Beauty Chats

By Edna Kent Forbes

ANSWERED LETTERS
KITTY D.:—A reduction of ten pounds can easily be effected by eating less at each meal and eliminating all starchy foods.

M. K. L.: One ounce of henna is mixed with three ounces of powdered soap, which makes enough for several shampoos. Take about a heaping tablespoonful of this mixture to a pint of hot water and rub over the head working up a lather with the fingers. Let this remain on the hair from 10 to 15 minutes. Rinse several times in hot and cold water. This brightens the hair, gives it lustre and richness, and will not change its color.

Miss R. L. R.: Lime water as a mouth wash will help to counteract acid condition. Another treatment for this is use of "Milk of Magnesia" in the same way, after the nightly cleansing of the teeth. For your oily hair, dust a little talcum powder into it occasionally to absorb some of the oil.

X. Y. Z.: Neither the eyelash tonic nor the cream would hurt the eyes if you should get it in them. Crude oil is better than castor oil for a dry scalp when you are giving it a full oil treatment.

Anxious: Most liquid powders dry out the natural secretions which should be an excuse for not using them regularly.

Reader: For the blackheads on the chest, dissolve the soil in the skin before you use the bathbrush. To do this rub into it a light oil such as olive oil, or a cleansing cream, then remove with a hot, damp cloth. You can use the bathbrush after, if you choose, but close the pores finally by dashing very cold water over the skin.

C. B. L.: If olive oil does not agree with you it is not likely you can take cod liver oil, unless you include it in a mixture with other ingredients. Drink more milk to gain in weight.

Dorothy B.: I shall be glad to mail you the formula for the blackhead powder on receipt of a stamped addressed envelope.

Mickey: For a skin that is excessively oily the daily use of a toilette water is helpful, as this is mildly astringent. An oily skin usually has its origin in a sluggish digestive system, thus to cure it one must correct the internal disturbances causing it.

Constant Reader: An injection under the skin, even if it did change the color, would never give the effect of a healthy tint to the skin.

Sharple: The larger warts on your hands will dry up and drop off if you tie a white silk thread around them close to the skin. The smaller ones will soften and may be scrubbed off if you rub olive oil into them.

Missie: To brighten the shade when the hair is drab brown, give it plenty of sunshine and add a tablespoonful of peroxide to the last rinse after the shampoo.

All inquiries addressed to Mrs. Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will find their way to the columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Heart Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am going with a sweet little girl. She is pretty and classy, but she is not conspicuous and in the flapper class. I have known her for six months and in all that time I have admired her very much and have liked her for her gentle way and pretty manners. Now she has bought a green hat which she wears down on one side and up on the other and it gives her a tough appearance. I can't stand seeing her wear this hat and wonder if I should say anything about the way it makes me feel? BOB.

You can tell the girl in a tactful way how you feel about the hat. She will probably take what you have to say in the right spirit, but even if it offends her at first, when she thinks over the matter, she will be grateful

THE STORY OF THE EMPTY SLEEVE

"It was at Missionary Ridge. The rebels were pouring shot in upon us, but General Thomas says, 'Boys, we must hold our ground.' And we just fought 'em to a standstill." "Is that where you lost your arm, grandpa?" "Yes, but we were fightin' these rebels so hard that I scarcely noticed that my arm had been shattered by a bullet until after the battle was won."

to you for your honest opinion. Your criticism may govern her choice of clothes in the future and prevent another such mistake.

TEST IS REAPPOINTED HENRY COUNTY AGENT

NEWCASTLE, Ind., May 30.—Re-appointment of Ralph Test, Henry county agricultural agent, to fill the same position for another year, was recommended unanimously by the Henry county farmers' federation board of directors at a meeting held in the courthouse Saturday evening. Although the appointment is made by the county board of education in conjunction with Purdue, this recommendation is regarded as decisive, as appointments are generally made in accordance with wishes of the farmers whom the agent serves, provided he fulfills the state and federal requirements.

Mr. Test has held the position of county agent for four years.
