Readers Should Be Thinkers Too.

This article is prompted by the fact that so much of what is printed in the metropolitan papers is aimed to deceive. The commercial tendency of all or almost all the great dailies has created a desire for moneyed results that has hung a shield over the conscience of the publisher and dominated every editor by the will of the business office.

There are no editors of the Greeley kind, who wrote every word with a positive conviction, and whose utterances and opinions reverberated from Atlantic to Pacific. It is not so much that there are less able men employed on the editorial staffs of the city papers, but that they are not the paper owners and are not privileged to say what they think. The business manager tells the editor that he must support one measure and reject another, not based on any honest conviction but dominated by the dollar acquiring idea.

There are some people who know this and who read between the lines, but it is unsatisfactory to know that the paper one pays for is devoting its talent to deceive its readers. In recent years the political newspapers have given way to the commercial ones, and in no city in the country has the result been more unfortunate than in our own state capital. The grand old Journal, brave and loyal, sank beneath the aggression of the dollar-seeking papers. The staunch democratic organ, the Sentinel, "always a democrat", was forced to submit to the paper that placed cash above conviction. The result is that the two leading papers of Indiana are the News and the Star. They have penetrated the Chicago field in northern Indiana, and a goodly number of them come to Jasper county. Their policy is the dollar. They can not be called independent, unless one figures that independence is alone a trait of making all matters published both news and editorial, subserve to the revenue receipts.

Republicans over the state who are heartily in favor of harmony, and who are not opposed to the candidacy of Vice-President Fairbanks, are glad to see the state papers espouse his cause, and the News and Star would, as politically neutral newspapers, do wrong not to support him, but this support should be based on his good qualities of statesmanship and should not embody a contemptible, falsifying criticism of any of his competitors for the nomination.

These papers every day are crowded with the most outrageous falsehoods regarding the administration and the attitude of President Roosevelt toward and in favor of the Taft candidacy. All manner of foolish alliances are alleged and the most trivial mole hills are enlarged for the purposes of misrepresentation into great mountains of vicious blunders.

The purpose is to discredit not only President Roosevelt but Secretary Taft, and to do so every method of deceit is practiced. It becomes the duty of readers of these newspapers to give what they read some thought. To ask a reason for the pronounced attitude of these papers to the President and the administration, to recall that prior to last fall every paper practically in the country was praising the administration, and that all of us, farmers, business men, professional men, mechanics, and laborers were giving the level-headed methods of President Roosevelt credit with the excellent conditions.

What has there been in the administration that offers opportunity for criticism?

More than anything else it is its attitude towards law enforcement in the punishment of illegally organized capital.

There are three views to be taken of this. The first is that of the Bryan democrats who have contended that there was not enough of it, and who have advocated a destructive attack with sanguistic tendencies on successful business corporations. The second that of the corporations themselves, whose idea is the protection of the methods of the large combinations of money without regard to the people or the law, and who would, if in power, establish a condition of such dangerous privileges that the entire country would be at the mercy of the trusts. The third embodies that great middle class that, irrespective of political party affiliation, has endorsed the prosecutions of the administration so far made, and that has looked with approval born of confidence, and with expectation strengthened by vigorous and well-timed prosecutions.

This latter class includes all those who want the financial affairs of the country clarified, who want it done as Roosevelt had been doing it, and who are not willing to either retrograde or become unbalanced in future administrations. William H. Taft is pied ed by his support of the President to carry on this work, and he has helped him an absolutely clean public life, as lawyer, judge and diplomat.

The people must not be deceived by the designs of commercially controlled newspapers, but must hear the accomplishments of the last few years, and decide for themselves whether they had not best look for the best interests of government from a man of the Roosevelt type.

Let there be no backing up by the American people. Let us think while we read.

John W. Walker Passes Thru El Paso en Route East to Spend Some of His Coin.

El Paso Herald:

John W. Walker, official court stenographer for United States court sitting at Tombstone, Arizona; chief criminal photographer for the county Cochise; Elk. Shriener, Chief He Goat in the Tombstone Herd of Lymphatic Liars, and everything else west of the whetstones that are not nailed down, is at the Sheldon today on his way to Chicago, Illinois, to rub off some of the Arizona alkali and get into a suit of store bought clothes and a boiled shirt once more.

Once each year the pride of the peanut politicians in Cochise county A. T., grabs the brass rail of a varnished car and goes back to the village on the inland lake and proceeds to separate himself from the hard earned at the rate of two bits a throw, American money. He does everything from the stock yards to the steamer landings and if he misses anything on the way it is because it has not taken on a tangible form, for the way he soaks up things to tell the "ellers back at Tombstone" would make Sherlock Holmes green with envy.

Mr. Walker is a prominent member of the National Stenographic association and is considered one of the fastest and most accurate stenographers in the west. He has a record of taking the evidence and preparing the transcripts in all of the mining litigation of the Warren district during the past five years. While acting in the capacity of the stenographer for the second judicial district, of the United States court, he has been connected with a number of cases of the national importance, including the famous William Randolph Hearst land case. The United States government has retained Mr. Walker to act as the official government stenographer during the trial of the Mexican revolutionists that were captured in Los Angeles and to be tried in the Cochise county court during the April term.
