HANGING GROVE.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Robinson and Myrtle Lewis went to Rensselaer Thursday evening.

R. V. Johns and Omar Church went to Monon Thursday evening to consult a physician about some eye trouble. Omar Church has a piece of cinder in his eye that is giving him lots of pain.

The local freight crew north threw off a box of matches Friday morning at McCosburg rather carelessly, and the sudden jar ignited them and before they could be opened four or five small boxes were burned.

Several persons from McCosburg are billed for Crown Point Tuesday as witnesses for a young man in jail there charged with horse stealing. The horse was stolen near Lowell Monday night, May 24th, and it is a positive fact that the lad was here that night and stayed all night with relatives.

Reed McCoy was taken quite sick Wednesday night and was unable for duty Thursday, and Thursday evening it was thought advisable to call a physician in, who thought his case would be nothing serious, however, he was a real sick man for a short time. Later—His case has developed tonsilitis.

MT. AYR.

From the Pilot.

Roy Willey, administrator of the T. E. Willey estate, has disposed of the residence property here, to G. M. Herriman, father of our grain merchant, Arthur Herriman.

Francis Brown has had the misfortune to lose his eyesight. He has been troubled with his eyes for some time, and last week his sight seemed to fail him completely. He has the sympathy of many friends in his affliction.

Miss Jennie Mauck entertained about thirty of her young friends at her home about four miles north of town last Saturday evening, refreshments were served and a very pleasant time was enjoyed by all.

Miss Viola Smith, of Chicago, has been visiting with Charles Baker and family during the past week. Miss Smith is sorely afflicted, being almost deprived of her eyesight; however, in spite of her misfortune she has become a creditable musician, playing either the mandolin or piano with considerable skill.

Earl Bruner closed his work as lineman on the Mt. Ayr telephone system and left Friday evening for his home in Rensselaer. During his stay here he made many friends whose good wishes follow him. He intended to leave Rensselaer Saturday for Valparaiso, where he was to take charge of a store, of which his father owns a half interest. Earl expected to go overland with his father in the latter's automobile.

Marathon Race Open for Members of State Militia.

Battery A of Indianapolis has arranged a marathon race to take place on June 27th, at Indianapolis. It consists of a race from Fort Benjamin Harrison to the Battery A armory at Sixteenth street and Senate avenue, by the way of Millersville. The distance will be more than ten miles. Prizes will be given to each of the ten men finishing first. The organization scoring the most points will receive a silver cup. Ten points are scored for the first, 9 for the second and so on to 1 point for the 10th man. Each organization can enter from one to five men. The entrance fee is 25 cents for each man, and the entries close on June 21st. The local company has been supplied with blanks for entering if any of the members wish to enter.

Jonathan Morris, of Elkhart, whose saloon license expired on May 22, and who pretended to continue a soft drink establishment, was arrested in his place Tuesday night. The police also found Henry Baumgartner there helplessly drunk. Several kegs and cases of beer, cases of wine, whiskey, and gin and liquors in pints and half pints ready for sale were seized.

HALF TRUE TALES OF THE STREET AND THE TOWN.

Rhyming Romance.

He calls at 8
Upon Miss K8
And stays till 18;
Their tete-a-t8
Leads him to st8
He thinks her gr8—
At any r8,
She names the d8;
They oscul8.

The Spendthrift Mr. Shulman.

Frank Shulman, who lives in the farthest Bronx, came to Harlem the other day to buy his spring seeds, or something. In the course of the day he began to indulge in some pleasing liquid entertainment with lather on it. The farther Mr. Shulman went, the happier he felt. He wabbled from saloon to saloon, followed by a cheering crowd. Most of the guerrillas and pickpockets of Harlem were in the train, and every now and then some one bought Mr. Shulman a fresh drink. By and by Mr. Shulman's condition became atrocious. Policeman Noonan found him with his face on the pavement, trying to push it home. So he took Mr. Shulman to the museum. Mr. Shulman was dead to the world. When the policemen began to search him, they found him absolutely quilted with currency. He had money literally in every pocket.

Some of the bills were covered with blue mold, he had had them so long. When he woke up in the morning, the coppers handed him a roll of money about the size of a milk pail. He counted it very carefully. "Seven hundred and seven dollars and nine cents," he said, letting go of his brow for a moment to do a bit of mental arithmetic. "Dang it! I must have spent more'n a dollar yestiddy. I'm pretty sure I had $708.50 when I left home."

The dips and vag rollers of Harlem are trying to gnaw each other's hearts out at the thought of letting that bundle get away.

Will She Be An Authoress?

Has one of our sweet girl graduates designs on novel writing? The following was picked up on the high school campus:

"The western sky shone like a fading opal, one by one the little stars, like silver-headed tacks on the baize of the sky, peeped forth, as Pauline Vere de Vere, of Ridgefield Manor, leaned her head against the trysting tree and sighed.

