

CITIZENS' BANK,

MORRISON, BLANCHARD & CO.,
BANKERS;

New Stone Front

BANK BUILDING,
COR. OF MAIN AND PEARL STS.;

Richmond, Indiana.

INTEREST PAID ON DEPOSITS.

MERE MENTION.

Morrison, Blanchard & Co.

This well known BANKING HOUSE is at all times fully prepared to grant accommodations and furnish the usual facilities appropriate to their business.

Discounts made daily, upon acceptable name at regular rates.

Eastern Exchange for sale to any extent at Cincinnati prices.

Gold, also on the same terms.

Drafts on Cincinnati always furnished to customers, for any amount, free of charge.

Interest allowed on money deposited for long or short time from one day upwards.

Locals, Notices, &c.

Richmond, Aug. 4, 1859.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES.

Clerk of the County: SOLOMON MEREDITH,
Auditor: JAMES L. MARTIN,
Recorder: THEODORE A. RILEY,
County Commissioner: EDMUND LAWRENCE.

TIME TABLE.

Arrivals and Departures of Passengers Trains.
Cincinnati and Chicago Railroad.

On and after April 11th, Trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Freight Trains 8:00 a. m.; Passenger, 9:00 a. m., and continue to 7:00 p. m.

Passenger arrivals 9:00 p. m.; connects at Richmond for Cincinnati. Freight 3:00 p. m.

Cincinnati, Eaton and Richmond R. R.

Express Mail arrives 8:30 a. m.; Evening Mail 6:30 p. m.

Express Mail arrives 8:30 a. m.; Evening Express 7:45 p. m.

Indiana Con. and Dayton and Wab. R. R.

A. M. Mail Train going West at 8:00 a. m.; Mail train going West at 10:15 a. m.; Express going West at 10:15 a. m.

J. M. McMurtry going East at 9:00 a. m.; p. m. Mail train going East, 6:30; stops here; p. m. Express going East at 11:45 a. m.

Another Order-Parade, &c.

Benevolent associations, are on the increase in our city; and the excitement consequent on their inauguration has kept up the curiosity of our people to the highest pitch.

On Saturday night last, an Order styled the "Mysterious Nights of America," was inaugurated, and mysteriously made their appearance on our streets, headed by Mitchell's American Cornet Band, with banners and various insignia. Like the Sons of Malta, the solemn hour of 'near the middle of the night,' was chosen for their parade; but unlike the Maltesers, their elephant was publicly exhibited and didn't cost "many rods" to see his huge proportions as he braved up the rear. The bell tolled—the deep-mouthed pistol roared—the solemn aspect of the sarcophagus, (an empty keg of lager,) with its startling motto—"Lager or death!" caused a universal shudder to run with railroad velocity down the spinal columns of the spectators! The costumes of the members, tho' similar to that of the Maltesers, were not quite so rich; yet some of them looked as much alike as two peas. We found, on inquiry, that both societies claim to cover the whole ground of benevolent duty; whilst the Maltesers relieve the wants of adults, the "Mysterious Nights," attend to the children, not one of whom is suffered to cry for candy without having a stick of Zimmer's best placed in their little hands, at midnight, by this mysterious Order. After parading thro' the principal streets, the procession was dismissed opposite No. 2's Engine Hall, with a ceremony peculiar to the pressing calls of their mission, remauling them as they moved their feet to the enlivening strains of the music, that they must be diligent to bring joy and gladness to their interesting little char—go— the elephant "went thro' the motions," with its accustomed gracefulness, and kept remarkably good time to the music.

The colored population of this and neighboring counties, had a celebration in this city on Tuesday last, commemorative of the emancipation of the slaves of the British West India Islands.

There were a very large number in attendance—A procession headed by Mitchell's American Cornet Band was formed in front of Starr Hall, composed of the order of the Daughters of Ruth from Cambridge City—the A. M. E. Church of this city—the Daughters of Ruth of Richmond, and colored citizens. At the corner of Front and Main they were joined by a procession of colored Free Masons, some sixty or seventy. After marching through some of the principal streets under command of Calvia Oland, Chief Marshal, they repaired to the Fair Grounds, where a sumptuous fair was enjoyed by a large number of persons.

After which Miss E. Watkins delivered an eloquent address. H. Ford Douglass also addressed the large assembly in a masterly manner.

Everything was conducted in good order, and those having the master in charge deserve much credit for the manner in which they performed the duties of their positions. In the evening, Miss Watkins delivered an address in Starr Hall, and the celebration closed with a social reunion.

The colored population of this and neighbor-

boring counties, had a celebration in this city on Tuesday last, commemorative of the emancipation of the slaves of the British West India Islands.

There were a very large number in attendance—A procession headed by Mitchell's American

Cornet Band was formed in front of Starr Hall, composed of the order of the Daughters of Ruth from Cambridge City—the A. M. E. Church of this city—the Daughters of Ruth of Richmond, and colored citizens. At the corner of Front and Main they were joined by a procession of colored Free Masons, some sixty or seventy. After marching through some of the principal streets under command of Calvia Oland, Chief Marshal, they repaired to the Fair Grounds, where a sumptuous fair was enjoyed by a large number of persons.

