

LED BY LITTLE GIRL, MILTON CHRISTIANS CONTRIBUTE $8,000

(Special to the Palladium)
MILTON, Ind., June 18.—Led by golden-haired, blue-eyed Elliott Anna Clingman, three years old, who marched up the church aisle to deliver her toy bank "with all the money I got," members of the Milton Christian church congregation, at a special meeting Sunday afternoon in the Methodist church, pledged nearly $8,000 within 20 minutes for rebuilding of the church, which was burned last Wednesday morning.

Elliott Anna's contribution amounted to $1.65, made up of pennies given her by relatives, and small sums earned by running errands. Hearing her parents discussing the rebuilding of the church, she also determined to do her part, and, without consulting her parents, brought her toy bank to church in the afternoon. "My bank will be empty tonight," she said, "but I'll get some more pretty soon. I hope they have some more of those little red chairs when they build the new church."

Fired by the example of the child, the child, pledges came rapidly in spite of the fact that no preliminary solicitation nor any attempt to work up enthusiasm had been staged. Little excitement was shown, except a grateful patter of applause as each pledge was announced. The subscriptions came steadily and each group when the sum they had determined upon had been reached was called for, subscribed promptly in a manner that indicated everyone had thought over the necessary sacrifices some time before and already had settled upon the largest sum possible.

Pioneer Members
The list of 500 subscribers was headed by the Ladies Aid society, the sum being pledged by one of the original builders of the first church, which had been standing for 40 years. Four of these pioneers, Mrs. Catherine Husey, Mrs. Lida Warren, Mrs. Barbara Ferris and Miss Nora Campbell, had attended the morning services at the Old Fellowship hall, the same auditorium that had served for religious services during their early church going days, before the first church, which burned last week, was built.

The meeting, which convened at 3 o'clock, was presided over by F. M. Jones. Short talks were made by Rev. F. C. McCormick and Earl Crawford before pledges were asked.

