NEWS FROM THE "Y"

A Camp Kern Boys' reunion is to be held in Dayton on Feb. 3. About 20 junior boys were at Camp Kern in the "Y" camp last summer and it is expected that a large per cent of these boys will go to the reunion. Boys' Secretary Perry A. Wilson is planning to secure free transportation to and from Dayton for all the boys. The boys will be expected to pay for the supper. Mr. Wilson asks that all boys who expect to go on this trip turn their names in to the "Y" office at once. The emblems won last summer will be awarded at this reunion.

The following members of the Honor Club had their names on the club's honor roll for the month of December: Freeman Harris, Dudley Cartwright, Edward Wilson, Robert Davis, Merritt Swales, Mark Fred, Robert Yedding, Richard Yedding, Richard Little, George Wiggins, Myron Pentecost, Paul Harper.

A new Bible class, the "City Boys' Bible Class," is being planned by Perry A. Wilson. Any boy in the city may join the class, which will meet every Saturday evening at 7 o'clock. Mr. Wilson will be the teacher. It is especially for boys who because of work cannot enter any Bible class during the week or on Sunday mornings in the Sunday schools. At present there is a membership of 120 in the junior Bible classes already organized at the "Y", namely the Live "Y"er, the Triangle and the S. M. B. classes.

AN OLD MULBERRY TREE

In the garden of Buckingham palace, in England, there is an old mulberry tree which bears a label showing it was planted in 1609 when many mulberry trees were planted in that vicinity by King James I in order to promote the production of silk in London.

ROMAN WALL IN SCOTLAND

An old turf wall built by the Romans about 143 A. D. may still be seen in Scotland. This was used to keep the barbarian Picts and Scots from the province of Britain which was then completely under Roman control.

Merry Melodies and Lively Words
Tell Story of Prince in "Mikado"

Full of music and merriment is the opera, "The Mikado," written by Mr. Gilbert and Mr. Sullivan!

The story in many ways, is like a fairy story—there's a prince, named Nanki-Poo, son of the mikado, or emperor, who travels about disguised as a wandering minstrel. The prince wants to marry Yum-Yum, a little school girl, (for, you know, in Japan, they marry very young), but she is betrothed to a high official, the Lord High Executioner of the kingdom named Ko-Ko, who is an old man. Yum-Yum does not want to marry him at all, but she doesn't have much to say about it. For awhile it is feared that Nanki-Poo may be executed, but they discover he is the mikado's son, and, at last, everything is cleared up—the prince marries Yum-Yum and Ko-Ko marries Katisha, and we suppose they "live happily ever after." There are two other lords in the play, Pooh-Bah, and Pish-Tush (such jolly names they have!) and two other school girls, friends of Yum-Yum, named Pitti-Sing and Peep-Bo. Then there are other school girls and nobles and guards in the chorus.

Words Are Lively and Funny

We would like to take up each song of this delightful little light opera and talk it over with you, but we can not do that here. We can, however, speak of some:

The very first song says:

The very first song says:

"If you want to know who we are, We are gentlemen of Japan; On many a vase and jar, On many a screen and fan, We figure in lively paint, Our attitude's queer and quaint, You're wrong if you think it ain't."

Of course, it would have been nice, perhaps, to have had "isn't," which, we know, is right, but it refused to rhyme with "quaint." Then, there's the song the three school girls sing. It begins like this:

"Three little maids from school we are, Part as a school-girl well can be, Filled to the brim with girlish glee, Three little maids from school!"

"Everything is a source of fun, Nobody's safe, for we care for none! Life is a joke that's just begun! Three little maids from school!"

And so it goes, but to read the words without hearing the gay little melodies that run along with them, is like melting snow away before a bob-sled party—the tunes are so graceful and tripping.

Then, Yum-Yum sings a very nice song about the sun and moon, and Ko-Ko sings a song about a little bird that says "tit-willow," all the time, and the prince (and others) sing a gay little song about the flowers of spring, but we could not begin to name all the interesting songs.

We think that Mr. Gilbert and Mr. Sullivan must have enjoyed writing such merry little operas as "The Mikado."

JOSEPH MOORE CHILDREN
MAKE PICTURE BOOKLET

Children in the fifth grade of Joseph Moore cut out the pictures by Anna Milo Unjohn in the Junior Red Cross News and mounted them on heavier paper. They have written little stories about the pictures. During the past week they have been binding the pictures and stories together in booklet form.
