

12 EXHIBITS TO HANG IN PUBLIC GALLERY DIRECTORS DECIDE

Twelve exhibits will be held at the Public Art gallery this winter, it was decided at a meeting of the board of directors held Friday afternoon, W. D. Foulke, president, presiding. The first will be the Richmond painters' show which is to be formally opened Friday evening, Oct. 6, with a reception in the gallery.

The board also passed upon committees and upon the gallery's activities for the season, which are to include art department lectures, talks on exhibitions, musicals for each exhibit, and a series of travel talks to be given Monday evenings. The travel talks, it is thought, will be of especial interest to the 4,000 persons who were entrants in the art contest last year. P. H. Slocum of the community service, will co-operate in the travel talk undertaking, it was stated.

The association is formulating plans to make possible the bringing of an art teacher here at regular intervals to teach painting to children in the city. Suggestion was also made that the association start a scholarship fund. Miss Blanche Wait, Mrs. J. J. Cathell and Francis Brown were appointed a committee to consider these two matters.

To Increase Fund

It was also decided to make the officers of the association a committee to devise ways and means for increasing the Richmond Museum of Fine Arts fund. The fund now is $600.

Committees appointed for the season are as follows:

Committee on selection, William Dudley Foulke, T. C. Harrington, Francis H. Edmunds, Elwood Morris, Mrs. J. E. Cathell and Oliver J. Erba. Hanging committee, Francis Brown, J. B. Brown, Elmer Kempton, Blanche Wait and Elwood Morris.

Mrs. Paul Comstock was appointed chairman of the social committee, other members being: Mrs. C. S. Bond, Hettie Elliott, Allen, Hole and H. Ray Robinson. Mrs. F. J. Johnston, chairman, Ruth James, and June Robinson form the publicity committee.

Named on Board

Miss Louhead, supervisor of arts in the schools, was appointed to the place of the board left vacant by Miss Florence Williams.

The tentative program of exhibitions announced by the association for this season besides the Richmond exhibit for October includes an exhibition of various forms of printing which will be held in November. The American exhibition will be held from Thanksgiving until a week before Christmas.

The show by Indiana painters will be held in January, the arts and crafts exhibit in February and also the Junior art exhibition and a one-man show.

Other special collections are being arranged, one of them being a collection of reproductions of old masters' pictures.

I. U. ALUMNI ORGANIZE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Preliminary organization for the campaign among Wayne county alumni of Indiana university in the memorial fund drive for money, has been effected at a dinner-meeting which was attended by a small but enthusiastic group of I. U. alumni at the Arlington hotel Friday night.

After some discussion as to the method to be used in the campaign, the following committee was organized:

Committee chairman: Denver P. Harlan, chairman of men's committee; Dr. L. F. Ross, N. C. Helms, Miss Nellie Overman, chairman of women's committee, and Miss Florence Broadus. Dr. Ross will be responsible for the canvass among alumni in the county, and it is probable that he will appoint a committee to help him in this work, for there is a large number of alumni of the state university now in the medical profession.

To Call Meeting Soon

A meeting of these alumni is to be appointed to work on a large general committee in Richmond and vicinity will be called some day the first part of next week and definite assignments made to its members. It is expected that the drive will be launched officially at that time.

Plans made at the meeting Friday night include the appointment of chairmen for districts outside the city. These chairmen will be announced as soon as their appointments have been completed.

A complete roster of all alumni and former students of Indiana university now in Wayne county has not been effected, it was made known at the meeting Friday night.

Alumni present at the meeting vowed themselves as being willing to give all possible assistance to the committee that was selected and all joined in suggestions as to ways and means to be used in bringing the campaign to a quick, successful culmination.

TARIFF TO BE ISSUE SAYS JAMES M. COX

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, Sept. 23.—Asked what the issue will be in 1922 Former Governor James M. Cox, of Ohio, and Democratic nominee for president in 1920 declared here today in his first address since his return from an extensive tour of Europe, made before the City club that the "people this year will be asked to elect a congress that will undo the present tariff monstrosity."

"But we will not lose sight of another great question—the international one," Mr. Cox added. "It will be more pertinent for discussion however in the great national forum of 1924."

