

BABY SHOW FOR FAIR PROPOSED BY CHIEF OF WOMEN'S DIVISION

A baby show, with classes for babies aged six months, a year and two years, will be one of the popular features of the fair if a suggestion made by Mrs. W. D. Scott, superintendent of the women's department, to the fair board, is carried out. The board met at the county agent's office.

The proposal to hold a baby show in connection with the fair was heartily approved and has since met with a most cordial response from everyone to whom it was mentioned.

The Red Cross organization has been conducting physical examinations of young children in many communities of the county, in co-operation with local physicians and health authorities, with the result that practically every part of the county has several babies who are probable candidates for the blue ribbon.

A baby show was most heartily encouraged by those who had experience of the baby show of the Dublin fair last year where this department was one of the most popular in the whole fair. Another one is scheduled for the Dublin fair again next year.

Favor Show.
The co-operation of the county Red Cross has been requested in supervising the show, and authorities of the organization who could be reached Wednesday expressed themselves in favor of it. The same organization is assisting in the management of the Dublin show this year.

Securing of judges for the fair, minor changes in the premium lists, with more exact definitions of some classes, arrangements for the boy and girl club members' show were other matters discussed at the meeting of their fair board.

Permission to secure a judge from Purdue for the department was accorded Mrs. W. D. Scott, superintendent of the women's division. It was the general opinion of the board that such a judge would prove highly satisfactory to all exhibitors.

Cans Same Size.
Canned displays of fruits, vegetables and jellies will all consist of cans of uniform size, each display consisting of two or three cans of the same size, either quarts or pints, Mrs. Scott stated Tuesday.

Entries in the women's division will close at 10 o'clock standard time Wednesday for the sake of convenience for the judges and early placing of ribbons. Extension of the time until noon, first approved by the fair board, was reconsidered by Mrs. Scott Wednesday, as she is anxious to have ribbons on exhibits in time for the crowd to know who are the prize winners.

Heads of the departments reported good progress in soliciting entries, with a strong interest being manifested. Charles Gifford and F. A. Williams, superintendents of horses and swine, were besieged with requests for premium lists at Greenville by prospective exhibitors. Paul Caldwell has a number of cattle herds promised and other probable exhibitors in prospect, and Charles Williams also, even so early before the fair, has a number of good displays arranged for or promised.

So far as possible, individual judges for the different breeds were favored in the stock show but for breeds in which entries will not be very numerous, the judges will "double up." Separate judges for dairy and beef types in the cattle were favored, and the red and black hogs and the Spotted Poland pigs will have their own judges. Mrs. Irene Reeve, of Rush county, will be secured by Lindley Baker as a judge for the Spotted Poland.

A woman will judge the Spotted Poland China classes, Lindley Baker having made arrangements to secure Mrs. Irene Reeve of Rush county, the widow of a former breeder who continued his work after her husband's death.

Mrs. Reeve recently held a very successful sale and her name is attaining considerable weight as an authority in local stock growing circles. She is taking an especially strong interest in pig club work, and is a member of the newly formed Rush county breed association and most prominent in the 1923 plans for a pig club of 100 members.
