

HEWSON, BACK FROM RUSSIA, DOUBTS AID OF SOVIET TO TURKS

(Special to the Palladium)
CHESTER, Ind., Sept. 28.—"The present situation in Turkey has developed since my return from Russia, about two weeks ago, but I do not attach much importance to published reports that Russia is prepared to give active military support to the Turkish Nationalists in event of a clash between the Nationalists and the British, which many profess to believe would be the prelude to another European war," said C. Hewson today. He and Mrs. Hewson are now visiting with her parents on their farm near here. Mr. Hewson is a former Earlham student. Accompanied by Mrs. Hewson, he went to Russia last year as a member of the Friends relief organization, spending a year in that country, for the most part in Moscow and in Minsk.

Mr. Hewson believes the Russian people are in no mood to engage in a war of aggression, even with Constantinople and a free outlet for Russian commerce through the Dardanelles as the stakes. It is his opinion that the Soviet government would not sanction any action which would be resented by the Russian masses.

"The Russian people are fed up on war," said Mr. Hewson. It is also his opinion that Russia does not possess sufficient materials and resources to engage in any extensive military adventure.

Economic conditions in Russia still remain at a low ebb but are slowly improving, Mr. Hewson says. During the year he was there he witnessed a steady development in nearly all lines of industry and the inauguration of public improvement programs in the municipalities and in the rural districts.

"Most Americans, I believe, share the opinion that communism prevails in Russia, but as a matter of fact, Russia is not communist," Mr. Hewson remarked. "The communistic party is the one in power; it has been since the revolution, but it has not set up the economic principles it advocates. At the time of the revolution the announcement was made that it would be impractical to carry out the communistic theory in Russia while the rest of the world remained on a capitalistic basis."

It is his belief that a large part of the Russian people do not subscribe to communism, but the Russian masses believe in and give their support to their present form of government, in his opinion.

The Soviet government, Mr. Hewson says, largely represents that form of popular rule which Russia patriots dreamed of, strove and suffered for under centuries of czarism. He points to the fact that the Soviet government is founded upon a constitution and the people have a part in it. It is a new form of government but no more revolutionary than the American people set up for themselves 146 years ago, he remarked.

Recalling that the United States has not yet recognized the present Russian government, Mr. Hewson mentioned the fact that the first diplomatic representative of the infant American Republic sent to Russia had to warm his heels outside the gates of the Imperial palace at St. Petersburg, for eighteen months, before the czar would consent to receive him and accord recognition to the United States. The idea of a government by popular rule was very obnoxious to that absolute monarch.

The present form of Russian government probably can be improved upon in some respects, Mr. Hewson believes, but such changes as are necessary can be provided from time to time in an orderly, peaceful manner through the legal channels of a political nature provided by the constitution.

The Russian masses approve of the basic principles of the government they now have. I do not believe it will ever be destroyed by a counter revolution," he added.

Americans are popular with the Russians, Mr. Hewson says. The Russians are very grateful for the relief provided by the American people and the American government during the starvation period last winter, one of the most tragic pages in the tragic history of Russia.

INDIANA AMONG FOUR STATES USING MOST ELECTRICAL POWER

(By Associated Press)

FRENCH LICK, Ind., Sept. 28.—Greater quantities of electric light and power are available and more capital is invested in such enterprises in the four states of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin than in any other similar sized territory in the world. Harry Reid, president of the Interstate Public Service company, told delegates to a report, while the number of automobiles exceeds 10,000,000.

"Most people think of the nation as being quite extensively electrified, but automobiles outstrip the number of homes where electricity is available," said Mr. Lloyd.

"Industry rapidly is moving westward from what heretofore has been regarded as the industrial center. Industrial prosperity of the section now is largely measured by the ability to produce the great volume of economical electric power that is necessary."

Mr. Reid said the utilities put forth the most strenuous efforts to protect the public during the progress of the general coal strike and that "the role utility men played in the last six months in continuing service in the face of the most trying conditions merits the most generous consideration of the entire public."

There are more automobiles in the United States today than there are homes wired for electricity, said E. W. Lloyd of Chicago, of the Edison company. The number of residential lighting customers in the country on January 1, 1922, was 8,467,000, according to a report, while the number of automobiles exceeds 10,000,000.

"Most people think of the nation as being quite extensively electrified, but automobiles outstrip the number of homes where electricity is available," said Mr. Lloyd.

The Hair-Destroying Curling Iron Passes

The heated iron makes the hair dry and parched looking, burns off the ends, giving a most untidy appearance. You who have learned this from experience will be glad to know of a new method which is open to none of the objections referred to and which gives better results than the curling iron.

Just as a few ounces of plain liquid silmerine at your druggist's and apply this with a cleaning tooth brush before doing up the hair, draw the brush down one strand at a time from root to tip. In three hours your hair will be as beautiful, wavy and curly as though Methuselah had died in it. It will be quite manageable, no matter what style of coiffure you adopt. The effect will be much prettier than if you use a curling iron. Your hair will not suffer. Silmerine is not sticky or greasy, but is quite pleasant to use.—Advertisement.
