

SENATE ENJOYS SHOW PRODUCED BY WATSON AND SEN. M'CUMBER

By KENNETH W. CLARK
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, July 13.—The Senate has entered the show business: "Smiling Jim" Watson, of Indiana, assisted by Senator McCumber, North Dakota, and members of the finance committee, is chief "barker" and exhibitor.

During the long, tedious debates on the tariff, Watson and McCumber originated the idea of illustrating the effect of tariff rates by bringing articles into the Senate for exhibition.

The "senate sideshow" includes everything from a toy monkey to the latest design in foreign made shot-guns.

Other exhibits consist of cuckoo clocks, watches, paddocks, bird cages, electric hair dryers, cabbage seeds, beads, towels, handkerchiefs, knives, canes, carving sets, thermos bottles, pearl necklaces, straw hats, curling irons, pipes, suit cases, plates and blankets.

The toy monkey exhibit drew unusual attention, both from the Republican and Democratic sides, and afforded a packed gallery with considerable amusement.

Exhibits Monkeys.

After telling the senate of the wide difference in American and foreign prices on a long list of articles, Watson picked up the stuffed monkey, and looking straight at Senator Harrison of Mississippi, declared:

"Now I come to something which will excite the sensibilities of my good friend from Mississippi. He has examined it carefully, and I thought he might be interested in the address that William Jennings Bryan has been making, in which Bryan is attempting to convince the American people that there is nothing to the theory of evolution and that neither he nor his ancestors descended from monkeys, in accordance with the Darwinian theory of evolution."

"I will say to my friend from Mississippi," Watson continued, "that I haven't any intention at all of saying anything about the ancestry of the Democratic party and that he need not give himself such great concern by coming over to my desk and examining this article, but had our mutual friend, William Jennings Bryan any idea of the vast profit made out of this stilted imitation of a monkey, I do not think he would have taken such great umbrage from the thought of our descent from the real simian article."

Spread in Prices.

The foreign cost was 19 cents, the landed cost was 31 cents; the retail cost was $2; the spread between the foreign cost and the retail price was 952 per cent; the spread between the landed cost and the retail price was 545 per cent."

"I think if facts can prove anything," Watson continued, "I have shown, first, with respect to the cost of production abroad, that it's very cheapness is something which we can not compete, and in the absence of a protective tariff American industry would be undermined and destroyed."

Watson has stage managed three "tariff productions." In the next show he plans to train a number of additional "senator-actors" for a pageant, with each senator carrying some foreign-made article around the chamber.