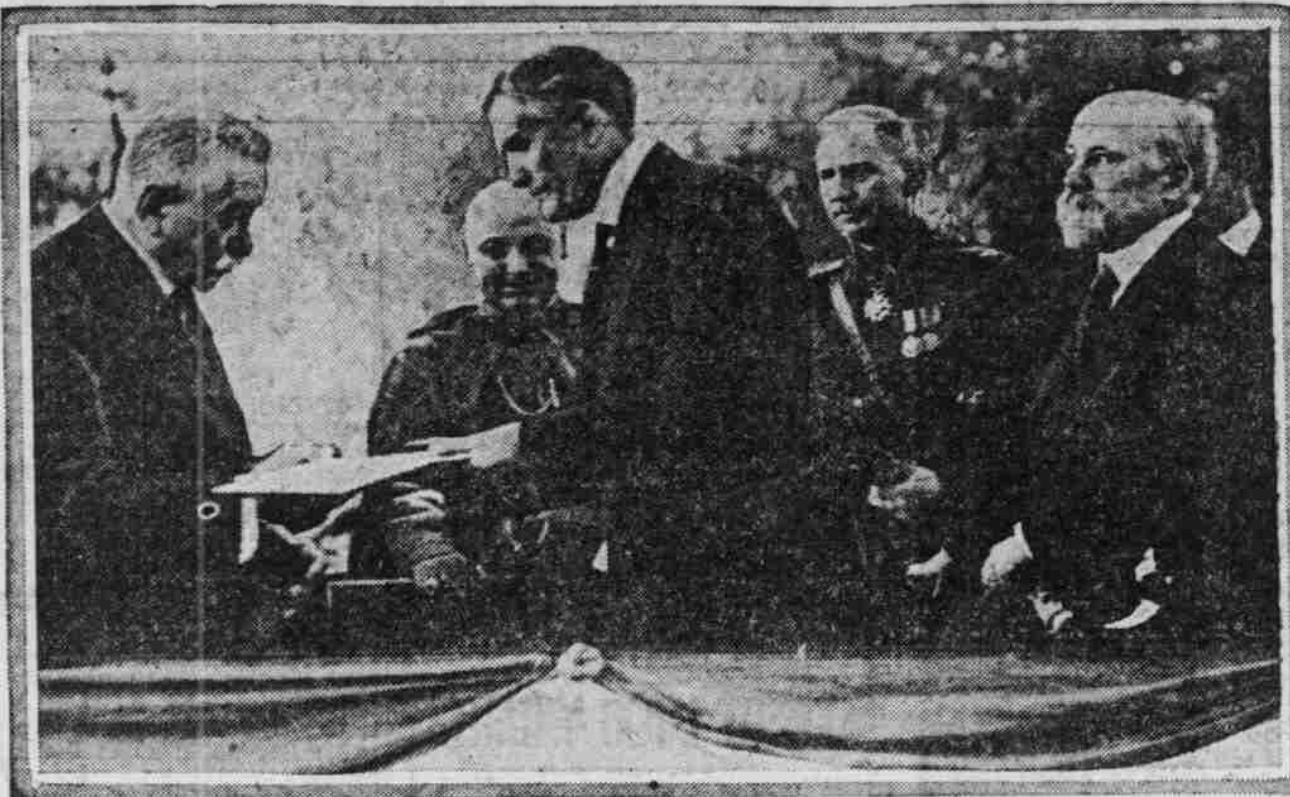

A church building sufficient for the needs of the community and with provision for future expansion if necessary, was asked by Rev. McCormick. He told of an Indianapolis friend and of Mrs. Burris living in Cent township, who already had asked to be allowed to help in the reconstruction. He told of construction features of several churches which he has visited recently. The value of a church to a community in impressing the children with the value of religious training was also pointed out.

Upon this latter point, Earl Crawford laid special emphasis. "We have one of the best rural communities in the state, and it is largely due to our church home," he said. "If a man living in Indianapolis thinks enough of the church to contribute to it, how much more should we give? This church has been a non-stock, non-profit organization, from which we have been drawing dividends all the time. Now we are called upon to replace it with some of those dividends. We would think nothing of replacing a farm tool that had given 40 years of good service and that is what we have had from the old building. We have received its benefits whether we stepped inside it or not, and if we continue to enjoy its advantages, we must rebuild."

After announcing that pledges would be accepted payable in five installments, one of cash and four yearly payments, Chairman Jones appointed Mrs. Ray Williams and Charles Calloway as clerks and called for subscriptions.

List of Subscribers
The subscribers, with their pledges, were: Anna Elliott Clingman, $1.65; Ladies Aid, Earl Crawford, Ben Wagner, Charles Barber, R. Frank Calloway, Paul Ferris, Hiram Crook, $500 each; F. M. Jones, $400; Rev. F. C. McCormick and family, E. P. Jones, George Wagner, $300 each; Charles H. Calloway, Earl Clingman, Ed Wilson, J. E. and Malinda Moore, R. W. Warren, $200 each; Henry Hess, Alvin Doll, Ora White, C. E. Pittman, Alma Wagner, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Levertown, Benton Wissler, Carl Williams, Grover Slonaker, Albert Sarver, Harris, M. Hicks, Wilbur Napier, Alfred Samson, Dr. C. E. Denny, Mont Leake, $100 each; Mrs. M. S. Barton, $75; Lyle My-

UNIVERSITY-CROPS MEN SAY FERTILIZERS DO NOT CAUSE SOURING OF FARM LANDS

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 18.—The fact that Ohio soils have become noticeably acid during the opening years of the present century, and that this period corresponds to the period in which most commercial fertilizers have been used, by no means supports the belief that fertilizers make the land sour, crops men at Ohio State university assert. On the contrary, they say, there now is conclusive proof that fertilizers do not hasten acidity.

"Acidity in land largely is due to the leaching out of limestone from the soil and to a lesser extent to the removal of crops," said Earl Jones of the university extension force. "Cultivation hastens the leaching of lime from the soil, but as to fertilizers, it is a fact that liberally fed soils do not show the effects of soil acidity to the extent that unfertilized soils do."

"Perhaps, because of its name, acid phosphate is not often suspected by farmers of souring the land. There is no acid in acid phosphate; it takes its name from the fact that sulphuric acid is used in the factory to render the phosphoric acid in the raw phosphate rock more available to plants. Well-mixed acid phosphate carries absolutely no acid into the soil, and it does not increase the acidity of the soil."

"The only way to cope with soil acidity, is to replace the limestone which leaches away with limestone applications to the top soil. Lime and phosphate are Ohio's chief fertilizer needs."

