

INAUGURATE A JUNIOR CHURCH FOR CHILDREN; IS POPULAR FEATURE

(By Associated Press)
INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 17.—Boys and girls who are interested in religion, but who have not yet attained an appreciation of the sermons, hymns and prayers of a regular church service are now being provided with services of their own in a number of churches in Indiana. The Junior church, as the service is designated, has recently been inaugurated by several denominations.

Grace Presbyterian church in this city, was one of the first to institute a service for young folks of from 10 to 14 years of age.

"The plan of this new step in Grace church," says Rev. N. S. Sichter, the pastor, "is to give the boys and girls a regular church service of their own which seeks to serve the religious life of the children in the same way the regular church service does the religious life of the adults."

The chief features of the Junior church are: a regular order of services; a Junior church choir; ushers; officials and other features that the adult church enjoys. The only one not a Junior, in point of years, at least, is the pastor who leads the service and preaches the sermon.

Meeting Success.
The Junior church is meeting with success in different parts of our land as well as across the sea. In churches ranging in size from one hundred to three thousand members. In these churches the Junior church has a membership of from 25 to 400.

"The idea of the Junior church service originated in the growing appreciation of educational principles. It is the application of the graded public school in the teaching of religion."

Rev. Sichter recalls boyhood experiences when he was compelled, he says, to attend Sunday services lasting two hours or more, and made up of sermons, prayers and hymns, little of which he appreciated as they were not adapted either to his needs or understanding.

A Junior church has recently been organized by the First Methodist church at Huntington, Ind., for the young folks of the congregation.

Travelers Notes

By Post C. Scribe

Ladies' night last Saturday evening was a most enjoyable affair. The music was unusually good. Mrs. Fred G. Haisley with Mrs. Roy Campbell at the piano delighted the members with vocal numbers. Mrs. Haisley, in response to urgent solicitation, entertained with several beautiful and artistic whistling solos. The Victory quartette, Messrs. Walter Luring, John Graham, Edgar Mote and Clifford Hutchins, were in splendid form and very generous with encores. Their songs were given with a pep and swing very pleasing to the audience. The card tables were well filled and Charlie Tooker provided a most delicious lunch. Favors were awarded to Mrs. Fred G. Haisley and Mrs. Alva E. Holmes.

The remaining members of the class of 1922 are Roscoe T. Bowman, William R. Dill, Harry B. Higley, Oscar W. Jamison, John V. Poundstone and Stephen S. Stratton.

Mrs. James G. Martin has been a victim of the "flu" and consequently missed Ladies' night.

Press Chairman J. B. Young, Post J. Evansville, has the following to say regarding the withdrawal of John P. Higley:

"The post secretary received a letter Saturday from L. C. Niewoehner president and M. L. Hasty, secretary of Post C, Richmond, saying that Post C was compelled to withdraw the name of John P. Higley as a candidate for president of the Indiana division. Unexpected business developments in Mr. Higley's affairs make this action necessary. This news will be received with regret by the many friends of Brother Higley, who were anticipating his election at our next state convention. He is just the kind of a man the Indiana division needs for president."

At the conclusion of January, 1922, the net membership of the T. P. A. reached 101,422 and the amount in all funds in the treasury totaled $941,043.79. Delinquents should consider an organization of this size and prosperity as too good to surrender when the cost amounts to about three cents daily per member.

There is much activity in Post Q, New Albany. Post President Hauss, with Alex Hartman, are out on a membership drive; a banquet last Saturday night attended by State President Middleton and State Secretary Zink, canvas for local officers for the coming year and other features keep the ball rolling.

State Press Chairman W. A. Ryan of Terre Haute sees a deplorable undercurrent in national T. P. A. affairs and issues this warning:

"Beware of subversion of our association in the time to come. That an attempt with this end in view is now reflected in the signs of the times is but too apparent. It will come and must be met. Ambitious and designing men are working their way. A subversion that will take the power from the membership and place that power in the hands of the few. This has been the trend in a lesser degree for a few years past but is cropping out more and more. Keep your eye upon the

Child Prodigies in After Life

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

NEW YORK CITY, Feb. 17.—What becomes of child prodigies after they grow up? Do they go right on being prodigies, or do they lose their pristine precocity?

The answer to this question, recently given by several prominent New York educators and psychologists, is that child geniuses invariably turn out well. They not only develop into adults of unusual intelligence and energy, but they often exhibit rare creative ability as well.

In the old days when children were supposed to be seen and not heard, there existed a general prejudice against encouraging youthful manifestation of genius. The juvenile brain was regarded as something very frail and unstable and very likely to collapse under unusual strain or pressure. The child who showed superior talent in the classroom was looked upon in the community as one unquestionably headed for an insane asylum or a life of crime, and his parents were more often the objects of neighborly compassion than congratulation.

This attitude probably originated in jealousy on the part of parents whose own offspring exhibited no undue indications of brightness and from what we know of the power of suggestion today, it may have had its own harmful effects. But it was, modern scientists tell us, altogether without foundation. For research has revealed the fact that there is not only less insanity among geniuses than among the common lot of people, but that they are usually exceptionally health folk as well.

