been tendered the post of secretary of the chapter and secretary of the home service department, at a salary of $1,500 a year. Dr. S. P. Carter of West Manchester is chairman of the organization.

Sheriff Seeks Boy
Walter Lambert, aged 11, who is said to have removed recently with his parents from Richmond, Ind., to a farm near New Paris, was placed in keeping of Sheriff George Jones Monday after he had been given a hearing on a juvenile court charge. Tuesday morning Sheriff Jones let the boy go with him to a business house to make a purchase, and while his back was turned the boy slipped out the door and got away. He had not been found this morning.

Serving War Veterans
Work of filing and filling applications by ex-service men in Preble county for the state soldiers' adjusted compensation was started here Tuesday afternoon. A large number of vets was on hand to have blanks filled in and filed when the work was begun.

Rev. Charles F. Irwin, Eaton, is chairman of the county compensation committee and is in active charge of the work, and is performing much of it, assisted by D. R. Hartman, ex-service man and secretary of the committee. Chairman Irwin had prepared an application for himself and it was the first one placed on file Tuesday. Mr. Irwin saw service overseas as a chaplain. He is pastor of Eaton Presbyterian church and chaplain of the Legion post.

The work is being carried on in the legion post room in the courthouse and the committee will be on duty each afternoon this week from one to 4 o'clock. Next week the committee will tour the county to take care of the service men who are unable to come to Eaton this week.

Elect Loan Officers
All the old officers of the Eaton Loan and Home Aid company have been re-elected to their respective offices for this year, as follows: President, J. H. Musselman; vice president, T. B. Starr; secretary, L. D. Lesh; solicitor, E. P. Vaughan.

Home Games For Children

How mothers and fathers of Richmond may make their homes interesting and attractive for the little tots during the indoor season.

By MISS MARGUERITE SHARRETT
Recreation Specialist of Community Service

Indoor games to be played with the children by father and mother:

Peanut Hunt
Peanuts are hidden over a specified part of the house, high or low, or both, depending upon the size of the children who will hunt. At a signal the family begins to search for the nuts and at the end of a given time, the person having found the greatest number of peanuts might be given a simple prize, as a piece of cake or a candy stick.

Find the Ring
The players form a circle. Each player holds in both hands a continuous cord, on which a ring has been strung. The players pass the ring from one to another, all keeping their hands moving constantly. An odd player stands in the center of the ring and endeavors to locate the ring. The player found having the ring exchanges places with the one in the center.

"I Went Out Walking One Day"
A simple dramatic game, through which the imaginative ability of the child is given free opportunity for expression. It is a splendid game in which mother or father may take an active part with the children. A player says: "I went out walking one day." The other player or players, say: "What did you see?" The first player answers the question by acting out the thing which he has in mind, but does not say a word. And if successful, takes his place, demonstrating some new activity. Such human interest studies may be pantomimed as "the postman bringing the mail," "a boy playing football," "a woman washing clothes," "a man chopping wood," etc. The possibilities for developing a child's power of observation are endless through this game.

Games to be played with the children's playmates after school on the porch, on the pavement, or in the yard:

Animal Tag
(6 or more players)
The players are divided into two teams which stand in two rectangular "pens" at opposite ends of the play space. An odd player stands between the two pens, acting as "catcher." Those in the pens are named for animals, as "Lion," "Tiger," "Elephant," etc. The "catcher" calls the name of some animal and if there are any of that name in the pens, these run across the catcher's space to the opposite pen, endeavoring to reach there without being tagged by the catcher. If caught the "animal" remains in the catcher's space and assists the catcher to tag the other animals. The animals run, only when their names are called by the original catcher. The last animal to remain in the pens becomes the next catcher.

Wind and Flowers
(5 or more players)
Players are divided evenly or if an odd number play, place more children in the group of "flowers" than in the group of "winds." The groups are known as the "winds" and "flowers" respectively, and stand at opposite ends of the play space. The "flowers" quietly select the name of a flower and make certain that each member of their group understands what the name chosen is. The "winds" must not hear the name of the flower chosen. When the choice of a flower is made the entire group of "flowers" walks to the "winds" and stands in a line about 1 yard from them. The "winds" begin to guess the names of flowers and when they have guessed the correct one, all the "flowers" run back "home" to their starting point, the winds after them. All the flowers caught by the winds must join the side of the winds.

If the winds have difficulty in naming the correct flower, they may ask the color, the first letter, whether the word is "simple" or "compound," etc. When most of the "flowers" have been caught, the groups may be reversed. The original winds becoming flowers and the flowers becoming winds.

Put Your Finger on the Button!

MR. BUSINESS MAN—when you want your office boy, do you run through your establishment shouting for him, or do you press the button and have him come to you?

A fine chase you'd have after him if he happened to be attending "grandma's funeral" out at the ball park!

But what's the use of chasing after the office boy or a new adding machine, cash register, filing cabinet, safe, typewriter or anything else you need?

You can put your finger on the "Button" by turning to the Business and Office Equipment Column in The Palladium's Merchandise section.

Reading these offers of the merchants of Richmond will spare you the inconvenience of a long search for the article you need.
