

SEES DAY WHEN U.S. PRODUCTS OF FARMS WILL BE ADVERTISED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The day when American farm products will be as extensively advertised throughout the country as the automobile and other manufactured articles will soon arrive, D. W. M. Jardine, president of the Kansas State Agricultural College, declared today before the Washington Ad club.

"The American farmer has been acquainted with only one side of the advertising business," he said. "In the main, he thinks of advertising as a more or less tricky device employed by middlemen to separate him from his money. He probably has somewhat the same opinion of advertising as a target has of rifle practice."

"The signs of the times, however, are pointing in another direction. Bankers and members of chambers of commerce have begun to take the farmer in as a business partner. They are seeing that they must help him earn more money, and they are beginning to see that he needs help principally with his marketing and selling problems.

Selling End Suffers

"The selling end of the farmer's business has been badly and most unfortunately neglected. Circumstances are to blame in part, he is to blame in part, and business men are to blame in part. In a certain sense, advertising men are much to blame. Problems in marketing, advertising and selling that need solution much more than many which have been solved, have been neglected."

"Agricultural men of America have begun to concern themselves with the selling end of their business. They have begun to learn to sell co-operatively, to organize and to respect their organization. The next generation of farmers is going to grow up already 'sold' to the idea of organization."

AUTHORITY ON INDIANS.

Milk is the Best and Cheapest Single Food

Dr. Copeland, Health Commissioner of New York City, says "Milk comes nearest to being a perfect food. It contains the protein for growth and repair, the carbohydrates for energy, the lime for bones, the chemicals for special needs, and the vitamins for development."

But milk is readily tainted if the greatest care is not observed. It absorbs flavors and odors, just as charcoal does.

There are a thousand and one things necessary to insure pure wholesome milk for your family. Some apparently trivial thing, such as leaving a milk bottle open, may have tragic results.

For the protection of your health and the health of your family, it is your duty to know everything possible about this universal food.

You can get this knowledge free in a booklet prepared by a world authority on milk. Merely fill out and mail the coupon below, enclosing two cents in stamps for return postage.

(Do not send the coupon to The Palladium. Mail it direct to Washington D. C.)
