

RICHMOND WILL HAVE AIR UNIT IF ENOUGH ENLISTMENTS MADE

The location at Richmond of a flight of an air service reserve squadron will be assured if the necessary personnel of a listed and commissioned reservists can be interested, states Floyd M. Showalter, air service captain of the reserve corps, who has just received authority from corps headquarters for proceeding with the organization of a local unit.

Besides the few officers needed, 15 enlisted reservists is the minimum requirement for a flight. In case these can be secured within a 25-mile radius of Richmond, this city will be named as the rendezvous for the flight. The enlisted personnel of a flight is as follows: One master sergeant, a flight chief; six staff sergeants (crew chiefs); a sergeant, airplane mechanic; a corporal, airplane mechanic; a sergeant, airplane engine mechanic; a corporal, airplane engine mechanic; and four privates, first and fourth class airplane engine mechanics, and first and fourth class airplane riggers.

Chance to Get Center
"Anyone who served for four months in the army between the declaration of war in 1917 and the armistice, may be re-enlisted in the reserve in the highest grade honorably held when he was discharged," according to the regulations. If 15 ex-service men who held these ranks can be interested, therefore, Richmond may be made a center for the flight, and probably will have one or more planes assigned to it.

"The reserve is purely a war force and members are not called for any active service except during war and for a two weeks' training period, for which the reserve pay," states Mr. Showalter. "The training periods take account of the members' occupations, and are not arbitrary. A notice is given 60 days in advance of the training date. Another advantage of the reserve is that members are entitled to the benefits of War Risk Insurance during active duty."

Capt. Showalter announces that he will be glad to receive enlistments, or to answer further inquiries at his office in Room 3 of the Hittie building, over the American bank.

Search Is Started For Body of Pocahontas

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Search for the body of Pocahontas, Indian maiden who according to legends saved the life of Capt. John Smith, was started today by Page Gaston, brother of Lucy Page Gaston of Chicago. Miss Gaston declared today her brother had received permission to open graves at the Gravesend Cemetery in England, where the body is supposed to be buried. Gaston plans to have the remains brought to America and placed in a mausoleum if he is able to properly authenticate them.

L. A. KNOFF ARRESTED BY FEDERAL WARDEN

Louis A. Knopf was the Richmond citizen arrested by Fred Ehlers, federal warden, on a charge of shooting wild ducks out of season, last Friday, it was learned Thursday. The arrest of Mr. Knopf followed a complaint by the Wayne County Fish and Game association.

Arrest of Mr. Knopf occurred following the alleged shooting, for when he was found by the federal officer he was in a car with City Attorney William Kelley. A duck was found in the car. Only Mr. Knopf was arrested, as he is said to have taken the blame for the shooting of the duck.

Shooting of the duck is alleged to have taken place at a pond south of Milton. Neither Mr. Kelley or Mr. Knopf are members of the fish and game association. Mr. Knopf will appear before Judge Anderson in federal court at Indianapolis.

PACKED AUDITORIUM APPLAUDS ADVANCED PUPILS IN RECITAL

An audience which tested the seating capacity of the auditorium of St. Mary's Community house last evening heard and applauded the advanced pupils of the Garton studios of music and dramatic art in their winter recital, the program including piano, violin, cello and vocal numbers, with dramatic readings.

One of the features of the program was the Puccini number by Thelma Druley, well known local tenor, who in the excerpt from "La Tosca," given in Italian took the high notes with an ease and clarity of tone which called out long-continued applause. Allan Wallace, an Earlham student, who has appeared here frequently in local recitals, was heard to advantage in "I Rise from Dreams to Thee," by Huhn, and Stucke's "The Lass of Killen," and in a duet with Miss Louise Taylor, "Under Desert Skies," made one of the hits of the evening.

Saddened by Death
Miss Taylor, the possessor of a sweet, clear lyric soprano, and who also appeared in solo, sang under emotional stress, as she had just returned late in the afternoon from the funeral of her room-mate in the Earlham dormitory whose sudden and tragic death occurred a few days ago. Miss Taylor felt that it would not be possible for her to sing, but at the urgent request of the parents of her former classmate she agreed to appear.

Ruth Roland, a talented young cellist well known to the local public, made another hit of the evening in Handel's "Largo," which she played with rich and sustained tone, and Richard Crawford, the only other cellist on the program, gave Squire's "Rustic Dance" with much vivacity.

Reverent Ovation
Miss Ruth Critchett was one of the successes of the recital in a violin number by Dancila, and Miss Elizabeth Mote called out one of the ovations of the evening when she played a violin number from Becker, the youthful player displaying a big tone, admirable phrasing and a technical possessing that might have well befitted a much older and more experienced performer.

The piano numbers were a dominant factor in the interest and success of the program, the players all showing fine training and musical appreciation, and Miss Christine Lewis who opened the program with Chaminade and a Leschetizky composition, was enthusiastically received.

Miss Norma Meloy, a young player of much personal talent, gave MacDowell's "Scotch Poem," and "The Dance of the Witch of Salem Town," by Moksreis, with really brilliant effect; and Miss Lucy Massey, in a Moszkowski's "Polonaise in E Flat Major," showed musicianship of a praiseworthy order.

Vivacious Number.
Miss Vera Kiert, who made one of the quartet of piano players for the evening, played a Schuman and a singing number, with intimate appreciation of their contrasting motives, the singing "March Grottesque" being given with great variety and musical appreciation.

Miss Phyllis Butler and Mrs. Sterling Reid in a dramatic sketch, made charming pictures of "The Portrait of an Up-State Beauty, 1923," and "The Portrait of a Colonial Belle, 1750," the dialogue of the skit being presented in fine dramatic form.

Miss Floretta Steinfort was warmly received in two readings of a humorous character.
The faculty of the Garton Studios, in addition to Samuel B. Garton, who teaches singing, includes Cecilia D. Lebert, piano; Carl L. Walger, cello, violin and viola; Mrs. Arthur Beriaut, dramatic art, and Mrs. Mary Luring Campbell, accompanist.
