

MINIATURE MUSICAL REVUE TO BE GIVEN AT COUNTRY CLUB

A miniature musical revue, spectacular, musical, clever, and appealing with its humor and hidden pathos, will be presented at the Country club Tuesday evening, marking the first time this season that a comedy has been written and presented by local persons. The local settings of "The Country Club Follies" gives the performance added interest.

An immense stage, raised two feet from the floor, and extending the entire length of the great ballroom of the club, has been erected especially for the performance. Handsome drops reaching from the ceiling have been made and a scenery artist engaged to paint the sets. The club ballroom has taken on the aspect of a miniature theatre with the stage and its elaborate settings. To represent the interior of a store, cases will be used, which will be arranged with displays by a professional window trimmer, while large wax models wearing the latest creations will be featured.

Many Gay Costumes
A variety of gay and beautiful costumes have been made, some of them showing the prevailing modes, while others are representative of the styles of other countries, notably France, Spain, Italy and Japan. A large cast composed of children and adults, will take part. Several new songs will be introduced as a special feature. Chief among them is "In Our Little Reveston Home." The lyrics and lines for the entire show were written by Frank Holland. Mrs. Walter J. Engle and Mrs. Frank Drutt compose, with Mr. Holland, the committee in charge.

For persons not members of the country club a special performance of the comedy will be given Thursday evening at the Murray theatre. Tickets for the show are now on sale at the Murray box office.

PASSENGERS REACH TOWN AFTER BEING ICE-BOUND 2 DAYS

(By Associated Press)
NEENAH, Wis., Feb. 25.—Ice-bound for two days on passenger trains, stalled nine miles north of here, more than a score of passengers, reached this town last night. They had practically no food for 48 hours.

Neenah has been cut off from the outside world since Saturday night when ice-coated telephone and telegraph poles collapsed, stopping communication and railroad traffic was suspended. Two Soo engines were derailed by falling poles in Neenah. The Eastern Wisconsin Electric company's trolley line, and all power wires, leading west from the local business district were broken when a Wisconsin Northern train, plowed into the fallen wires.

A team of horses was killed by a dangling trolley wire, but the driver escaped unhurt. The telephone company reports 3,000 poles down in the Appleton district. Conditions in surrounding cities are similar, poles are down, thousands of trees ruined, and cities and villages are without light or power. The paper mills here have sufficient coal to continue operation for a day or two. There is no shortage of food. With clear weather today, the work of clearing away the storm debris was undertaken in earnest. Scarcely a tree in the district escaped destruction.

A large crowd was present in the court room Saturday to hear proceedings. The hearing was to have been held Saturday morning, but was continued because the attorney for the defense was in Newcastle trying a case.

Stamper Assails Excuse Making In Church Life

Excuses which keep one from joining the church were assailed by the Rev. A. L. Stamper, of the First Christian church Friday night, in the last sermon of a series delivered during the last two weeks.

"Excuses are always lies," the Rev. Stamper said. "Reasons are always the truth."

Using for his text, Luke 14:18: "And they all with one consent began to make excuse," the Rev. Stamper proceeded to give the excuses made by three men invited to attend a supper, and proved that the excuses were but means used by the men to avoid attending.

During the sermon the Rev. Stamper emphasized the need for humility before God and hospitality toward men: "For whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased, and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted."

Four children were received into the church Friday night. Baptisms will be held later.

Mary is Not First Daughter of Sovereign to Wed Subject

Earliest Precedent is Not One With the Usual Story Book Ending in Which Love is Eventually Crowned With Happiness

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Feb. 25.—The earliest precedent for a Princess of the royal household to marry one of her father's subjects is not one with the usual story book ending in which the couple "lived happily ever after." The bride in that instance was Lady Joan, daughter of Edward I. "Longshanks," who hoped by giving her to the Earl of Gloucester and Hertford to secure the earl's loyalty and support.

The wedding occurred in the year 1290, when the princess was 19 years old. She was widowed when 23 years of age and secretly married Ralph de Monthermer, a handsome squire, who formerly had been in her husband's service.

The king's fury when knowledge of the marriage reached him resulted in the imprisonment of his son-in-law; but the entreaties of his daughter finally secured her husband's release. The king in relenting, summoned De Monthermer to parliament, made him a privy councillor, and invested him with many appointments of a lucrative nature.

Happy Ending.
The latter marriage thus ran true to the modern love tale—love eventually crowned with happiness. The success of the Gloucester marriage from the king's standpoint, even though it was of short duration, owing to the death of the duke, encouraged Edward I. in 1302, to give another of his daughters, Lady Elizabeth, to Rhuddlan to Humphrey de Bohun, second Earl of Hereford and first Earl of Essex and Lord High Constable of England. This princess was then 20 years old and the widow of the Count of Holland, whom she married when 15 years of age. The Earl was killed in battle at Borough bridge, while fighting against his brother-in-law, Edward II.