After which Miss E. Watkins delivered an eloquent address. H. Ford Douglass also addressed the large assembly in a masterly manner.

Everything was conducted in good order, and those having the master in charge deserve much credit for the manner in which they performed the duties of their positions. In the evening, Miss Watkins delivered an address in Starr Hall, and the celebration closed with a social reunion.

The colored population of this and neighbor-

boring counties, had a celebration in this city on Tuesday last, commemorative of the emancipation of the slaves of the British West India Islands.

There were a very large number in attendance—A procession headed by Mitchell's American

Cornet Band was formed in front of Starr Hall, composed of the order of the Daughters of Ruth from Cambridge City—the A. M. E. Church of this city—the Daughters of Ruth of Richmond, and colored citizens. At the corner of Front and Main they were joined by a procession of colored Free Masons, some sixty or seventy. After marching through some of the principal streets under command of Calvia Oland, Chief Marshal, they repaired to the Fair Grounds, where a sumptuous fair was enjoyed by a large number of persons.

After which Miss E. Watkins delivered an eloquent address. H. Ford Douglass also addressed the large assembly in a masterly manner.

Everything was conducted in good order, and those having the master in charge deserve much credit for the manner in which they performed the duties of their positions. In the evening, Miss Watkins delivered an address in Starr Hall, and the celebration closed with a social reunion.

The colored population of this and neighbor-

boring counties, had a celebration in this city on Tuesday last, commemorative of the emancipation of the slaves of the British West India Islands.

There were a very large number in attendance—A procession headed by Mitchell's American

Cornet Band was formed in front of Starr Hall, composed of the order of the Daughters of Ruth from Cambridge City—the A. M. E. Church of this city—the Daughters of Ruth of Richmond, and colored citizens. At the corner of Front and Main they were joined by a procession of colored Free Masons, some sixty or seventy. After marching through some of the principal streets under command of Calvia Oland, Chief Marshal, they repaired to the Fair Grounds, where a sumptuous fair was enjoyed by a large number of persons.

After which Miss E. Watkins delivered an eloquent address. H. Ford Douglass also addressed the large assembly in a masterly manner.

Everything was conducted in good order, and those having the master in charge deserve much credit for the manner in which they performed the duties of their positions. In the evening, Miss Watkins delivered an address in Starr Hall, and the celebration closed with a social reunion.

The colored population of this and neighbor-

boring counties, had a celebration in this city on Tuesday last, commemorative of the emancipation of the slaves of the British West India Islands.

There were a very large number in attendance—A procession headed by Mitchell's American

Cornet Band was formed in front of Starr Hall, composed of the order of the Daughters of Ruth from Cambridge City—the A. M. E. Church of this city—the Daughters of Ruth of Richmond, and colored citizens. At the corner of Front and Main they were joined by a procession of colored Free Masons, some sixty or seventy. After marching through some of the principal streets under command of Calvia Oland, Chief Marshal, they repaired to the Fair Grounds, where a sumptuous fair was enjoyed by a large number of persons.

After which Miss E. Watkins delivered an eloquent address. H. Ford Douglass also addressed the large assembly in a masterly manner.

Everything was conducted in good order, and those having the master in charge deserve much credit for the manner in which they performed the duties of their positions. In the evening, Miss Watkins delivered an address in Starr Hall, and the celebration closed with a social reunion.

The colored population of this and neighbor-

boring counties, had a celebration in this city on Tuesday last, commemorative of the emancipation of the slaves of the British West India Islands.

There were a very large number in attendance—A procession headed by Mitchell's American

Cornet Band was formed in front of Starr Hall, composed of the order of the Daughters of Ruth from Cambridge City—the A. M. E. Church of this city—the Daughters of Ruth of Richmond, and colored citizens. At the corner of Front and Main they were joined by a procession of colored Free Masons, some sixty or seventy. After marching through some of the principal streets under command of Calvia Oland, Chief Marshal, they repaired to the Fair Grounds, where a sumptuous fair was enjoyed by a large number of persons.

After which Miss E. Watkins delivered an eloquent address. H. Ford Douglass also addressed the large assembly in a masterly manner.

Everything was conducted in good order, and those having the master in charge deserve much credit for the manner in which they performed the duties of their positions. In the evening, Miss Watkins delivered an address in Starr Hall, and the celebration closed with a social reunion.

The colored population of this and neighbor-

boring counties, had a celebration in this city on Tuesday last, commemorative of the emancipation of the slaves of the British West India Islands.

There were a very large number in attendance—A procession headed by Mitchell's American

Cornet Band was formed in front of Starr Hall, composed of the order of the Daughters of Ruth from Cambridge City—the A. M. E. Church of this city—the Daughters of Ruth of Richmond, and colored citizens. At the corner of Front and Main they were joined by a procession of colored Free Masons, some sixty or seventy. After marching through some of the principal streets under command of Calvia Oland, Chief Marshal, they repaired to the Fair Grounds, where a sumptuous fair was enjoyed by a large number of persons.

