

KU KLUX KLAN IS NOT FIRST ORGANIZATION FOSTERING RACIAL AND RELIGIOUS HATRED; FALSE BASIC PRINCIPLE UNDERMINES THEM

The Ku Klux Klan excludes from its communion, not only the negro and the Jew but two other important classes of our population—the foreign born and the Catholic, and apparently seeks to debar these from equal political rights.

It is not the first society which has drawn this line. Hostility to foreigners and to Catholics dates back to colonial days and the Protestants were apparently much more intolerant than were the Catholics themselves.

For while the Puritans in New England were boring the tongues of Quakers with red hot iron, while they were flogging Baptists and Quakers at the cart tail and even inflicting the death penalty upon heretics; while the adherents of the Church of England in Virginia were depriving both Catholics and Dissenters of all civil rights, it was the Catholic colony of Maryland which established its government upon the basis of complete religious toleration.

Many Go to Colony
Protestants as well as Catholics immigrated to that colony to enjoy the blessings of full religious liberty. So, when we criticize, however justly, Roman Catholic intolerance in other countries and at other times, we ought not to forget that here in America they took the first great step, a step which up to that time was unknown in the world, in establishing a government founded upon complete religious liberty.

After the Revolution, much of our intolerance faded away. Yet as early as 1807, an "American" ticket was put in the field in New York city. This was the first attempt to form a native-born American organization. The ticket was defeated. In 1835 another organization was formed which received the name of the "American Democratic Association." It opposed the Catholic church and all office-holding by the foreign born. The Whigs joined this organization, but afterwards absorbed it and ruined it for the time as a native American movement.

Other Organizations.
In 1844, there was organized in New York the "American Republican Party" which nominated candidates for mayor and city council. Similar organizations were formed in Boston, Philadelphia, and St. Louis and carried the election. In the following year an organization was formed called the "Native American Party," but each year it declined in numbers and soon passed out of existence.

Some years later there was organized "The Order of the Star Spangled Banner" commonly called "The Know Nothings" which established a system of national, state and local councils and in 1855, every state and territory in the Union had been organized. On June 14, 1854, a general convention met in New York and protested among other things against the evils of foreign immigration as well as against Romanism, which they looked upon as a great conspiracy to enslave Protestant America. A ritual was adopted at this meeting. To become a member, a person must be a Protestant, born of Protestant parents in the United States, reared under Protestant influence and not married to a Catholic. It sought to conceal the personnel of its membership and to keep absolutely all knowledge of the order from the outside world. To avoid questioning they professed ignorance of all matters pertaining to the society, the only reason they were dubbed "Know Nothings."

First Indiana Lodge.
The first lodge in Indiana was organized in February, 1854 at Lawrenceburg and the order spread rapidly through the towns along the Ohio and later through the central and northern part of the state. The Rushville Jacksonian says, "It is a rehearsal of native Americanism, gotten up on such a scale that Whig politicians can follow their instinct by joining without being exposed."

The Logansport Democratic Pharos says, "Like an ill-omened bird of night, this society, afraid to meet the light of day and honestly avow its purpose, holds its gatherings in secret."

In July, 1854, it claimed a membership of 60,000 in Indiana. The old Burnt District (our own) soon became a Know Nothing stronghold. The order formed a fusion with the People's Party which held a convention at Indianapolis in 1854. Probably three-fourths of the delegates were Know Nothings and fusion candidates were secretly nominated by the Know Nothing county councils. On July 11, a state constitution was adopted, George W. Julian said of the fusion convention: "The ticket nominated had been agreed upon by the Know Nothings the day before in secret conclave at the outside world afterwards learned."

The secrecy of the movement threw it open to many charges. It was considered cowardly and un-American and preventive of the free expression of the people at the ballot box.

Opposed by Morton
Oliver P. Morton was repelled by its secret measures, its opposition to the Catholic church and its desire to exclude foreigners. In convention at Cambridge City the Know Nothings attempted to nominate Morton but as he was not willing to connect himself with their organization they secured the nomination of D. P. Holloway. The council of Wayne county fixed up a ticket on Sept. 16, 1854, that was introduced and accepted with two exceptions at the convention at Centerville one week later. The principles of the order included the repeal of all naturalization laws, the election of none but native Americans in office, "war to the hilt" on Romanism and the amplest protection of Protestant interests.

The Know Nothings had to take the utmost care to preserve the secrecy of their meetings, the signals for which were given by scattering bits of paper of different shapes and colors and in such a way as to designate the place and the time. In Bloomington they met in the midst of a field where there was a tall grove of fennel. One lodge in Crawfordsville was in a deserted house in the woods. A lodge at Georgetown met at night in a cornfield. But at last all its secrets became exposed with its constitution and ritual secured from a drunken member and were published in the Indianapolis Sentinel Sept. 18, 1854.

Disorders Follow.
The result of this organization was that foreign born citizens went armed. In Franklin county, Germans attended a funeral armed with bowie knives and prepared to go armed to the polls on election day. Riots and assaults on individuals were common. At an election Oct. 10, 1854, the Know Nothings of New Albany and Jeffersonville were charged with importing bulles from Louisville to assault foreigners and Catholics and prevent their voting, and brass knuckles were used to help carry the election.

If a meeting were called to denounce Know Nothingism, it was drowned out by the shouts of the Know Nothings. Julian says that in his own town (Genterville) they succeeded by brute force in taking possession of every building in which their opponents could meet and silencing them by savage yells. (June, 1855) More than twenty persons were killed in riots at Louisville in August, 1855, for which the Know Nothings received the blame.

