

Spasms St. Vitus' Dance

Many persons who suffered untold agonies from epilepsy, fits, spasms, and St. Vitus' Dance are today well. The strengthening influence of Dr. Miles' Nervine upon the shattered nerves having restored them to perfect health.

"I endured agony that words cannot express from St. Vitus' dance, which followed a very severe spell of rheumatism. I doctored with a physician, but the more I took of his medicine the worse I got. My mother's devotion saved me. After I had become almost heart-broken, as well as physically exhausted from constant care, by the advice of a neighbor she procured a bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine. From the first dose to the last a continual change for the better was noticeable, and when I had taken eleven bottles, I was well, and in robust health."

EDWARD D. REAM.
North Manchester, Indiana.

"Our little boy Harry, had spasms for three years, and although we doctored with many physicians, he continued to grow worse until he had spasms in one week. About that time our attention was called to Dr. Miles' Nervine. We began giving it to him. His progress seemed slow, but when he had finished the fourth bottle the spasms had disappeared, and have not been seen now for years. We shall always recommend Dr. Miles' Nervine."

"Phillips'" Night at Lafayette.

"The Wolf", Eugene Walter's great play of life in the Canadian Hudson Bay country, is announced for presentation at Lafayette, Ind., Tuesday evening, Nov. 10th, at the Grand opera house, with all its trappings, stage accessories, elaborate scenery and light effects, precisely the same as seen in New York and Chicago.

Mr. Allen Dale, the celebrated writer on the New York American, said in the issue of that paper of April 20th:

"Let me say right here, without further parley, that in 'The Wolf', Mr. Eugene Walter has most assuredly confirmed our impression that he is a 'find'. His second play is a melodrama, vivid but primitive, vital but unfledged. It is direct, terse, capably written, sincere, and free from conventional flapdoodle."

"The Wolf" hit the first nighters in spite of all. This was an achievement. It was a great feat. It proved beyond the peradventure of a doubt, that young Mr. Walter is made of the right dramatic stuff.

"Paid in Full" was not a fluke. It was the work of an artist. For further particulars apply to "The Wolf".

"When one recalls this young playwright's own admission that, just before the production of 'Paid in Full', he was sleeping in the parks, and struggling for the right to nourish his poor outward shell, one cannot help applauding the fine hand of eternal justice.

"Everything comes to him who waits", is apparently correct. It is a nice and consoling thing to believe in.

"Apparently, Mr. Walter, has not seen many plays, and therefore doesn't know how managers, actors and claque expect them to be done. He does them his own way, which is a mighty good thing to do. Whatever may be the fate of 'The Wolf', it has been proven Mr. Walter's right to be looked upon as perhaps the only serious dramatic proposition that this season has set forth. If he can give us only play a year, we may think ourselves lucky. He will give us a good play."

Mr. Augustus Phillips (our "sons") will appear as Jules.

The October Weather Record.

Rensselaer is situated at latitude 40 degrees and 56 minutes and longitude 87 degrees and 9 minutes.

The mean maximum temperature for the month was 70 degrees, the mean minimum 39 degrees. The highest temperature was 86 on the 21st and the lowest was 19 on the 31st. The greatest daily range was 45 degrees.

There was less than an inch of rainfall the entire month, the exact amount being .82 of an inch and the greatest in any one day being .36. On only three days was there a measurable amount of rain. There were 17 clear days, 5 cloudy ones and 9 partly cloudy.

JAIL IN THE FAR EAST

LIFE AMONG PRISONERS AT MONTGOMERY IN THE PUNJAB.

THEY ARE REWARDED.

For Each Live Rat Caught Convicts Gets Ten Good Marks—Grinding Corn and Pumping Water Hardest Tasks—Escape Difficult as Prison is Center of a Forest.

The visitor to one of the large jails of India, the great one at Montgomery, in the Punjab, for instance, where more than two thousand native prisoners are corralled by way of punishment for their misdeeds, would come away with the impression that a far worse fate might befall the inmates than incarceration in such a clean, roomy, busy place.

While practically everything in the way of work about the jail, including the gardening, the cleaning, etc., the sweeping, the washing, the tailoring, etc., is done by the prisoners, and occupations are found in useful arts for those not otherwise employed, yet the caste prejudices of each are respected. As for food, their diet is as carefully arranged as that for the training table of a football team. The superintendent aims to keep all his prisoners up to a certain standard of weight and in a perfect state of health. It must be admitted, however, that this is for the purpose of getting a maximum amount of work out of them, at a minimum of loss by death or sickness. Each prisoner is weighed at regular periods, and when necessary his work and his diet are changed, or he is sent to the hospital and generally looked after as if he were an only child in a delicate state of health. Extra food is supplied to those who are employed on especially hard labor.

There are factories in the different jails, in which respect the Indian prisoners are like some of those in America. Carpets woven after the manner of Gobelin tapestries, bit by bit, are made at Montgomery. The factory in which these much desired carpets are woven is not a place filled with humming machinery, as the name would suggest. It is an open pavilion, in which the chief sound is that of human voices. It is a veritable Babel. The machinery consists of a number of crude looms worked by hand. One of them is wide enough to make a fifty foot carpet.

The prisoners at Montgomery have an opportunity to know their record as they make it. Each one carries around with him a character or "history sheet," consisting of a number of leaves stitched together. In this his complete jail record is set down. At the beginning are all particulars regarding his convictions and a full description. His weight is entered once a week, and his punishments and rewards, his changes in labor and the time spent in the hospital or in a solitary cell are all jotted down. The marks are put down as earned. Twenty-four marks mean the remission of one day's time from the sentence. When paraded, each man squats with his cap on his left knee, his "history sheet" in one hand and his queer mediaeval shoes, plate and bowl laid out in a row in front of him.

Catching rats is one of the most curious ways in which marks are earned. Rats carry the plague, so it is important that the jail shall be kept free from them. Every drain and hole is covered with wire netting, and a reward of ten marks is given to every prisoner who captures a rodent and produces it alive before the superintendent or jailer. It is not unusual to see one of the prisoners approaching a jailer leading one or two live rats at the end of strings and carrying his "history sheet." These he presents with a great display of humbleness, holding the snuffing little creatures in leash while the marks are put down in his book. The rats are then ordered by the jailer.

Escape is comparatively difficult at Montgomery, as the jail is in the center of a desert, in which a runaway can be easily tracked. The system of handling the prisoners is so arranged that ten minutes after an alarm suffices to discover whether any one is missing or not, and if so, who it is. When anything wrong is observed by a watchman he beats a gong. This is the signal for each warden to collect his gang of prisoners. He places them in security and counts them.
