

WRECKED SUPPLY TRAIN, AMBUSHED BY FRENCH.

Many reports have come from the front of German supply trains ambushed and destroyed in the rush from Paris, following the battle of the Marne. This photo taken in the forest of Villers-Gottret, shows what is left of a German motor convoy after it had been ambushed by a patrol of French dragoons.

Letter to South Bend Man
Gives Glimpse of the Great War As Seen By Germans

Another glimpse of the great war as it appears to German eyes and a slight personal touch which reveals in a measure how the intense patriotism of the German people is helping them bear great personal sacrifices with quiet fortitude is contained in a letter received by C. G. Lange, 468 E. Paris st., South Bend, from his nephew, Wilhelm Sickinger. The letter is dated from Stuttgart, Germany, Sept. 12. It follows:

"Dear Uncle: We are in the midst of horrible times. Both my brothers have taken the field with the kaiser's army and the youngest, Eugene, was severely wounded in the first battle under the crown prince near Baranz in south Belgium, north of Longwy. He died on Aug. 22, two days after receiving his wound, and was buried in the cemetery at Baranz."

"Never in all Germany's history has there been a war like this, we think.

And what is the cause? Because Austria would not allow the Servians to continue throwing bombs by which they had killed the archduke, Russia stepped in and then we were forced to join. We Germans feel particularly embittered toward the English who have allied with France against us, claiming that we violated neutrality by passing through Belgium. The English are spreading terrible lies throughout the world, but at home here everything is in the best of order. High and low, members of all parties are filled with the kaiser in this war, even the socialists, whose leader, Dr. Frank of Muenchen, was one of the first to fall in battle.

French Barbarities.

You have probably heard of the barbaric methods used in carrying on this war. From Russia we had expected nothing else, but from the French who call themselves 'le Grande Nation' come atrocities as horrible. Eyes of the wounded have been gouged out, noses and ears cut off. During one of the battles some of our men came upon a wounded officer who insisted that they continue to fight. They found him after the battle, dead from strangulation and his tongue cut out.

"The enemy are using corkscrews to gouge out eye and dumb dumb bullets. I think our brother who was shot through the lung, was hit by one of these bullets.

"To date we have 200,000 prisoners. Our artillery is wreaking terrible havoc among the French. Their strongest forts cannot hold out against our big mortars. The American ambassador in Paris has entered a protest against the treatment of German prisoners by the French.

"There is no doubt among the Germans that the 'Fatherland' will be victorious in the end. We fight for the right and God is with us."

WHY IS WAR?

Some of the newspaper strategists recommend that the war be turned over to a real estate board, each nation demanding what it wants and conceding what it will concede and then an approximate price being mutually agreed upon. No one would be killed and the plan would be ridiculously cheap. When the outcome of wars in the past is considered, there is no hard terms on the vanquished. Beers and today Boer soldiers are fighting Britain's battles. The terrible Russo-Japanese war was followed by no exacting of harsh penalties, and today Russians and Japanese are fighting in a common cause. No two nations are today more friendly than the United States and Spain, for 16 years ago the republic, in its hour of triumph, accorded to Spain a measure of justice and consideration which has not been forgotten. The war of 1861-1865 between the states was fought with bitter animosity which marks all civil wars, but the generosity of the victor has completely won back the vanquished, and a man of good birth is now president of the United States.

CHEBOYGAN.—Mary Kierczak of Afton has been living in immoral surroundings since her father was sentenced to prison last spring. It was alleged in circuit court here when the girl who is 18, was turned over to Louis Sappacase and his wife.