Even at Washington, the national capital, a mob forced its way into a shed near the Washington monument and broke to pieces a beautiful block of marble which came from the Temple of Concord at Rome and had been sent by the pope as his tribute to the memory of Washington.

Mob Violence
A street preacher, who styled himself the Angel Gabriel, incited a crowd in Chelsea, Mass., to deeds of violence. They smashed the windows of a Catholic church, tore a cross from the gable and shivered it to atoms. Catholic churches were also destroyed in Philadelphia.

In 1855, a national council met at Philadelphia to adopt a declaration of principles. They insisted that congress ought not to prohibit slavery in any territory and had no power to execute any state from admission to the Union, because its constitution recognized slavery. This declaration was so objectionable to the northern Know Nothings that the Indiana council with those of 11 other states seceded from the national organization. They were bitterly denounced by the southern members who turned them "a rotten limb hewn off from the American party."

Then the delegates from 15 southern counties seceded from the Indiana council and those who remained (the anti-slavery wing of the organization) became more closely allied with the Republicans and modified their demands as native Americans, agreeing to a naturalization period of five years instead of 21.

But by this time the secrets of the Know Nothings had been exposed, there was no longer any mystery and they were now holding political conventions and adopting platforms like any other party. Their every plan was laid bare to the public and from this time forward the order was better known as the American party.

In 1856 it adopted a platform that Americans must rule America and that native born citizens should be selected for all offices in preference to all others and nominated Fillmore for the presidency but at the election he received only the electoral vote of Maryland and the party soon disappeared from history.

In the words of the Encyclopedia Britannica "Its only real contribution to the history of the United States was the revelation of the power of the secret society."

It costs the United States $200,000,000 a year to feed its rat population. In return for our hospitality they waste our substance, bring us a choice assortment of diseases, and scatter filth.

We do little to combat them. Haphazard trapping and poisoning are not effective. The war against them must be systematic, organized, scientific. to government was the proof that nativism is not Americanism. Public opinion has never accepted its estimate of the alien nor Catholic citizens."

Lincoln's views in regard to it were shown in a letter which he wrote in 1859, quoted in his "Life by Nicolay and Hay," his private secretaries (Vol. 11, 181), declaring his opposition to the waning fallacy of Know Nothingism. Referring to the provision lately adopted by Massachusetts to restrict the naturalization of aliens, he said, "As I understand the Massachusetts provision, I am against its adoption in Illinois or in any other place where I have a right to oppose it. Understanding the spirit of our institutions to aim at the elevation of men, I am opposed to whatever tends to degrade them. I have some little notoriety for commiserating the oppressed conditions of the negro and I should be strangely inconsistent if I could favor any project for curtailing the existing rights of white men even though born in different lands and speaking different languages from myself."

The question for us is, do we want such an organization to be reestablished under another name and to involve in its train the hatred, bigotry, riots, and acts of violence which have been the inevitable consequences where one part of a community is stirred up against another. America has a right to protect herself against undesirable immigrants, against criminals, paupers, the diseased, and other elements which will not assimilate with our people, but as to those who are already among us, whatever their nationality, creed or race, we are bound to treat them exactly as we treat ourselves by giving them the full benefits of all the rights of American citizenship.

2-WAY SHIP CANAL FOR LAKE SHIPPING WOULD AID CHICAGO

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 1.—A two-way ship canal between Lakes Superior and Michigan, deep enough for ocean steamers, could be built at a reasonable cost and would divert to this route and to Chicago at least seventy-five per cent of the tonnage which now goes through Sault Ste. Marie, according to D. Chase Denison, a Chicago engineer.

After surveying the territory through which it was proposed to build such a canal, Mr. Denison said that the best place for the cut-off route would be from a point near Au Train, Mich., on Lake Superior to the headwaters of the bay north of Escanaba, Mich., on Lake Michigan.

It was pointed out that any ship canal from Lake Michigan south to the Gulf of Mexico would require more water than Lake Michigan could at present supply. As an example the engineer showed that the Panama canal would be useless without the artificial lake which keeps the canal full of water. And Lake Michigan, he said, is shrinking. Since the government began to keep records, the surface of the lake has been lowered several inches. Half a century ago the lake was said to be slightly less than 620 feet above the surface of the Atlantic ocean and is now said to be little more than 618 feet above the Atlantic. According to Mr. Denison, the greater part of this shrinkage has taken place during the last 15 years.

U. S. BALLOON RACER WINS INTERNATIONAL PLACE BY BIG FLIGHT
(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Major Oscar Westover, who will represent the United States Army in the International Balloon Races for the Gordon Bennett trophy in Geneva, Switzerland, won his place by winning the national elimination race from Milwaukee, last May. His balloon won from a large field, travelling almost twice as far as any other bag and landing in Quebec. He was the only contestant who landed outside of the United States.

Major Westover is listed among the few higher army officers who won their way to commissions by way of the ranks. He started as a private in K company of the Third Battalion of engineers, in 1901, and a year later was appointed to the Military Academy. He graduated in 1906 and was assigned to the infantry. Most of his service has been in the infantry, in which arm of the service he won distinction as a rifleman and expert shot. Prior to the participation of the United States in the world war he served in the Signal Corps, being assigned to the Air Service in 1918, in which he rose to the temporary rank of colonel.

Major Westover's service in the army has been distinguished. He served in several responsible positions, among them at posts at the Port of Embarkation at Hoboken. He was largely responsible for the organization of the Bureau of Aircraft Production and served as Executive of the Air Service, from 1919 to 1920.
