PROSPERITY SPECIAL WILL ARRIVE FRIDAY

The prosperity special of Southern Pacific locomotives is to be on a side track in Richmond from 4 o'clock Friday afternoon until 8 o'clock Saturday morning.

Upon arrival in this city the train will be pulled slowly past the passenger station on the freight track north of the passenger station tracks. Officials believe the public will want to see the locomotives in action and have arranged to have them moved in that manner.

When the train is ready to move west Saturday morning at 8 o'clock, the great engines again will be hauled slowly past the passenger station on their way to the coast.

The train of 20 locomotives derives its name from the fact that its purchase indicates that a turn for the better has been taken in financial and business affairs.

The whole train, which is more than half a mile in length, will be kept for the night on the side track north of the Pennsy shops, east of Nineteenth street, where the big shipment can be inspected.

Because of the difficulty of moving, and the care that has to be taken with the huge weight of the engines, the train moves only in the day time. It will come to Richmond from Fort Wayne, and its next stop after Richmond will be Indianapolis.

The engines are not moved under their own power, but will be hauled by several Pennsy freight engines. They are of the oil burning type, and are equipped with some of the very latest mechanical devices, including the "booster engine" which created such a discussion in mechanical circles about a year ago.

temporary out-of-town jobs, it was said.
