U. S. COULD CORRECT FOREIGN EXCHANGE, IS FORMER VICE PRESIDENT'S OPINION

Former Vice President Thomas R. Marshall and Mrs. Marshall on board the Aquitania.

If the great American bankers would take hold of the European exchange it could be corrected. This is the opinion of Thomas R. Marshall, former vice president of the United States, who recently returned with Mrs. Marshall from a three months' vacation trip to Europe. Mr. Marshall seemed in rather poor health upon his return home, but said he was returning to Indianapolis by way of Washington and, if he carried out his plans, would stop and see Woodrow Wilson.

Circus Contest Ticket Winners Are Announced

Winners in the Palladium's Circus Ticket contest were announced Wednesday as follows: Merle Williams, 121 South Fifteenth street; Mrs. Ed Reis, 1088 North G street; Mr. Joe Reis, 1028 North G street; Miss Hazel Miller, Advance company; Charlotte Colvin, 21 North Twelfth street; Sarah Poirer, 230 Southwest Fourth street; Kenneth Polner, 230 Southwest Fourth street; Edith Hasekoster, 415 South Fifth street; Mrs. E. Vosamer, 315 Lincoln street; Mrs. W. E. Klehfoth, 222 Kinsey street; Mary Alice Daub, 237 South Seventh street; Clem Longfellow, 206 North Ninth street; Glenn Kenney, 118 North Fourteenth street; Miss Julia Taube, 220 South Twenty-first street. These persons were the first to turn in correct answers to the puzzle contest which was announced Monday in the Palladium. Many other answers were received and many were correct but the tickets were awarded to the first 14 answers which fulfilled all the conditions of the contest. For each correct answer the Palladium has awarded one reserved seat ticket to the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus to be held in Athletic park Wednesday afternoon and evening.

The contest was announced at the top of a full page of advertising matter. In each advertisement on this page there were one or more words which contained a letter that was superfluous. These letters were to be taken down and formed into a sentence containing three words and the first 14 answers received were to receive the prizes. The correct answer to the puzzle is: "Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus."

TRACY'S COFFEE The Delightful Drink

Weatherwax, Scientist, Tells Why Popcorn Pops

From the Detroit News Paul Weatherwax, a member in the science department of Indiana university, after a special study of the subject, tells why popcorn pops. The cause, says Mr. Weatherwax, runs in brief something like this: "The popping of grain corn is an explosion due to the expansion, under pressure of moisture, contained in the starch grains. Until the instant of the explosion, this force is confined by the colloidal matrix in which the starch grains are embedded. Neither air nor any volatile oil is in any way concerned with the process as the expansive medium. As a result of popping there is hydrolysis of much of the starch, a loss of all cellular structure in the endosperm."

Mr. Weatherwax gives a few practical tips as to how to produce the best results in popping, the heat must be applied rapidly enough to generate steam faster than it escapes, but slowly enough to permit hydrolysis of most of the starch before the explosion occurs. Best results are obtained when the heat is so applied that a temperature of 175 to 200 degrees centigrade is reached in two and half to three minutes.

It is estimated that no more than 1 per cent of all the inventions that pass yearly through the patent office bring fortune to the inventor.

They Ask You What It Is

When intimate friends call in the evening you often like to serve Ice Cream and Cake. Next time, try serving and you will observe an unusual thing: your guests will ask you what brand of Ice Cream it is.

Bender's French Ice Cream is so much finer than all other Ice Creams that its superiority is at once noticeable. That subtle, indescribable flavor cannot be stated in words, but it is instantly discoverable, and its richness and velvety smoothness make it the ideal Ice Cream.