"He cometh not, and I'm so sad and lonely. Would that I had some peppermints to suck."

"Just then the sounds of an approaching horseman broke the silence of the declining day, interrupted by the breathing of the disconsolate maiden as she sighed for her absent lover and his usual sack of peppermints."

Essay On Pants.

The following essay on pants is said to have been handed in by a boy in the regular course of work in the schools of this city:

"When dad has worn his trousers out they pass to brother John, then mother trims them 'round about and William puts them on. When William's legs too long have grown, the trousers fail to hide 'em, so Walter claims them for his own and hides himself inside 'em. Next Sam's fat legs the pants invest and when they won't stretch tighter they're turned and shortened up for me—the writer. Ma works them into caps and rugs when I have burst the stitches; at doom's day we shall see perhaps, the last of dad's old britches."

Party He Belonged To.

A matron of the most determined character was encountered by a young woman reporter on a country paper, who was sent out to interview leading citizens as to their politics. "May I see Mr. —?" she asked of a stern-looking woman who opened the door at one house.

"No, you can't" answered the matron decisively.

"But I want to know what party he belongs to," pleaded the girl.

The woman drew up her tall figure. "Well, take a good look at me," she said. "I'm the party he belongs to!"

Captain Was Right.

During the recent financial depression in England, Pat and Mike enlisted in the British army. After the first drill the captain, thinking the circumstances opportune for a little lecture on patriotism, demanded eloquently, "Soldiers, why should a man die for his king and country?" This struck Pat as a proper question. Turning to Mike he said:

"Faith, Moike, the captain is roight; who?"

Warned In Time.

A deaf but plios English lady visiting a small country town in Scotland went to church armed with an ear trumpet. The elders had never seen one, and viewed it with suspicion and uneasiness. After a short consultation, one of them went up to the lady, just before the opening of the services, and wagging his finger at her warningly, whispered: "One too, and ye're out!"

Increasing Circulation.

"Let us," said the ardent youth To the journalistic miss;
"Let us, shyly, go to press,
"So that we may print a kiss."

One edition soon was done—

He knew what he was about.
"Our success in fine," he said,
"We must get some extras out!"

His Feet.

"Thank you," she said as he finally gave her his seat. "The car bumps so it's almost impossible to stand on our feet."

"That was because I kept pullin' 'em out of your way, ma'am," he replied. "But you did manage to land on my pet corn a couple o' times."

Reverse English!

Dinah, crying bitterly, was coming down the street with her feet bandaged.

"Why, what on earth's the matter?" she was asked. "How did you hurt your feet, Dinah?"

"Dat good fo' nothin' nigger (sniffe) done hit me on de hajd wif a club while I was standin' on de hard stone pavement."

Young Staylight lingered and lingered. The young lady dozed. The tall clock in the hall struck 11 and the clock in the parlor mantel struck twelve.

"How funny," they young man gurgled, "one struck 11 and one 12. Which one is right?"

"Add'em up," she said. He did.

How Old Was the Joke.

"I understand that you said some of my jokes were as old as the hills?" interrogated the struggling humorist, in crestfallen tones.

"My dear sir, you have been misinformed," laughed the busy editor. "What I said was that some of the hills were as old as your jokes."

For the Trade of 1909.

I expect to exhibit the best line of buggies that ever came to the city of Remselaer. I have bought three car loads at this writing and if the trade is as good as last season (and I think it will be better) I will need another car or two. I have the agency for nothing but FIRST CLASS FIRM'S GOODS. The latest styles of auto seats and of other designs of high class, all work made up by expert workmen and no job is misrepresented; nothing but a guaranteed work is bought or sold. The best goods that can be bought is none too good. The good class of work is the winner in the long run. With this fine line of buggies and carriages I have the farm wagon that has a reputation behind it, the Studebaker, South Bend, Ind. Some one is advertising they are building wagons out of white oak and hickory. Why, this is an everyday occurrence with Studebakers for the last fifty years and still at it. The world's best mower and blinder, the McCormick, also the McCormick hay rake; they have double coll teeth which makes them more than as good again as the single coll. For a manure spreader the Success is the world's best. It regulates the number of loads you wish to put on an acre. I have other articles for sale, Clover Leaf stock tonic and poultry tonic. Guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. Extras for all machines I sell. On Front street, north of the Postoffice and just across the street from King's blacksmith shop.

C. A. ROBERTS, Rensselaer, Ind.

May Assume Own Risks.

The proposition to establish a mutual fire insurance company among the Catholic churches of the Fort Wayne diocese similar to the Lutheran organization is now claiming the attention of the clergy. At the semi-annual meeting at Fort Wayne the matter was brought up and a committee was named to look into the matter. Further steps will be taken at the next meeting to be held in Fort Wayne in November.
