

FULL CONFIDENCE

The trading season ending—a new one beginning, I have known it for years

That, "We mean right for our customers" and That, "We do almost the right thing always."

Thousands of people in 100 counties, our patrons, in this and adjoining states know us and believe in us. The proof of the above assertions is the increase of business of this year—14 carloads of buggies, an average sale of 50 horses per week for a year—harness, wagons, trades and other things in proportion—25 years continuous sale days at Judyville—WEDNESDAY and FRIDAY—means a record of unbroken good intentions and promotion of public confidence.

We have favors in our line for every man who intends to do right—no complaint of bad treatment can ever be heard in the crowds always found at Judyville every Wednesday and Friday—how they howl at a distance from Judyville would make good stuff for a comic weekly.

When the Pope Prescribed.

Among the many stories told by Dr. Lapponi, who until his death a couple of weeks ago was chief physician to the Pope, is one of an occasion upon which Leo XIII. turned the tables on him. Lapponi was a strict disciplinarian in medical matters and Leo was a difficult patient. He often complained of the restraints Lapponi placed on him, and sometimes insisted on having his own way.

One day when the Pope was suffering from a very severe cold he insisted on holding a prolonged and important reception, despite Lapponi's protests. When it became plain that the Pope's determination could not be shaken the doctor as a last resort handed him a little box with several tablets in it, imploring him to take one whenever the symptoms of the cold became distressing.

The doctor further took up a position in the audience chamber, half hidden behind a tapestry, where he could watch his patient closely and jump to his support if he should show any signs of collapse.

As the audience proceeded the Pope forgot all about the box of tablets—at least Lapponi failed to see him take any of them. Presently Lapponi thought the Pope was becoming hoarser and he coughed a little as he spoke. The doctor made up his mind that he must act. He coughed rather loudly so as to attract the Pope's attention, and when he caught his eye made a gesture suggestive of taking a tablet from the box and swallowing it.

The Pope instantly turned to one of his secretaries standing by.

"Call the doctor to me," said he.

Lapponi sprang to his side.

"Doctor," said the Pope, "I notice you have a very severe cough. I am greatly grieved at it. But I have here some tablets,"—and he produced the box from a fold in his robes—"which I am told are splendid for a cold. Let me prescribe one for you. You will do me the pleasure of taking it at once."

What could Lapponi do but take his medicine. The whole gathering, however, understood the situation, and for once a Papal audience was interrupted by a burst of laughter.—New York Sun.

A Preacher's Odd Dream.

It was the habit of Rev. James Spurgeon, grandfather of the great preacher of that name, to pray each evening under a certain oak tree in a secluded wood in Honeywood Park. One night he dreamed, the story goes, that Satan appeared and threatened to tear him in pieces if he followed his accustomed route to the tree. There was another path by which he might go in safety. Remembering his dream, Spurgeon felt sorely tempted, the next night to take the route in which Satan was not. But this would be to capitulate. Trembling in every limb he made his way to the path in which the danger lay. He reached his goal in safety, and in prayer and song returned thanks for delivery from peril. When his prayer had ended he rose to return. In his path lay a piece of solid gold "as large as a curtain ring." All inquiry failing to discover the owner he retained it, and when he married had his wife's wedding ring made from his curious find.—Kansas City Journal.

The Art of Glove Cutting.

The cutters of the great glove houses in Brussels and in France earn even higher wages than the cutters of the most fashionable tailors in London and New York. So difficult is this art of cutting gloves that most of the principal cutters are known to the trade by name and by fame, and the peculiar knives which they use in the business are so highly prized that they are handed down from generation to generation as heirlooms.

In a Mexican Hat Store.

Half a million straw hats is no uncommon sight to be met with at one time in the hat stores of Mexico. The hats are made of a long pampas grass which grows nowhere else in the world. It is specially cultivated for the hat industry. So rapidly are the hats made that some skilled workmen can turn out ten or a dozen a day, and they are then sent to all parts of the world. They cost about fourpence each to make, and retailed at from 1 shilling sixpence to 4 shillings and are so durable that it not infrequently happens that those of an economical turn of mind make a single hat last ten years.

Chesapeake Bay.

Few people fully appreciate the great size of the Chesapeake bay. It is the largest indentation on the Atlantic coast, and it has often been called the Mediterranean of America. On its bosom the navies of the world could easily float. It is 200 miles long, and in some places it is forty miles broad. It has an area of over 2,000 square miles, and it shoots off into great rivers with an aggregate length of thousands of miles.—Baltimore American.

Indian Railroad President.

An Indian chieftain as a railroad president is a rare thing, but that is what President Porter, Chief of Creeks, is. His railroad is the Indian Central. It filed its charter at Guthrie. It is capitalized at $15,000,000, and contemplates the construction of 460 miles of railroad in Indian Territory and Oklahoma within the next two years. The road begins at Ponca City and runs southeast to Paris, Texas, with a branch line running from the Red River northwest to Oklahoma City.
