

SHIPPING OF HOGS AT NIGHT RULE IN CENTER TOWNSHIP

CENTERVILLE, Ind., June 24.—Night shipment of hogs for the Indianapolis market is the rule in Center township now, the new facilities put in by the co-operative association and the convenient schedule made possible by the electric line, combining to make this possible. Two more carloads shipped Friday night, as well as regular shipments of carload lots weekly or oftener, testify to the general satisfaction with the new method, according to Ben Gaiser, the manager. Shipment at night has resulted in cutting the shrinkage to very small amounts, that on the last shipment being only eight-tenths of a pound, while even at the highest it has not exceeded four and a half pounds, a hundred.

"Hogs are brought into the station while it is cool, generally after 7 o'clock at night," said Mr. Gaiser, "and are allowed a good rest. They are loaded at midnight or early in the morning, have a two-hour run to the stockyards, and are unloaded immediately upon arrival. The quick handling means the minimum of disturbance to the hogs, and we find that they eat as heartily as if at home, take on a good fill and sell to advantage."

"The better shipping facilities have converted several more farmers to the idea of shipping through us, and the association is drawing from a wide territory now, although the bulk of the stock comes from near at hand. The two cars shipped Friday night contained hogs belonging to two farmers, one in Center and one in Abington townships, who had never shipped through the association before."

Lighting System.
The yards have been fitted up with a lighting system, taking current from the interurban line. A few hours' work on shipping nights suffices to care for the hogs, whereas it would be an all day job watching the stock and working to prevent losses from the heat if shipments were made in daytime.

"We have shipped more stock under the new system for the time it has been in operation than during any similar period under the old method," said the manager. "It means less trouble and expense, less danger of loss from heat, and shorter time between the home feeding yards and the packing house."

A marketing cost of 33 to 43 cents a hundred under the new system is reported by the manager. This covers all expenses of taking the hogs from the farm of the producer to delivering them into the hands of the packer. A margin of 40 cents a hundred would cover expenses in every case where a full load can be secured, he said, the 43 cent charge being due to a car which was not quite filled. The smallest charge made since the new plan was started, is 33 cents. I would be very glad to undertake the task of buying on a 50 cent margin and shipping to Indianapolis on my own risk."

MOST FAMOUS DUKE OF LINE OF ORMONDE

[From the Detroit News]
Thomas, the Black Earl, spent the greater part of his life wrestling with rebellion and when his lands were harried by the Desmond Geraldines, Elizabeth gave him his revenge by appointing him in 1580 military governor of Munster, with a commission to "banish and vanquish these cankered Desmonds." In three months by his own account, he put to the sword 46 captains, 800 notorious traitors and 4,000 others, and after four years' fighting Gerald Earl of Desmond, was taken and killed.

The most famous of the long line of Ormondes was James Butler, the twelfth earl, created Duke of Ormondes in 1661. He was six times lord-lieutenant of Ireland, and, having vehemently opposed a bill prohibiting the importation of Irish cattle into England, which struck a blow at Irish trade, he retaliated by prohibiting the import into Ireland of Scottish commodities. Walter, Count Butler, the dragon officer who carried out the murder of Wallenstein in 1634, was a descendant of the third earl.

This organization is a guarantee that the right distribution will be made of the funds collected and that EVERY worthy organization in the city WILL GET a SQUARE DEAL.

The object in making one solicitation for the entire year is to save the time of the workers, the time of the givers, and the time of those connected with the institutions.

By selecting a certain number of days of the year, raising the fund in that time, the entire city is saved expense and thousands of hours of time.

The plan places the raising of this money on a business basis and its distribution under the direction of business men.

The men and women of this organization, and many hundreds of loyal men and women who will call upon you during the days of June 28, 29, 30, and July 1, are giving their time absolutely without a thought of return, except the warm feeling about their hearts that tells them of work well done.

They are playing the glad game, glad to do what they can for the unfortunate, the sick, the maimed, the blind.

They are doing more: they are giving their money gladly, giving all they can—sorry they can't give more.

These are the people who are asking you to help them fill the Community Chest. "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you."

How Much Shall I Give?

Let each do according to his ability and his own conscience. Let each, according to his own good fortune, do his best. The fund is all for you, your neighbor and your brother citizen.

"Do unto others as you would have others do unto you."

The members of the Welfare League will appreciate your generous support in this great community undertaking.
