Another Business Change.

The closing of the year seems to be the occasion for a number of business changes in Rensselaer, and the 1st of the new year is also to mark at least one change in the firm name of one of Rensselaer's old established business houses. It is not much of a change in some respects as it will not change the business in any way except in name. It is the E. D. Rhoades hardware business, which after the first of the year will be under the name of E. D. Rhoades & Son. The son is Leonard F. Rhoades, who for the past seven years has been associated with his father in the business. Leonard has been a partner in embryo for all this time and now is to be associated in full partnership with the beginning of the new year.