"When a surgeon finds an injured man suffering from a severe artery and a broken leg, he sews up the artery first. In the present instance, however, the international question is the domestic injury inflicted by the most incompetent congress in all history, is even worse," he said.

Merits of "Book Job", Coming Here In October Are Told By Star Critic

Stuart Walker's "The Book of Job," one of the classics of the modern day drama, will be presented by the writer's company, Tuesday, Oct. 17, at the Murray theatre. It is brought here by the civics department of the Woman's club.

"The Book of Job" has been given in Indianapolis six times and again during the season of 22 weeks on Oct. 5. Each year the critics have something new to say of this remarkable performance. The Indianapolis Star has said:

"Mr. Walker's dramatic version of 'The Book of Job' is an achievement in the things of the theatre—memorable in conception and execution it is in spirit reverent and awe inspiring and in sensuous beauty both quickening and satisfying as few more pretentious productions have succeeded in being—a work of art in the fullest meaning of the phrase. The simplicity of the dramatization almost defies analysis, as its sincerity disarms criticism."

"Every seat in the Murray was filled yesterday when the part lowering of the house lights to the accompaniment of solemn chiming brought the audience to the receptive state for the slow rising of the curtain upon a darkened stage."

A daring handling of lights gives the changing group an effect unreal but singularly appropriate. The figures seem sculptured in light on shadow, intermittently strains of music of an unearthly sweetness intensifies the moving passage. Color, fabric and a background subtly suggestive testify to an artist's eye in production."

Rose Dougan Realizes Dreams of Preserving Art of Indians

Local Woman Sees Ideas Result in First Annual Southwest Indian Fair—Native Ability Encouraged by Exposition—Rare Handcrafts Invaluable Possessions.

Dreams of Miss Rose Dougan, of this city, for effecting a permanent institution to preserve the passing Indian art and handicrafts, one of America's rarest possessions, were realized this year when the first annual Southwest Indian fair was held in September at Santa Fe. Miss Dougan has long been an ardent worker among the Indians and because of the great confidence which the Indians have for her she has been enabled to be of invaluable service to them and to the government Indian bureau in aiding the Indians and in collecting statistics and other valuable data concerning them, especially old ceremonial and customs which have been rapidly dying out and even lost during the past few years.

The exhibition held this year was said to have been an outgrowth of ideas advanced several years ago by Miss Dougan, who has interested herself in a practical way in Indian handicrafts and has tendered an endowment from the income of which some of the prizes for the fair are derived.

Held in connection with the 20th Santa Fe Fiesta the fair, known as the Southwest Indian Fair and Arts and crafts exhibition was held at Santa Fe in September.

Objects of Fair.

The objects of the exhibition are the encouragement of native arts and crafts among the Indians; to revive old arts, and to keep the arts of each tribe and pueblo as distinct as possible; the establishment and locating of markets for all Indian products, the securing of reasonable prices, authenticity of all handicrafts offered for sale and protection to the Indian in all his business dealings with traders and buyers.

Victimized by the white man's greed and exploited by barterers who buy Indian wares and goods cheaply to sell to tourists, the Indian tribes have been turning out large quantities of their work, much of it from manufactured articles and not those which they are so skilled in making. To furnish a reliable and honest market for Indian art and to encourage and foster its continuation and development has been the purpose of the government and interests of the southwest in starting this fair.

Surpasses Expectations.

The first fair in scope surpassed all expectations. Indians from far and near, representing seven states gathered, bringing with them a priceless array of blankets, pottery, jewelry, beadwork, basketry and painting, which on exhibit made a gorgeous and dazzling spectacle. It was a revelation of barbaric splendor in which were curious bizarre and beautiful. Valued at $100,000, the exhibit represented seven states—Montana, Utah, Colorado, Arizona, California, South Dakota, and New Mexico. From every where came the Red Men—the braves and their squaws—from 14 tribes of the Pueblos. Also there were the Navajos, Mimas, San Carlos, Apaches, Black Feet, the Sioux and the Crow.

Indian art in a western publication says of Indian art: "Their art is unique, absolutely distinctive; there is nothing like it in the world; it is a genius for decoration unequalled by any nation of people, inherent and inherited, cropping out, as shown in the exhibits, in the drawing of little Indian children seven and eight years old. This is one of the world's greatest treasures; it is the priceless possession of America."