Spraying corn is an idea new in Ohio, and it can be used to some extent in connection with the far or dust barrier to keep chinch bugs out of the cornfields next month, agricultural experts at Ohio State university advise.

If the outer rows of corn show chinch bugs before a barrier can be made, it will pay to spray these rows with a solution of nicotine sulfate and soapy water, says T. H. Parks, extension entomologist at the university. "Mix a tablespoonful of the nicotine sulfate, sometimes known as black leaf 40, with a gallon of water," he said. "Spray the stalks of the first row of corn, if covered with bugs, using a hand or bucket sprayer. Hit the bugs with the spray, it will kill them, and will not hurt the corn."

BAKER TO ORGANIZE WAYNE DEMOCRATS

Fred Baker, former prosecuting attorney of Marion county, will lead the organization work of local Democrats in this county, according to an announcement made Monday. Baker will make a three weeks' stay in Richmond while organizing this county. Details as to the plan of organization have not been made public.

Mr. Baker will be assisted in his work by Mayor James A. Clifton of Connersville, and Charles Hack, district chairman, of Newcastle. Organization work will be started June 26, when a meeting of Democratic workers is held in the K. of P. assembly hall.

COUNCIL'S DECISION ON DAYLIGHT SAVING TO BE MADE TONIGHT

The question of whether the daylight saving ordinance is to be repealed will be finally decided by the city council Monday evening. An ordinance introduced at a special meeting on the Thursday following the last regular meeting of the council, comes up for third reading Monday evening.

So strong was the sentiment manifested against the daylight saving plan after it had been adopted by the council at the last regular meeting that Mayor Handley called a special meeting in order that council might have an opportunity to take its stand again for or against the measure.

No opposition was seen at the meeting in the council chamber that evening, although a few citizens were present to see how the matter was decided. The ordinance repealing the daylight saving plan was given two readings and then laid over till the next meeting by a vote of six to five.

Concerts in every park in the city will come up for discussion. A resolution establishing a system of collecting funds for the concerts will be introduced by the resolutions committee. People will be given a chance to show their interest in the concerts by making contributions at various business houses in the city.

Lighting Ordinance Reading
An ordinance for an ornamental lighting system on South Seventh street, will be given final reading. Another ordinance introduced at the last meeting, appropriating money for a small truck to be used by the park superintendent, also comes up for third reading.

The traffic ordinance and an ordinance to bar carnivals from the city, will not be brought up at the meeting this evening, but will be discussed at a meeting of the ordinance committee, with representatives of various organizations, at a meeting Tuesday evening.

The plumbing code which was referred to the building inspector and the ordinance committee at the last meeting, will not be brought up.

Because City Attorney Kuley has been occupied with the trial of the Land-Diks suit and has not had time to draw up the ordinance providing for a rest room in the basement of the light plant office building, this subject probably will rest another two weeks, Councilman H. S. Stillinger, member of the committee on public welfare, said Monday.

RELIGIOUS REVIVALS IN COLLEGES NEEDED, STUDENTS ARE TOLD

(By Associated Press)

WILLIAMS BAY, Wis., June 17.—Religious revivals in all colleges and universities are needed to raise the moral standards of students according to A. J. Elliott of Chicago, in speaking today at the International Student conference at College Camp, Lake Geneva, under the auspices of the international committee of the Y. M. C. A. He urged that prayer meetings be substituted in fraternities and sororities for "petting parties."

"Carousals at fraternity houses are leading many of the students to a low level of morality," said Mr. Elliott. "Students with evangelistic zeal can transform the fraternities by substituting prayer meetings for petting parties."

"Those college publications so vile that they cannot go through the mails should be replaced by publications produced under the supervision of Christian editors that will raise the moral standard of the students."

"The students themselves must organize vigilance committees to organize righteousness on the campus. Such a movement on the part of the students will do more to check immorality, to eliminate cheating in athletics and study, to inspire each other to deeds of nobility and to promote good-will than any arbitrary measures adopted by the faculties could possibly do. There has been a terrible moral let-down in the college life during the last few years but there can be a great uplift in the future through the aggressiveness of Christian students. A religious revival is needed in every college and university and the students may take the initiative by prayer and deeds to bring it about."

The conference was held at College Camp, Lake Geneva, under the auspices of the international committee of the Y. M. C. A. He urged that prayer meetings be substituted in fraternities and sororities for "petting parties."
