

SHORT SKIRTS GOING; BOBBED HEADS TABOO; FLAT HEELS DOOMED

(By United Press)
NEW YORK, July 22.—In accordance with the evolution of dress, flappers are destined to be relegated to the junk heap of forgotten fashions.

The little knee-length skirts and saucy hats are doomed to rest in the garret with the hoop skirts and bonnets of other days.

The bobbed head-dress is to receive the same fate of the spit curls of yesterday. The household cook is to fall heir to the low-heeled sandals.

And the culprit who wished all of this on us is—the long skirt. There is no use arguing about it, the long skirt is coming back. Some joy-killers say it is here already.

"What does the long skirt have to do with ousting the flapper?" you ask. "Can you imagine a long-skirted female with a crop of short hair? It can't be done."

The little bobbed heads simply demanded the bobbed skirts and now with skirts reaching within four inches of the floor, the flapper is certainly undergoing "one of the crises of her life."

Taste in Dinner Frocks.
"American women are better dressed on the streets than when in smart restaurants and roof gardens," commented a French connoisseur of gowns who returned to Paris this week.

"It is surprising," he said, "to note the difference between the excellent taste of American street costumes and the lack of taste in dinner frocks. On the Avenue, one finds little distinction between the shop girl and the debutante."

The underslip for these above mentioned gowns need not be of silk, for the lingerie materials are fully as soft and are far less expensive.

One can not tell the woman with her name on the social register how she should dress in public places, but her breeding and good tastes should tell her that too much elaboration is not the thing.

They are as beautifully shod; their gowns have all the chic of the French creations; their bearing reminds one of the ancient Greeks and their figures are superb. But," he added, "they could learn the art of dressing for the dinner hours and for the roof gardens from the European women. In America there is either too much over dressing or too much under dressing at informal gatherings."

Glance About.
Those of us who resent foreign criticism of American women's dress, will do well to glance about us at the smart restaurants. If the debutante, the shop girl, the society matron and the manufacturer can not be told apart upon our streets, they can there. The debutante is usually too overpoweredly gowned in evening frocks that should be worn exclusively at formal functions. The shop girl with the out of town buyer is either gowned in a home-made replica of the gown of the debutante, or in a street dress with a street hat. The flapper flaps at the dinner hour just as she has flapped all day—fringed skirt, woolen hose, sweater and with a sport hat flopping over one eye.

In a room of 200 women perhaps only 20 will be properly gowned. We are an odd mixture of weeds and orchids.

At public places, where anyone who has the price of a dinner may congregate, there should be the semi-evening frock. These should not be cut too extreme in décolleté and should have some semblance of sleeves.

Advice to Flapper.
The flapper should out of her flapper raiment at the dinner hours, into a sheer little organdy, or into a pretty, colorful georgette. She can look just as girlish in a little snug-fitting bodice with tiny puffed sleeves and a full, fluffy skirt as she can in knee-length plaids which are only suitable for sport or day wear.

The shop girl will find a mauve or dull hued crepe de chine suitable for dinner wear and one which will come within the bounds of her pocketbook. By selecting georgette in neutral shades which are so popular just now, she may add different colored slips and sashes and feel that she has an entirely new frock.

Change Underslip.
The same suggestion can be used with the Spanish lace gowns that are having such a vogue at present. A mauve colored lace frock cut on long waisted lines, with wide flowing lace sleeves and uneven hemline, may be worn over salmon yellow, orchid, or orange or any pastel shade that is becoming. By changing the underslip, the whole gown is changed.

Reds are considered dead in Paris, although greens continue to be popular in shades such as reseda, water green and that bluish green that is found on iron. Soft shades, such as tan, gray, golden brown, mocha and powder blue are smarter than high colors.

Beaded velvet gowns will be popular this fall.

Ku Klux Klan Initiation

Held East of Richmond

Members of the Ku Klux Klan met Friday night about four miles east of the city in a field 500 yards south of the national road. The assembly, which evidently was held for initiation purposes, was plainly visible from the main highway and seemed to be gathered about an electrically lighted cross. Headlights of automobiles parked in a semi-circle provided light for the ceremony. The meeting closed with the singing of "America," which was played audible from the road. The guards were called in at 11:20 o'clock. It is estimated that approximately 600 people attended the meeting. They came to the scene of the ceremonies in automobiles.

Helen Cavnah and Under Sheriff "Handsome Bob" Robertson. "Handsome Bob" Robertson, dashing and debonair, was under sheriff of Ventura county, Cal., and he was as popular with the more or less fair sex as any matinee idol. Now he is in jail, held as a common thief. Yes, 'twas a woman that put him there. She liked flowers, gossamer and languorous motor rides. When Robertson was arrested for taking a certified check for $2,222 from the sheriff's office, the girl, "Anita," disappeared, and so did Helen Cavnah, Robertsons fiancée.

BANDITS DON'T WORRY AMERICAN CITIZENS

By FRED K. G. NEUMEIER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

TAMPIO, Mexico, July 22.—Americans in Tampico are not worried over the numerous reports of attacks by bandits.

While they admit the attacks in many instances are serious, they have become so used to the continual reports that they are not alarmed.

The alleged bandit raids are not even discussed, but instead the conversations, when not about oil, are about golf, baseball, dances, etc.

Most of the Americans in Tampico live in their own homes. All of the large companies have special homes for their officials, which are in groups of colonies and guarded by the company's police. Other Americans live in homes in various parts of the city.

Oil companies have constructed several ball parks and an "oil league" plays a regular schedule.

The Los Mangos golf club, an American institution, has a fine course of nine holes and a golf house near the city. This course was completed May 1, 1922. Garven Scott McCurdy, an oil official and managing editor of the Foreign Legionaire, is the director of the club.

The American Legion is very active in the city and takes the lead in arranging for entertainment for the Americans.

The Fourth of July celebration, which began early in the morning and ended with a dance at night, surpassed many of the larger celebrations in the United States. All the English-speaking people in the city joined with the Americans in the celebration which was staged by the legion. The Mexican general in this district had his band furnish the music for the day.

American women take an active part in the entertainments and they have formed an auxiliary to assist the legion.