Works Invaluable

"We call these people 'untutored' and yet, to watch a dark-skinned desert dweller skill varicolored sands between his fingers into a magic pattern on the ground, glowing with color and beauty; to see rich designs springing from under the flying fingers of a Navajo woman seated impassive before her loom; to see the cunning of the silversmith; enigmatic pictures flowing from his hand and straw, sheen beauty flowing from finger tips of this strange race of men and women, to study their symbolism and listen to their age-old traditions is to be lost in wonder. Their mystery baffles us, the profundity of their simplicity fascinates us. It would be civilization's misfortune if they were to disappear. They should be lost to us. Santa Fe and the Indian office have commenced a tremendous service to the world. We repeat, its possibilities are unlimited, and it is with satisfaction that we observe this great movement is starting which will be introducing carefully all that which is not truly Indian and fostering and encouraging that which is the real thing."

(By Associated Press)

The baby since has given only the customary infant cries.

A W O L Glen Park Monkey Discovers Chum And Home; Enjoys Vacation Abroad

The prodigal monkey has returned—somewhat unwillingly, it is true, but for his own best good nevertheless. Housed companionably with the only understanding friend he has met for a month since he escaped from Glen Miller park, the former well known figure chatters to Pete, a monkey belonging to Howard Oesting, of the joys of freedom and his wild adventures in the jungles of Indiana, which, he says, cannot compare in comfort and wealth with those of the more tropical lands.

Pete has adopted his new friend wholeheartedly, even to the exclusion of former allegiances. He even has gone so far as to attack his friend and master, Mr. Oesting, whom formerly he would defend literally with tooth and tongue (20 of 'em) against threatening enemies. But when the little drama in monkey was played out in Mr. Oesting's arms, Pete assumed that his master was hurting his guest, and, leaping on Mr. Oesting's shoulders, inflicted two painful scratches on his neck before he was shaken off.

Report Monkey's Presence

Reports of the monkey's presence in various parts of Reveston and finally to the south of Richmond, finally discovered him to have taken permanent residence on the Mrs. Catherine Flehe place at South I and Thirteenth streets. Here he discovered a dead tree draped in an immense mass of twining vines, a perfect reproduction of his native jungle refuges. From this stronghold, he would awaken the householders every morning at 5 o'clock, with a lively chatter. Whenever he felt hungry, he made forays into pear or apple trees or a sweet corn patch nearby.

Repeated efforts to corner him at last resulted in half a dozen boys treeing him Saturday. Mr. Oesting was appealed to, to bring Pete and tempt the outlaw back to civilization. He did so, but Pete, when he was turned loose, forgot his missionary role, and seemed disposed to share in forbidden pleasures of freedom.

Shakes Monkey Down.

Mr. Oesting thereupon climbed the tree and shook the monkey out, with boys stationed in trees on either hand to prevent his escaping through them. The monkey was caught on the ground and under Pete's special protection, escorted to temporary quarters in Pete's cage. His host, as well as insuring that not even his master would harm the guest, is on vigilant guard against others barking defiance at any boys or girls who come too close to him.

After a few days for recuperation, Mr. Oesting will return the monkey to Glen Miller park.

SOUTH AUSTRALIAN GOVERNOR FORMER WORLD WAR HERO

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Sept. 23.—Major General Sir George Molesworth Bridges has been appointed governor of South Australia, succeeding Lieutenant Colonel Sir William Weigell. The latter resigned the position because he said he could not live on his salary and had not sufficient private means to afford the luxury of maintaining such a position.

His successor, Sir George, is known in the British army as the "Toy Drum Hero." That term is not applied to him in derision, but in recognition of a memorable incident of the war, in which he displayed great gallantry.

After the action of Le Cateau, in 1914, the British army started on its great fighting retreat, and men were dropping out from sheer exhaustion. Major Bridges, as he was then, went back to St. Quentin to round up 250 stragglers.

He found them in a state of collapse. At a little village shop he bought a toy drum, and falling the men into line with the toy drum and a penny whistle to serve as a band, he marched them off, but in recognition of their weariness. They kept on marching for 23 miles.

Sir George was the military member of the Balfour mission to the United States in 1917, and head of the British War Mission to the United States in the succeeding year.
