

SCHOOL OF MISSIONS HERE NEXT MONTH; SPEAKERS SECURED

Plans for the annual school for missions and fall work for the Federated Missionary societies were begun Friday at the meeting of the executive board of the federation held at Mrs. A. H. Backus' home.

The School of Missions will be held the third week in October on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, in the First Presbyterian church. Mrs. Hallie Hill, of New York city, will conduct the mission lectures. Mrs. Hill is a brilliant speaker, one of the best among women in this country, and enjoys a national reputation. She is a world traveler and well schooled in her field.

A pageant will be held Friday evening of the week preceding the school, at the East Main Street Friends' church. It is planned to make it an even greater event than the one held last year.

To Serve Committee
Mrs. John Shallenbarger, who headed the pageant committee last year, will again serve in that capacity this fall, it is announced. Members of her committee are: Mrs. W. A. Ellis, Mrs. C. M. Cook, Miss Halcy Harold, Mrs. Fred J. Bant, Mrs. Ruth James and Miss Emily Walker.

Members of the publicity committee for the School of Missions are: Mrs. Paul Comstock, Mrs. Ross W. Stoakes and Mrs. John F. Holaday. Music committee members are: Mrs. Charles Johanning, Mrs. Effie A. Hall and Mrs. H. S. James. Mrs. Richard Sedgewick will have charge of registration for the mission school.

When the federation convenes for the school the third week in October officers for the year are to be elected. The nominating committee appointed is composed of Mrs. T. S. Bond, Mrs. Charles Surrondorf, Mrs. George Ellis and Mrs. Harry Nye.

MRS. HARDING

ing from his path one man who sought to question him.

Late in the afternoon, Secretary of the Navy Denby, just returned from his trip to the Orient, called at the White House and expressed his sympathy to the president. There were many other callers during the day and evening, while telegrams poured in from all sections of the country, inquiring as to Mrs. Harding's condition. Mrs. Sawyer, wife of the president's physician who had been at the White House during the greater part of the day left to return to her hotel. Secretary Christian and Comptroller of the Currency Cressinger, likewise went to their homes when they found they could accomplish nothing by remaining.

CHRISTIAN, long a protegee of Mrs. Harding, was so moved by her grief and anxiety over her illness that it was difficult for him to deliver to newspaper men the bulletin announcing the critical nature of her malady.

Condition Critical
"Boys," said Christian, as he appeared with the official statement, "Mrs. Harding is in a very critical condition."

Comptroller of the Currency Cressinger, who was with Christian, was also visibly affected.
Mrs. Harding's friends attributed the present recurrence of her old trouble to the exceeding trying life she has been called on to lead as first lady of the land. Seldom has Washington seen a mistress of the executive mansion who entered so wholeheartedly into the enormous task imposed by her high position.

When the president and Mrs. Harding entered the White House, March 4, 1921, the social functions were resumed. During the war and the subsequent illness of former President Wilson, Washington society had starved for official gaiety.

The Hardings revived the official functions and added some others. This entailed a tremendous strain upon Mrs. Harding. The excellent care of her health enabled her to undergo the rigors of a Washington social season without impaired vigor. In addition to her social duties and to the not inconsiderable work of running the White House establishment—a task which Mrs. Harding imposed partially on herself—she spent much time and energy in work for disabled war veterans and in other philanthropic and patriotic endeavors.

Many times close friends have warned her not to overtax herself. But Mrs. Harding always laughed kindly at these warnings and kept serenely on.

The president's wife has made a firm place for herself in the affections of Washington people, just as she did with the people she met during Mr. Harding's campaign for the presidency.

NON-STOP FLIGHT AROUND THE WORLD IN PLANE SEEN AS NEW MOTOR'S TEST

Mechanics inspecting motor after its 250-hour test.

The possibility of a non-stop flight around the world in 200 hours instead of the eighty days Jules Verne dreamed of, is seen as the result of a recent test of a new Wright airplane motor. This engine, mounted on a block, ran continuously for 250 hours. At the rate of two miles a minute an airplane driven by this motor could circle the earth in approximately 200 hours. The problem of carrying sufficient gasoline is now being tackled by experts interested in the engine.

REV. WORK TO PREACH SERIES OF SERMONS

"World Superlatives" is the subject of the quarterly series of special sermons, to be delivered by the Rev. W. McClean Work at the Reid Memorial United Presbyterian church this fall. It has been the custom of Reid Memorial, during the present pastorate, to hold a series of special Sunday evening services at the close of each quarter of the year.

The sermon subjects at these services, as has been the case with the series held formerly, deal with problems of current interest from a Christian point of view. The first of the present series, which will be delivered Sunday night, is on the theme "The Greatest Curse in the World—War." In this Mr. Work will deal with present day industrial conditions and the causes from which they arise, as they bear upon the subject of world peace. Mr. Work has had unusual opportunities to study industrial conditions, having been connected with newspaper work in the Pittsburgh district for several years. Sunday night, Sept. 17, the subject will be "The Greatest Blessing in the World—The Home." The third and last of the series, which will be preached Sunday night, Sept. 24, will be on the subject "The Greatest Peril in the World—Disloyalty." During the series there will be special music by the Reid Memorial male quartet, which is composed of Frank Funk, R. B. Jones, Hugh Foss and Walter Luring, and special organ numbers by Mrs. Foss.