After which Miss E. Watkins delivered an eloquent address. H. Ford Douglass also addressed the large assembly in a masterly manner.

Everything was conducted in good order, and those having the master in charge deserve much credit for the manner in which they performed the duties of their positions. In the evening, Miss Watkins delivered an address in Starr Hall, and the celebration closed with a social reunion.

The colored population of this and neighbor-

boring counties, had a celebration in this city on Tuesday last, commemorative of the emancipation of the slaves of the British West India Islands.

There were a very large number in attendance—A procession headed by Mitchell's American

Cornet Band was formed in front of Starr Hall, composed of the order of the Daughters of Ruth from Cambridge City—the A. M. E. Church of this city—the Daughters of Ruth of Richmond, and colored citizens. At the corner of Front and Main they were joined by a procession of colored Free Masons, some sixty or seventy. After marching through some of the principal streets under command of Calvia Oland, Chief Marshal, they repaired to the Fair Grounds, where a sumptuous fair was enjoyed by a large number of persons.

After which Miss E. Watkins delivered an eloquent address. H. Ford Douglass also addressed the large assembly in a masterly manner.

Everything was conducted in good order, and those having the master in charge deserve much credit for the manner in which they performed the duties of their positions. In the evening, Miss Watkins delivered an address in Starr Hall, and the celebration closed with a social reunion.

The colored population of this and neighbor-

boring counties, had a celebration in this city on Tuesday last, commemorative of the emancipation of the slaves of the British West India Islands.

There were a very large number in attendance—A procession headed by Mitchell's American

Cornet Band was formed in front of Starr Hall, composed of the order of the Daughters of Ruth from Cambridge City—the A. M. E. Church of this city—the Daughters of Ruth of Richmond, and colored citizens. At the corner of Front and Main they were joined by a procession of colored Free Masons, some sixty or seventy. After marching through some of the principal streets under command of Calvia Oland, Chief Marshal, they repaired to the Fair Grounds, where a sumptuous fair was enjoyed by a large number of persons.

After which Miss E. Watkins delivered an eloquent address. H. Ford Douglass also addressed the large assembly in a masterly manner.

Everything was conducted in good order, and those having the master in charge deserve much credit for the manner in which they performed the duties of their positions. In the evening, Miss Watkins delivered an address in Starr Hall, and the celebration closed with a social reunion.

The colored population of this and neighbor-

boring counties, had a celebration in this city on Tuesday last, commemorative of the emancipation of the slaves of the British West India Islands.

There were a very large number in attendance—A procession headed by Mitchell's American

Cornet Band was formed in front of Starr Hall, composed of the order of the Daughters of Ruth from Cambridge City—the A. M. E. Church of this city—the Daughters of Ruth of Richmond, and colored citizens. At the corner of Front and Main they were joined by a procession of colored Free Masons, some sixty or seventy. After marching through some of the principal streets under command of Calvia Oland, Chief Marshal, they repaired to the Fair Grounds, where a sumptuous fair was enjoyed by a large number of persons.

After which Miss E. Watkins delivered an eloquent address. H. Ford Douglass also addressed the large assembly in a masterly manner.

Everything was conducted in good order, and those having the master in charge deserve much credit for the manner in which they performed the duties of their positions. In the evening, Miss Watkins delivered an address in Starr Hall, and the celebration closed with a social reunion.

The colored population of this and neighbor-

boring counties, had a celebration in this city on Tuesday last, commemorative of the emancipation of the slaves of the British West India Islands.

There were a very large number in attendance—A procession headed by Mitchell's American

Cornet Band was formed in front of Starr Hall, composed of the order of the Daughters of Ruth from Cambridge City—the A. M. E. Church of this city—the Daughters of Ruth of Richmond, and colored citizens. At the corner of Front and Main they were joined by a procession of colored Free Masons, some sixty or seventy. After marching through some of the principal streets under command of Calvia Oland, Chief Marshal, they repaired to the Fair Grounds, where a sumptuous fair was enjoyed by a large number of persons.

After which Miss E. Watkins delivered an eloquent address. H. Ford Douglass also addressed the large assembly in a masterly manner.

Everything was conducted in good order, and those having the master in charge deserve much credit for the manner in which they performed the duties of their positions. In the evening, Miss Watkins delivered an address in Starr Hall, and the celebration closed with a social reunion.

The colored population of this and neighbor-

boring counties, had a celebration in this city on Tuesday last, commemorative of the emancipation of the slaves of the British West India Islands.

There were a very large number in attendance—A procession headed by Mitchell's American

Cornet Band was formed in front of Starr Hall, composed of the order of the Daughters of Ruth from Cambridge City—the A. M. E. Church of this city—the Daughters of Ruth of Richmond, and colored citizens. At the corner of Front and Main they were joined by a procession of colored Free Masons, some sixty or seventy. After marching through some of the principal streets