

NEXT WEEK AT THE THEATRES

The best American play in a decade and one of the best acted. That may be truthfully said of "The Famous Mrs. Fair," by James Forbes, which brings Henry Miller and Blanche Bates, two of the most distinguished stars of the American stage, to the Victory theatre, Dayton, Ohio, for Tuesday night and Wednesday afternoon and night, Jan. 17 and 18.

Here is presented an ordinary family of means, such as may be duplicated by the thousands in any big American city. Father, mother, son and daughter—all the average folk, and the domestic difficulty in which they become involved is equally commonplace. Yet the interest aroused is absorbing, and the effect produced intense, because Mr. Forbes has created genuine, living characters, and lent to their troubles all the poignancy of humanity and truth. Thus, with the same equality attained to reality—as it is at the hands of these distinguished players—the lesson of "The Famous Mrs. Fair" is brought home with peculiar intimacy and unforced appeal.

No sermonizing. One says lesson, and yet this potent social play is one of the rare compositions—a problem play without argument or sermonizing by the author. The audience is left severely alone to draw its own conclusions from the experience of the characters. Mrs. Fair is typical of the majority of the American women who took up war work in France. Her rather stolid business husband, like the matter-of-fact son and the undeveloped daughter, put up with her absence under the stimulus of the spirit of war time sacrifice.

As Mr. and Mrs. Fair—Jeffrey and Nancy—Henry Miller and Blanche Bates, give one of the best performances of their careers, and the fact that, in addition to its long engagements of over a year at Henry Miller's theatre, New York City, and four months at the Blackstone theatre, Chicago, it has just completed one of the most successful coast to coast tours ever undertaken by a dramatic attraction, attests to the power of the play and the artistry of the players. The stars are supported by a company of exceptional brilliance, including Marjory Williams, Marie Louise Walker, Bert Leigh, Lynn Stirling, Florence Carpenter, Edna Archer, Crawford, Betty Hall, Norma Harvey, Kathryn Meredith, Elmer Brown and others.

RICHMOND
That money talks we all know, but that it comes in bunches when J. Rufus Wallingford begins to talk about it, is demonstrated in the Cosmopolitan production for Paramount of "Get Rich Quick Wallingford," a screen version of the popular play by George M. Cohan, which closes today at the Richmond theatre.

How J. Rufus Wallingford and his associate in buncombe, "Blackie" Daw, make a fortune for themselves and the residents of the one-roomed town of Battersburg, is a thrilling story which is well adapted for the screen. The details of their scheme present enough complications to make the picture interesting from first to last, and it is filled with amusing surprises for the audience and the two adventurers.

The featured players are Sam Hardy, Norman Kerry, Doris Kenyon and Diana Allen. The production is massive and of a high order of excellence.

George Melford's superb picturization of E. M. Hull's famous novel, "The Sheik," which is the literary sensation of the year, will be seen at the Richmond theatre all week, starting Sunday. Agnes Ayres, Paramount star, and Rudolph Valentino, who made such a hit in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," are the featured players.

MURRAY
Raymond Hatton's appearance in any picture means that everyone else in it is going to do his or her very best acting—to keep up with Hatton. His reputation for excellent character work has assumed gigantic proportions since his work in the Rogers' picture, "Call Me Jim," and in "Bunny Pulls the Strings," also Goldwyn productions. His latest work may be seen in "All's Fair in Love," a Goldwyn comedy, now at the Murray theatre.

What is written in your heart? What are the promises and possibilities shown in your left hand? What is the will of your right? Leon Baird shows "The Heart Line" of Fanny Gray in the photodramatization of Gelett Burgess' novel of the same name starting Monday at the Murray theatre.

Events, as they happen, become as clearly inscribed on the hand as though written there with a quill-pen; and as surely as coming events cast their shadows before, so surely are those shadows cast in the hand. The hand reveals what the heart conceals. The lines of Fanny Gray's hands divulge secrets her heart would never tell. Her heart line disclosed three love affairs—two men would love her; she would love a third. And the heart line of the man she loved indicated a very interesting triangle of tangled hearts.

"The Heart Line" is an unusual love story that discloses many secrets of palmists, clairvoyants and spiritualists mediums. The cast in support of Miss Baird includes Jerome Patrick, Frederick Vroom, Ruth Sinclair, Mrs. Charles C. Crane, Little Ben Alexander and others. Frederick A. Thomson, directed.

MURRETTE
The entire feminine population of the little village of Monterey, in the heart of the Virginia mountains, contributed toward the wardrobe of Gladys Hulette who is seen playing opposite Richard Barthelmess in "To Be a Lady," the First National Attraction which will be shown at the Murrette theatre. While no Parisian creations or smart New York styles are included, the gathering of the costumes was a harder task than many debutantes have faced before a coming out party.

Miss Hulette went to Monterey without costumes, as she wanted to correctly portray the styles of the locality around which the story was written. When the women of the village understood her plight, they flocked unanimously to her aid.

which it was made came from the dusty counters of the village store. Three local belles who happened to wear the same size shoe as Miss Hulette contributed slippers to go with the dancing costume, while her room at the hotel resembled a rural millinery shop as a result of the hats which were placed at her disposal.

Father John's Medicine is "One of the Best Tonics A Child Can Take"

"I think Father John's Medicine is one of the best tonics a child can take. My boy, seven years old, has been greatly benefited by its use. He used to be subject to throat trouble but now his throat seldom bothers him. It builds one up when one has cold and I believe that is why he is so well and healthy. He was pale, but now has a good color. I cannot say too much in praise of Father John's Medicine." Signed, Mrs. H. W. Hawes, 44 Norton Street, Lynn, Mass.