The wedding of Lady Margaret, daughter of Edward III, also resulted unhappily. Her husband was John Hastings, earl of Pembroke. This couple was married in 1359 when Margaret was 13 years old. She died two years later when her husband met with defeat at the hands of the French and was imprisoned by the Spanish and died of poison while awaiting ransom.

Perhaps the most romantic wedding of a princess to a subject of her father was that of Lady Isabella to Enguerrand Sire de Coucy. Enguerrand was one of the hostages sent by King John, sir named "LeBou," king of France, in 1350-64, after John had been defeated and captured by the British under the "Black Prince," son of Edward III, at Poitiers in 1356. Enguerrand's mother was a Hapsburg.

Edward III developed a strong liking for Enguerrand and persuaded him to become one of his subjects. His marriage to Isabella followed and he was made earl of Bedford. But when Richard II became king, Enguerrand renounced his title, deserted his wife and daughter and returned to France and became a marshal of France. He made a crusade against the Turks and was taken prisoner at Nicopolis and died in captivity at Brusa.

There was no similar marriage of a sovereign's daughter to a subject until the reign of Queen Victoria, when Princess Louise married the duke of Argyll.

COMMUNIST MOVE TO CAPTURE TEHRAN AMUSING SPECTACLE

(By Associated Press)
BAKU, Azerbaijan, Feb. 25.—One of the recent Communist attempts to invade Persia and capture Teheran, its capital, had most of the elements of a comic opera.

The little army of 200 Georgian invaders masqueraded as Persian women by wearing loose veils and other clothing of women over their uniforms.

The queer appearance of the expedition aroused the suspicions of the "Cheka" when it reached Enzei, a Persian Sea, and the whole outfit was arrested and taken back to Baku for examination.

Released, the invaders set out afresh and advanced into the mountains half way to Teheran, where the peasants arose against them and drove them out.

Exploit Celebrated
The exploit is celebrated even here among the many mad political and military adventures which characterized the struggle of the British and Russians to capture the Persian capital.

It was headed by Simoyak Phakadze, who conceived the brilliant idea of the masquerade and who still maintains that his plan was a good one. He is a son-in-law of Rasputin, the once celebrated Russian monk who was murdered after having attained ascendancy over the Russian court.

A Georgian by birth, he was for a time a hanger-on at the Petrograd court but joined the Communist movement in 1916 and thus escaped the fate that he might otherwise have suffered because of his favor in imperial circles.

He came here with the red tide in the spring of 1920, helped to overthrow the Azerbaijan republic and then undertook his wild scheme to invade and subdue Persia with a disguised army.

FRENCH BLUEBEARD EXECUTED FOR DEEDS

(By Associated Press)
VERSAILLES, Feb. 25.—Henri Desire Landru, "Bluebeard of Gambais," convicted of the murder of ten women and one youth, gave his life this morning in exchange for the eleven he had taken.

The triangular knife of the guillotine fell at 6:05 o'clock, twenty-five minutes after the time originally set for the execution, the delay causing many to express the erroneous opinion that Landru was making a confession.

Mysterious until death Landru resented Father Laiselles' query as to whether he had any confession to make.

"It is an insult to a man like me," was his reply. "Had I any confession to make I would have made it long ago." But he never did utter the word "innocent" as he had failed to utter it during his thirty-four months of imprisonment and the twenty-one days of his trial.

Amateur Opera, "In India" At St. Andrews Monday

UNCOVER RUM PLOT; DAYTON ONE POINT IN BOOTLEG CHAIN

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—Chicago prohibition agents announced here today following their return from a two weeks investigation in three states, that they had uncovered a plot to flood Chicago and other large cities in the central states with grain alcohol to be used in making "bootleg" whiskey. They said the principals had been arrested at Columbus, Ohio, and that five carloads of alcohol had been confiscated in four different cities.

The investigation was started three weeks ago, following the arrest of Ned J. Burns, former Ohio university student, who was taken by prohibition agents when they allege, he attempted to unload a carload of alcohol here. He said the alcohol had been shipped to him to be sold to Chicago druggists and that he was a representative of the Consolidated Drug company in Columbus.

There, they say, they found that several business men had bought 190,000 gallons of alcohol from the government. The alcohol was then shipped to other cities to be sold to saloon-keepers. Other cities where carload lots were seized were Wheeling, W. Va., Dayton, Ohio, and Covington, Ky.

The Evening Advertisement

IF YOU could be connected with every home at night you would hear many a housewife say: "I believe I'll let the dishes go to-night and do them in the morning."

If you could be similarly connected in the morning you would seldom hear her say: "I'll let the dishes go this morning and do them to-night."

In the home as in the factory and in the office, morning is the time to work; evening the time to rest and reflect. It is only the night workers that reverse the habits of the whole civilized world.

So, if your "advertisement" is one that invites consideration and discussion you naturally place it in the evening paper.
