

Days of Spendthrift Sailors Made Thing of Past Under Plan

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 22.—The spendthrift sailor is a thing of the past and the sea-going savings bank plan started by the Lake Carriers' association is given credit for the change.

The prodigal of the sailor with his money when ashore was a byword everywhere until about 10 years ago, when J. H. Sheadle, then a member of the association, and since deceased, proposed a savings bank. Under the co-operation of a Cleveland bank the plan was put in operation.

The captain, in paying off, asked each man as he paid him, if he wished to deposit any part of his pay in the bank. If so, he made a draft on the owner for the amount the sailor wished to deposit. Three copies of the draft were made, the original being mailed to the trust company, one to the owner stating the draft had been made on him, and the other retained by the captain as a record.

The withdrawal blank is an order on the depositor's bank account. The bank honors it by mailing to the address indicated a New York draft to the order of the depositor. In cashing the draft at any port, the depositor may be identified by the captain, or otherwise, or the master himself may cash it if he has the funds. The bank pays four per cent on all deposits.

During the season this year crews on 27 steamers and one barge deposited a total of $165,080.

The Kaiser's Memoirs

The answer to questions that everyone has asked

What kind of man was the Kaiser?

What impelled him to declare war?

What explanation can he have for his country's acts during the world struggle?

What is he thinking in his lonely Doorn exile?

The ex-Kaiser himself has torn away the veil of mystery in this story of his career and overthrow. His explanations and excuses, defenses, defiance and regrets—all are revealed in this monumental work.

It will give the reader a new idea of the causes and results of the world struggle. It will bring a new realization of world politics and diplomacy.

The Memoirs will appear simultaneously throughout the world, in leading newspapers of the United States, as well as in France, England, Italy, Japan, Australia, South Africa, Scandinavia and the Teutonic countries.

From His Place of Exile the ex-Kaiser

Attacks Woodrow Wilson and charges violation of promises made in the Fourteen Points.

Voices his belief in the old yarn about a secret treaty of the United States, Great Britain and France, dating from 1897.

Blames his advisers for the Kruger Dispatch, the Tangier visit and other indiscretions.

Tells of German efforts to form defensive alliances with Great Britain and Russia at various times.

Admits mistakes in diplomacy and politics, and represents himself as too often receptive of bad advice from his Chancellors.