Innumerable examples could be quoted in proof of this, but a few conspicuous ones recently set forth by Prof. Rudolph M. Binder of New York university will suffice.

Socrates Did Well.
"Let's begin with Socrates," said Professor Binder. "The great philosopher served as a hoplite, which means that he was a member of what we in modern terms would designate as shock troops. He was 70 years old trend of affairs. Don't go to sleep. Organizations of money are tempting. Only resolute work by our state divisions can forestall the trend. Beware of the "one-man" theory if you would preserve this association. It is high time for a closer scrutiny of our national affairs when officers in high places are found going aside from the duties of their office and throwing their influence into the scale in the choice of national officers as was done at Louisville and before and since Louisville. Such officers were not drawn by us for any such purposes. Therefore it is high time for a closer investigation of their conduct of their offices."

From the highest to the lowest our officers are all elected by the chosen delegates in convention assembled. It is given to no officer so chosen to use his influence directly or indirectly in the choice of his fellow officers and any such action is in derogation of such officers just powers and an unwanted interference in the elective rights of their state divisions. We are justified in resenting such interference with the association."

Many of our members are or have been, suffering with the prevailing epidemic of "flu," but seldom let it be known until upon the road to recovery. The chairman of the sick and relief committee can not give the attention to such cases unless informed. Our secretary, Marcus Hasty, can always be reached by telephone and will be glad to refer all sick and relief reports to the chairman for prompt attention.

when he was compelled to drink the hemlock.

"Coming down many centuries, Sir Isaac Newton lived to be 85 and was strong and hearty and a hard worker till within a short time of his death. Darwin was born with a rugged constitution, which he ruined by his failure to take care of it, but it enabled him to accomplish a remarkable amount of work before he died at the age of 73.

"If proof were needed that Herbert Spencer was born with an iron constitution it would be provided by that incident in his boyhood when at the age of 13 he walked 48 miles one day, 47 the second and 20 the third, and with very little food during the three days. Spencer is another man who injured his health by lack of care of himself, but if he had not been naturally strong he would not have lived to be 83.

"Even Shakespeare, who died at the age of 52, might be said to have lived a good life considering the amount of work he did as playwright, actor and manager. Goethe, an exceedingly busy man, was in good health almost to the time of his death at the age of 83.

"Of the four probably most famous Italians, Dante lived to be only 58, but his life was one of arduous labor; Leonardo da Vinci, an athlete, who outstripped far younger men in feats of strength, was nearly 67; Michael Angelo worked furiously most of his 90 years, and Galileo enjoyed good health until his death at 78."

Leaping abruptly back to the twentieth century, we have the distinctly robust example of Joseph Hoffman, famous pianist, who clearly demonstrated his remarkable musical talent when he was but two and a half years old, and was on the concert stage at the age of eleven.

Super-Children in Two Classes
"There are and always have been certain wonder children," Prof. Edward L. Thorndike of Teachers' college, Columbia university, tells, "and they have turned out to be great men and women later. It is evident that child geniuses may be divided into two classes—those who are creative and inventive and those who have exceptional memories and absorbing powers."

"The child of creative ability is the real wonder child. There are many children who have exceptional memories, and while it is true that some of these children have greater capacity than others, the faculty is not indicative of as high development as the creative or inventive gift."

Professor Monroe, also of the Teachers' college, decries that our present system of public school education is greatly to be censured because it makes no special provision for children of superior ability. "We in this country are so democratic that we look out for the mass," he says. "Our entire educational system is gauged to mediocrity. We need some new way of scaling our classes so that persons of exceptional ability will not be held back to the level of their mediocre companions. Sometimes this lack of occupation in school while they are waiting for their slower brothers and sisters to catch up is harmful to the children of superior talent. They become restive or indifferent."

"Wider recognition should be given to the child prodigy. The hope of education is to bring out all the native talent and ability each child has. Naturally some children will have more to show than others, but each child should have a chance to develop to its highest point."

"I do not believe in too much freedom or too much superintendence of the child's education. There is a medium which offers encouragement to the child to use his own initiative and at the same time furnishes guidance without which he might become one-sided."

BITTERNESS REVIVED AMONG ARABS, JEWS BY GUN SMUGGLING

(By Associated Press)
HAIFA, Palestine, Feb. 17.—Accidental discovery of a consignment of several thousand automatic pistols and 25,000 rounds of ammunition, which were being smuggled into Palestine in boxes supposed to contain beehives, has aroused much comment and tended to revive the bitter feelings between the Arabs and Jews.

Sir Herbert Samuel, the high commissioner, had exempted beehives from customs duty in order to develop Palestine's industry.

Ninety-six boxes supposed to contain beehives were being unloaded at Haifa when one of them was broken, revealing the weapons and ammunition. The whole consignment which had been addressed to Jews was seized. The head of the Jewish Co-operative Workmen's association at Haifa and a noted Jewish lawyer at Jaffa, implicated in the affair.

The Zionist leaders have disavowed all responsibility and condemned the incident. The native press has warned the people to be on guard, asserting that probably this contraband business has been going on for some time and that very likely great quantities of arms and ammunition have been brought in in this way.
